Berlin Police Keep City's Rival Rallies Well in Hand

Berlin, May 1 (AP).—Anti-Communists stoned East Berlin police and tore down Soviet flags and a loudspeaker in seething May Day celebrations today but patient police action on both sides averted any serious violence.

Berlin boiled with a million celebrants divided between rallies on each side of the border, but the civil war, which many had feared might explode in this divided city 100 miles behind the Iron Curtain, did not break out.

The closest thing to an incident was when a Western mob of 5000 ragged teen-agers pelted 100 Eastern patrolmen with brickbats in Potsdamer Platz.

The Western rioters screamed "black SS" and "Communist pigs" at the Eastern police, who kept to their side of the border and dodged the missiles without drawing their clubs.

Western Police Cut In

After 15 minutes, 300 West Berlin police reserves wedged among the demonstrators and pushed them back out of rock-throwing range.

The youngsters—some of them drunk and waving bottles—meanwhile had seized and mauled two East Berlin civilians, and torn down Red flags and a loudspeaker from a Soviet sector frontier building.

Mayor Ernst Reuter estimated 750,000 attended the anti-Communist rally in the Tiergarten in West Berlin.

On the other side of Brandenburg Gate at least 300,000 East Berliners joined the Communist rally where Red-bannered groups paraded for six hours along Unter den Linden.

The Lustgarten, where a bedecked reviewing stand had been set up, was a little "Red Square" with a forest of banners, portraits of Stalin and placards eulogizing the Sovietization of East Germany.

Free Communist Youth (FDJ) clapped hands in time over their heads as they paced before the reviewing stand singing, "The FDJ Storms Berlin."

In the columns were 4000 uniformed East Zone police, which Western authorities say are equipped and trained like an army.

Every organization in East Berlin—except the churches—was mobilized to provide floats and marchers. Even the East German Supreme Court trudged in line carrying a sign, "All Germany Needs People's Judges."

West Berlin's 11,000 police, with 8000 riot-trained American, British and French troops in barracks in the background, were out in full force. So were several thousand East Berlin police who mounted a close watch on their border.

Stalin Watches New Jets in Red Air Show

Moscow, May 1 (AP).—A sample of Soviet Russia's armed might paraded today under a modern umbrella of bomber and jet planes in a brilliant May Day show for Premier Stalin and more than a million spectators.

Foreign observers said the air armada was the greatest Russian flying spectacle since the end of the war. It was led by the premier's son, Lieut. Gen. Vassily Stalin.

Generalissimo Stalin, looking fit on the rostrum overlooking Red Square, heard Gen. S. M. Shtemenko, chief of the army general staff, warn "warmongers" that Soviet armed forces stood ready to resist aggressors.

"Warmongers, the formation of aggressive blocs, the creation of armed bases around the Soviet Union and the people's democracies, and military provocations," Shtemenko said, "do not scare the Soviet Union."

Twin-Engine Jets Seen

Foreign air attaches said this was the first time twin-engine jet planes have appeared in any Soviet air show. They also observed this was the first time the air force had displayed as many as 64 four-engined bombers. In an air parade last November there were 22 such bombers. Last May Day there were less than a dozen of the sky giants.

Stalin, in a natty fawn-colored uniform, led with sprightly steps his fellow members of the Politburo, high-ranking Communist Party and government leaders and top military officials up the steps near the Lenin tomb to the reviewing stand.

He took keen interest in the air show, looking up and studying each wing that flew past.

He remained on the tribunal throughout, returning hundreds of salutes and chatting with associates.

Below the reviewing stand marched soldiers, sailors, parachute troopers, marines and students of military academies. There were huge Stalin Tanks, mobile guns, antiaircraft weapons, cavalry and a contingent of frontier guards in smart uniforms and green-topped caps.

The show was witnessed by American, British and French Ambassadors and representatives of all foreign missions in Moscow.

In Other Capitals

In Paris, thousands of Communists marched in a parade organized by the General Labor Confederation and other thousands cheered a speech by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the rabidly anti-Communist French People's Rally.

A Communist-led rally in Rome's Piazza del Popolo drew an estimated 100,000 demonstrators. The crowd heard Giuseppe di Vittorio, leader of the Italian General Labor Confederation, demand that "the first nation to use the atom bomb be branded a war criminal."

Lattimore Acted Like a Red, Freda Utley Tells Senators

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Former British Communist Freda Utley told a Senate subcommittee yesterday that Owen Lattimore's actions were "indistinguishable" from those of a Communist, and indicated he was "subject to Communist Party discipline."

She conceded she had no personal knowledge or proof that he was a member of the Communist Party. And, she said, she felt that Senator McCarthy's allegation against the Johns Hopkins professor—that he was the "top Soviet espionage agent in this country"—was mistaken.

But the mistake, she added, was only one of "underestimating" Lattimore. For, she argued, spies were "expendable" and Lattimore was far too "skillful and valuable" to the Russian cause ever to be exposed or to have his talents used in the minor functions of an agent.

Instead, she said, Lattimore was the leader in the group that influenced American opinion to regard Chinese Communists in a good light; and his disciples and students of the "Lattimore school" were the ones that created the "disaster" of the American Government policy for China.

Mrs. Utley, in a long afternoon of testimony and grilling before the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee, read at length quotations from Lattimore's writings, and cited dozens of passages in an attempt to prove her basic point.

That was that Lattimore sought to portray the Chinese Communists as simply agrarian reformers, without too close ties to Moscow, and the center of the beginning of true democracy in China.

But under questioning, Senator Green (D., R. I.) brought out that Mrs. Utley had written very nearly the same thing in a book she wrote in 1938 that was published in 1939. Her phrase for the Communists in China was that they were "radicals in the English nineteenth century meaning of the word."

As of that time, Green reminded

81 'Red' Cases 2½ Years Old, House Is Told

Representative Frank M. Karsten (D., Mo.), yesterday provided documentation to show that the famous "81 cases" of Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), are two and one half years old and were previously investigated by two House subcommittees.

Karsten showed further that the second subcommittee inquiring into the question, with a Republican majority in the Congress, concluded its investigation did not even warrant a report, because "it was felt the State Department was handling the situation in a satisfactory manner."

Elizabeth Bentley Quits Teaching Job For 'Work in D. C.'

Chicago, May 1 (U.P.).—Elizabeth T. Bentley, admitted courier for a Communist spy ring during the war, has left her post here as a college instructor in order to make herself available for "work in Washington," it was learned tonight.

Officials of Mundelein College revealed that Miss Bentley left the school in February. It was learned she asked that her contract as a political science teacher be cut short because of the prospect of frequent trips to Washington.

Members of the staff did not know what her mission in the Nation's Capital was, but said there was no disagreement between the school and Miss Bentley.

"Actually, it was very difficult for us to replace her," one staff member said. "She fitted in here very well."

Telephone and telegraph companies were accused yesterday of closing their eyes to the use of their lines for transmission of gambling information.

Officials of A. T. & T. (the Bell System), the independent phone companies and Western Union, however, argued that they were cooperating fully with local law enforcement agencies. They contended that the bill proposed by Attorney General McGrath would turn their concerns into "censors" reading every telegram and "eavesdroppers" listening in on every phone call.

The communications officials had a rough day of it before the Senate Commerce subcommittee. They heard such things as these:

Chairman McFarland (D., Ariz.) told A.T.&T.'s long lines general attorney, S. Whitney Landon, that "you haven't given us much information" and "it would be advantageous" to Bell to give information "freely" instead of saying "it would be a hard job."

"Could Be More Cooperative"

McFarland said previous witnesses have felt that "you could be more cooperative" in fighting gambling law violations. He asked Landon if he didn't think "you ought to have a little responsibility in keeping" multiple phones out of gambling places. Landon said if local authorities got the facts, the phone company would cooperate in removing phones.

Other committee members put it more strongly than McFarland. Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) said the phone company was an "accessory after the fact" in letting its lines be used for gambling. He recalled that gambler Frank Erickson had admitted violating the law in taking bets, and that he said he used the phone to do so.

Then Tobey shouted that the phone company ought to yank out the phones of Erickson, Frank Costello, James J. Carroll and others in the gambling world. He lumped them together as "gangsters" who have "indicted themselves" before the committee.

Tobey wanted to know why A. T. & T. didn't say: "Damn the rascals, we've got to clean this up."

Hits "Spineless Attitude"

When Clyde S. Bailey, executive vice president of the Independent Telephone Association, was on the stand, Tobey said, "You look like a clean, honest fellow," and then blasted what the Senator called "your spineless attitude" toward use of the phones for gambling.

Tobey Hears 'Bookie' Is in Senate Building

There's a bookmaker operating in the Senate Office Building, Senator Tobey (R., N. H.), declared at the Senate gambling hearing yesterday.

Tobey said he was "credibly informed" about the bookie operation, that the man had been operating "some little time" and that he planned to have a talk with him.

"Of course," Tobey added to reporters, "no Senator would patronize the bookie."

Scheve Plotted 'Snags' Lewis Murder, Rigsbee Tells Jury

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

James Abbott Rigsbee, 35, yesterday told a District Court jury that the late Joseph Herman (Big Joe) Scheve once tried to hire him to kill William (Snags) Lewis.

"Big Joe told me he wanted me to do some killing for him. He said he had a chance to move into Washington and take over the syndicate," Rigsbee declared.

On trial for the murder of Scheve last December in a 9th street poolroom, Rigsbee said Scheve first approached him about a year before the shooting.

"I understand you're rough and I want you to work for me. But I want you to know I'm the boss and when I'm through with a man, I'm through with him," Rigsbee quoted Scheve.

Rigsbee added the work was to include bringing supplies into Washington from New York. When asked what supplies, he replied:

"Oh, marihuana and that stuff called heroin."

When asked who he was supposed to kill for Scheve, Rigsbee declared unhesitatingly:

"Big Joe said it was an operator named Lewis—he called him Snags Lewis."

Lewis recently was convicted in District Court on gambling charges and sentenced to serve 10 to 30 months.

Rigsbee said he told Scheve he

Tax on Alcohol Cut; Revenue Losses Feared

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House Ways and Means Committee's excise tax-cutting drive slowed down to a walk yesterday amid some expressions of concern that resulting revenue losses may get out of hand.

The committee nonetheless voted still another cut—a reduction in the excise on alcohol used for medicinal purposes from $3 to $2 a gallon.

Staff experts estimated this would cost the Treasury $2,300,000, boosting revenue losses to 970 million dollars from tax paying to date.

Possible further reductions will be considered at a meeting today before the committee launches a search for additional taxes to offset the cuts.

A Republican member of the group—Representative Robert W. Kean (N. J.)—meanwhile voiced publicly a warning that the com-

Mayor of Town, Occupied by 'Reds' Has Heart Attack

Mosinee, Wis., May 1 (AP).—Mayor Ralph E. Kronenwetter, 49, was stricken with a severe heart attack tonight while on his way to ceremonies that were to end his community's May Day "Communist occupation."

The mayor, who was active all day in make-believe Red rule events, was rushed to his home where a priest administered last sacraments. His physician pronounced his condition "very grave."

Kronenwetter was routed out of bed shortly after 6 a. m. by an armed squad of "Red" soldiers and later "forced" to issue a proclamation to his townspeople that the town was submitting to "Communist rule."

During the day Kronenwetter announced, seriously, that he would run for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Seventh District. Two years ago he was defeated.

'5-Percenter' Found Guilty In Tax Case

Baltimore, May 1 (Spl.).—H. Gordon Fisher, 52, Washington "five percenter," was convicted in Federal court today of failing to file a 1946 income tax return.

The jury accepted the Government's contention that Fisher, who lives in the Roosevelt Hotel in Washington, did not file an income tax return for 1946 even though it was a year in which at least $97,000 went through his bank account.

Judge W. Calvin Chesnut deferred sentencing until May 11, pending a probation report.

Fisher testified he was "dumb and careless" in not filing the report. He admitted that about $97,000 passed through his bank accounts in 1946, but declared that at the end of the year he was "dead broke" and actually owed about $12,000.

Refunds Advances

Most of the bank deposits, Fisher contended, was money advanced him by clients anxious to complete deals for the purchase of surplus commodities. If the attempted deals fell through, he added, the advances were refunded.

He testified he used his wife's $200-a-month salary to help pay the living expenses in 1946, and also had borrowed heavily from friends that year to meet the cost of living and entertaining.

He said his wife is a "coordinator of education" at Providence Hospital in Washington.

Fisher told the jury he bought the Commodities & Equipment Corp., 1317 F st. nw., Washington, as a "front" for his brokerage business, and joined the Indian Spring Country Club as a "window dressing" and to make "contacts."

Commissions Cited

The Government produced testimony that Fisher had received two checks totaling $5953 in 1946 as commissions for obtaining 1,700,000 pounds of salt water soap in Hawaii for the Durite Products Co. of Brentwood, Md.

Fisher admitted he received the commissions but declared expenses of the transaction took a large part of the earnings.

One-Summer Plan Passed; Bill Now Goes To Senate

Measure Approved By 194-87 Tally; Sen. Neely Pledges Prompt Action

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The House yesterday approved District daylight saving time for this summer by a vote of 194 to 87.

But the legislation still is not a law.

The House ignored a Senate-approved bill for District DST-every-summer and instead passed its own bill for DST this year only.

Now the House bill goes back to the Senate. It should reach the Senate about noon today.

There it will be taken in hand by Senator Matthew W. Neely (D., W. Va.), chairman of the Senate District Committee.

Neely, after learning of the House action, said he would present the House measure to a meeting of the Senate District Committee as promptly as possible.

Neely said he will try to have the meeting and to present the committee's decision to the Senate before it recesses today.

Indications were the Senators will favor accepting the House bill.

If that is done, the one-more-summer DST bill will go to the White House. If signed by President Truman, DST might go into effect this coming weekend.

Unanimous Consent Needed

But don't change your clocks before the law is passed.

It will take unanimous consent in the Senate to make room for the final action on District daylight saving. Capitol aides pointed out the Senate is operating under a unanimous consent agreement now that runs to Friday, and which gives right-of-way to the ECA bill and to "privilege business."

By unanimous consent, however, the House DST bill could be cleared by the Senate.

Roll Call Vote

House action on the District daylight saving time bill began at 3:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time and the vote passing the bill was announced one hour later.

It was a roll call. Of House District Committee members voting, eight favored and eight opposed DST. Nine members of the committee did not vote.

Maryland's delegation showed all four Democrats voting for the bill — they are Representatives William P. Bolton, Edward A. Garmatz, George H. Fallon, and Lansdale G. Sasscer. The two Republicans did not vote; they are J. Glenn Beall and Edward T. Miller.

Four Virginians voted for the bill, two against, and two did not vote. All are Democrats. The four favoring DST were Porter Hardy, jr., Watkins M. Abbitt, Clarence G. Burton, and Tom B.

Strike of 2500 AFL Bakers Put Off One Week

A Nation-wide strike of 2500 AFL bakery workers in plants of the Continental Baking Co., set for last midnight, was postponed for a full week at the request of the Federal Mediation Service.

The Government will resume mediation efforts in the dispute over the union's demand for company-wide bargaining next Friday at 10:30 a. m.

Announcement of the break, just six hours before the scheduled walkout, was made by Conciliator Clyde L. Mills, acting for Conciliation Chief Cyrus S. Ching.

The Government feared that the prospective strike might spread from the 2500 workers, whose contracts would have expired by midnight, to the balance of the 5500 members of the union employed by Continental in plants in 83 cities throughout the Nation.

There also was believed to be a possibility that the contract dispute might spread to AFL bakery workers employed by the five other major chain bakeries — General, Ward, Interstate, Purity and Columbia.

Guided Missiles Ready

Navy Modernization Program Approved by House Committee

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman won quick approval from a House committee yesterday for a 350-million-dollar Navy modernization program covering a guided-missiles ship and an atomic-powered submarine.

Sherman told the House Armed Services Committee that 40 million dollars of the money will be used to convert a heavy cruiser into a guided-missiles craft. He said the ship will be used "primarily against aircraft," and he declared:

"We have guided missiles which are sufficiently advanced that they should be introduced into the fleet as soon as possible. We are not warranted in delaying any longer in getting this essential element afloat."

Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) asked Sherman whether he believed the development of guided missiles has gone far enough to justify the expenditure of 40 million dollars for such a ship.

"Very definitely," the Admiral replied.

Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, also told the committee that the Navy hopes to have an atomic-powered submarine in operation within three years after funds become available for it. Presumably, that would be sometime in 1954, since the program will be financed largely from funds for the 1952 fiscal year beginning July 1, 1951.

Plans for an atom-driven submarine, theoretically capable of cruising almost indefinitely without refueling, are reported already near the blueprint stage.

The over-all program includes the construction of 112 ships, mostly small, and modernization of 30 others. Chairman Vinson had originally called for an authorization of 500 million dollars, but this figure was cut when Sherman said the Navy's present plans contemplate the spending of a lesser amount on the modernization program.

Scheduled for modernization are six carriers of the 27,000-ton Essex class. Three are now in shipyards. Sherman estimated it would take about two years before all six are ready for service.

Representative Rivers (D., S. C.), suggested the Essex class carriers are not large enough "to take care of planes which are just around the corner," but Sherman said the ships will be needed by the Navy throughout their life.

The admiral said the modernized carriers are urgently needed to handle fighters and dive bombers which he said will be available by the time the work is finished.

Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) asked Sherman what Russia is doing in the carrier field.

"I have no positive information that Russia is building carriers, and I have no positive information that she is not," Sherman said.

Count Reported 90 Pct. Complete

The national 1950 population count was estimated by Census Bureau officials yesterday to be about 90 percent complete. They said two or three more weeks will be required to finish the job.

First tentative figures are due to be made public this month and next. They will be announced by district census supervisors and will include population figures for counties and for cities of more than 10,000 persons.

Precensus estimates were that the Nation's population would be found to be somewhere around 150,500,000 or 151 million persons. That would compare with an official total of 131,669,275 for the continental United States in the 1940 census.

'South Pacific,' 'Way West' Are Awarded Pulitzer Prizes

New York, May 1 (AP).—The fabulously successful Broadway hit, "South Pacific," won the 1950 Pulitzer Prize for drama today while the annual award for fiction went to A. B. Guthrie's best-selling historical novel, "The Way West."

These and other Pulitzer prizes in journalism, letters and music were announced by President Dwight D. Eisenhower of Columbia University.

"South Pacific," written and produced by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 2d, is based on James A. Michener's book, "Tales of the South Pacific," which won the Pulitzer Prize for fiction in 1948.

Awards for disinterested and meritorious public service went to the Chicago Daily News and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for a series of articles disclosing the presence of 51 Illinois newspapermen on the State payroll. The articles were written jointly by George Thiem and Roy J. Harris.

The prize for distinguished local reporting was awarded to Meyer Berger of the New York Times for his account of the neighborhood slayings by Howard Unruh, a crazed war veteran, at Camden.

Five-Day Police Week Bill Backed by House Group

A bill to start Washington policemen on a five-day week July 1 was approved yesterday by the House District Committee.

Committee Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) announced that the vote for the five-day week bill was unanimous. It was approved in a closed-door meeting. The bill now goes to the House. It would cost the District about one million dollars a year. Some 300 more Metropolitan policemen would be needed to cut the workweek from the present six days to five.

The bill also applies to the White House and Park Police.

Committee discussion began in yesterday's meeting, and will continue in another session at 10 a. m. Wednesday, on a bill to transfer control of six Washington swimming pools from the Interior Department to the District Commissioners, McMillan said.

McMillan is the sponsor of the bill. As introduced it applied to playgrounds as well as pools, but McMillan said he now proposes to have it apply only to pools.

McMillan made public a report from A. E. Demaray, associate director of the National Park Service, showing that five of the six pools

Georgia Law On Elections Left Intact

By Jeanne Bellamy

Miami, May 1.—More than half a million Florida Democrats will go to the polls Tuesday to pick a United States Senator.

To people all over the country, their choice will mean a lot more than that. It's between New Dealing Claude Pepper and George Smathers, the young Congressman from Miami who says he—not Pepper—is a true "Liberal Democrat."

So clean-cut is the issue that the outcome in Florida will be called a sign of a national trend, as the elections in New Zealand, Australia and England were interpreted as signs of world-wide thinking.

That's one of the few things Pepper and Smathers agree on. "It's part of a national referendum on the kind of government we're going to have,' says Pepper, veteran of 14 years in the Senate.

"Roosevelt or Republicans"

"Headlines all over the country Wednesday will say, 'Democrats approve Roosevelt program in Pepper election,' or 'Democrats disapprove Roosevelt program—Republicans jubilant over prospects of winning next Congress.'"

Smathers says that part about the Republicans isn't so. He contends his election would show a desire on the part of Floridans and perhaps many other Americans to return to what he considers the true principles of the Democratic Party.

The tall, 36-year-old Congressman says he understands liberalism to be rooted in freedom for the individual.

"Men like my opponent have twisted the word from its original meaning," Smathers says.

He denounces Pepper's platform as a "give-away program" and "an attempt to buy votes with the public treasury." He warns against "political Pied Pipers" who offer security in exchange for the right to control the daily lives of individuals.

"Security is easy to get," Smathers says. "All you have to do is walk over to the police station and punch the police chief in the face. He will put you in jail. You'll have a good roof over your head. Your means will be provided. If you need a doctor, he'll be sent to see you. You'll have security but no freedom."

Pepper, on the other hand, declared the Constitution itself makes Uncle Sam responsible for the welfare of the people. He calls for continuing, and expanding "the great humantarian program of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

For that reason, Pepper says, he is for President Truman's national compulsory health insurance plan. Smathers is against it, calling it "socialized medicine."

Both Oppose FEPC

"Because I am for preserving your right to think, speak, work and worship as you please, I am against foot-in-the-door measures that take away basic American liberties," Smathers has been telling voters in Florida's 67 counties.

In that category, too, he puts the Fair Employment Practices Commission. Smathers is against it. Pepper says he's against it, too, although Smathers acuses him of having "two positions on FEPC—for it and against it." Pepper sees little chance of balancing the budget without crippling Uncle Sam's domestic program "until we win the cold war."

Smathers calls deficit spending a threat to the national economy.

"We've had enough of the 50-cent dollar," he says. "We need a 100-cent dollar that will stand up and buy something."

Smathers has kept Pepper on the defensive throughout the campaign. He started by denouncing Pepper as "the leader of the radicals and extremists" in America and an apologist for Communist Russia.

Pepper, who has never had formidable opposition before, answered this at length in stump speeches.

Now Smathers is accusing Pepper of "conspiring with paid and imported organizers of the CIO Political Action Committee to register and deliver the Negro vote for him, as a bloc."

Pepper's reply is that he's proud to have the indorsement of the CIO, AFL and the 21 railroad brotherhoods. He counters by saying Smathers has Republican backing.

7 Democrats Running For Senator in Ohio

Columbus, Ohio, May 1 (AP).—Ohio Democrats and Republicans square off Tuesday for their most desperate struggle in the recent history of this politically important State.

But, hardly 750,000 of the State's approximately five million voters are expected to cast ballots in the Tuesday primary.

Ohio Democrats have a big job on their hands. From a field of seven aspirants they must pick a candidate to oppose a man often described as "Mr. Republican, himself" — United States Senator Robert A. Taft—in the November election.

Senator Taft, coauthor of the Taft-Hartley Act, will be nominated without opposition by Republicans Tuesday.

Of the seven Democrats who aspire to carry the banner against Taft, two are rated top contenders for the senatorial nomination. They are State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and Mayor Michael V. Disalle of Toledo.

Civil Righters Watch Alabama Primary

Montgomery, Ala., May 1 (AP).—Embattled Alabama Democrats held the Nation's interest tonight on the eve of a primary election that may foretell the strength of the civil rights rebellion in the South.

The voters will decide whether Alabama rejoins the national party or remains aloof like it did in 1948 when its 11 electoral votes went to the States Rights ticket.

One of the most outspoken advocates of national party solidarity is United States Senator Lister Hill, who, himself is up for reelection opposed by States Righter Lawrence McNeil of Birmingham. Hill has hardly bothered to mention his rival, however, and has concentrated on the party scrap.

Navy Capt. John Crommelin figures in the Senate race, too, but his name won't be on the ballot in the primary. Crommelin, on half-pay furlough for his attacks on national defense policies, filed his papers today as an independent candidate in the November general election.

Indiana Expects 500,000 Primary Vote

Indianapolis, May 1 (AP).—An estimated 500,000 to 600,000 Hoosiers will vote Tuesday in the climax to a quiet primary election campaign.

Candidates for more than 6000 offices will be nominated. Eighty-eight candidates are in the field for the 22 congressional nominations. Four incumbent Congressmen, however, are unopposed.

These are Democrats Thurman Crook, South Bend, Third District; John R. Walsh, Anderson, Fifth District; Edward H. Kruse, jr., Fort Wayne, Fourth District, and Republican Earl R. Wilson, Bedford, Ninth District.

The Republican "School of Politics" urged its precinct workers to hit the sawdust trail yesterday.

"The time is ripe for a crusade . . . Billy Graham, the evangelist is packing them in around Boston . . . and we, too, must become Billy Sundays of the GOP."

That was the punchline from "principal" Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington as she dismissed the first day's class of 25 grassrooters, here from 11 states and the District for a three-day pep talk on how to rekindle the Republican spark.

The suggestion was what the party workers wanted to hear and several said they hoped they would "graduate" Wednesday with the new techniques, equipment and "conviction" to turn local-level Republicanism into a "hard-smashing crusade."

Yesterday's classroom talks at Republican National headquarters were devoted to political charm, techniques on registering voters, and getting out the vote.

A former All-American football player gave the pupils an earful.

"Learn how to shake hands," shouted John Da Grosa, chairman of Philadelphia's GOP precinct work. "Why, the Republican Party has been in the dead fish business for years."

Knock off the stuffed-shirt, dead-pan approach, said the husky son of an Italian immigrant, and try this sort of political salesmanship:

"Learn to smile and have a sense of humor . . . Make the voter feel important, and be a good listener. If necessary, just be a jackass with big ears.

Those Days Are Gone

The day of the "big car-driving, big cigar-smoking precinct worker" is over, he said, telling them to admonish Republican chieftains to pick candidates who will "sell. Don't put some jug-head, some musclehead, in there, just so HE can get something out of it."

Mrs. Farrington, chairman of the National Federation of Women's Clubs and wife of the congressional delegate from Hawaii, said:

"It is estimated there are 141,000 voting districts in the Nation. "And we aim to put trained workers in every district."

This first group of ballot charmers will be instructed to start similar clinics in their own districts.

A. B. Herman, the national committee's executive director, who has helped to boot home a string of winners in his State of New Jersey, told the group: (1) Make a more intensive drive among the minority groups; (2) Meet head on the challenge of labor leaders that the Republican Party is not the working man's party; (3.) Develop the interest of the young people "who are able to make a more flexible adjustment to the new GOP cehallenges."

At lunch the class heard Doris Flesson, columnist, and Fulton Lewis jr., radio commentator, talk out some of the issues of coming elections.

Later Lloyd B. Marsh drew from his seven years' experience as New Jersey State Republican chairman on registering voters and making sure they stick in the GOP column.

He told how his State organization has conducted talent scout contests and nonpartisan public forums.

One precinct worker asked for a tactful way to find whether a voter is Republican or Democratic when a block-to-block registration campaign is on.

Another worker popped up with: "I've always found their children a good source."

Two District residents are in the class—Mrs. Clark Butler, a Texan, and Mrs. Paul Hatch, a native Hoosier. They are members of the District League of Republican Women and are interested in getting out the absentee vote for their home State candidates.

Today's lectures will concentrate on what a worker needs to know about his own party and his opposition, platform-wise and organization-wise.

Dr. Adams, Chemist, Gets Bowie Medal

Dr. Leason Heberling Adams, director of the Geophysical Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, last night received the William Bowie Medal of the American Geophysical Union at a meeting of the organization at the National Academy of Sciences.

The American Geophysical Union yesterday opened a three-day meeting here, its thirty-first annual program of technical and scientific sessions.

Dr. Adams, a geophysicist and physical chemist, was president of the American Geophysical Union from 1944 to 1947. He is currently a vice president of the international Union of Geodesy and Geophysics. He became director of the Carnegie Institution Geophysical Laboratory in 1938.

Recipient of the Edward Longstreth Medal of Franklin Institute and the Medal of Merit of the United States Government, Dr. Adams is the twelfth scientist to receive the Bowie Medal.

Mrs. Vandenberg's Condition Held 'Very Serious'

Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, wife of Michigan's senior Senator, was reported in "very serious condition" at Georgetown Hospital last night. A physician confirmed that she was in a semiconscious condition.

Mrs. Vandenberg was taken to the hospital, where her husband is recovering from a tumor operation, on Sunday. In 1947 she underwent two major operations and has been ill intermittently since.

Combat Supply Goals Cut in Air Maneuvers

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Camp Mackall, N. C., May 1 Air Force supply experts are finding out here that keeping a combat airhead going—even in a mock war—is a far different matter than hauling coal and flour into Berlin.

They've had to cut back drastically the goals set at the beginning of Operation Swarmer as to what can be brought in by a hot war airlift patterned after Operation Vittles.

Cut to 356 Flights

Originally, officers set a target of 480 plane loads into the captured airhead by D-plus-2—yesterday—which would haul in 4395 tons of men and supplies. Sunday night the goal was cut back to 356 flights bringing in 2503 tons. The actual accomplishment was 380 trips and 2959 tons.

The trouble was not enemy interference. Troops of the Eleventh and Eighty-second Airborne Divisions seized the airstrip on schedule on D-Day, and yesterday there was no enemy air opposition.

Bad weather at Langley AF Base and Oceana Naval Air Station, Va., kept aggressor's warplanes grounded. Not a signle air attack could be launched against the "aerial train."

It's largely a problem of unloading the Army equipment once it arrives at the airhead and last minute switching of loads called for by the tactical situation of the "war."

Actual Loads Key

Col. T. R. Milton, who was chief of staff of the Berlin Airlift, declared that Air Transport men are learning that "tonnage is not as important as the actual loads needed by the Army."

Unloading crews have considerable difficulty getting artillery, trucks and engineering supplies out of the C-54 planes that form most of the airlift. They are cargo versions of the DC-4 airliners and not well suited for such work. Planes like the Fairchild Packet or the giant Douglas Globemaster 11, with built-in nose or tail ramps are what are required. "Next time we should have bigger Army post companies to unload the planes," said Milton.

Combat troops have had to be pressed into service to help unload the transports—a situation commanders do not like. And most of the unloading equipment is makeshift, designed for the operation—though some of it is working very well.

Communication difficulties—resulting from carrying on the exercise close to the main north-south commercial airway—also has contributed to the difficulties.

Purpose of Maneuvers

All this, however, is a main purpose of the current maneuvers. The Joint Chiefs of Staff not only want to test the feasibility of carrying on sustained combat operations sustained solely by air, but also to learn from the mistakes made.

This slow-down on the aerial supply came not only in the airlift, but also in planned parachute re-supply operations. The Eighty-second Division had expected to receive 99.2 tons of supplies dropped to them yesterday.

They received only 45.5 tons—all of it rations actually required if the troops were to eat today. Actually the division would have required 269.5 tons yesterday by air drop if expending ammunition in actual warfare.

None of the drinking water scheduled to be dropped has been received by the Eighty-second Division. Troops have used water from streams purified by halazone tablets. Division officers had no idea why the packet airplanes slated to supply them by paradrop were diverted to other jobs.

In Europe Talks

Dovetailing Of Aims Hope Of Acheson

Secretary Acheson hopes next week's meetings of foreign ministers in Paris and London will result in dovetailing western policies in the cold war.

He told of his hopes and plans for the coming conference at a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday.

But, according to one committee member who heard him, the Secretary was not at all sure how far the western allies would be able to reconcile their policies.

This informant said the Secretary foresaw French objections to bringing western Germany into closer association with western Europe, and British hesitations on the Far East and European economic policies.

The Secretary left the impression that he was not going to Paris and London with rigid, hard-and-fast positions, and was ready for a good deal of give-and-take in the effort to get agreement.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said after the meeting that the North Atlantic Treaty organization, Germany and Austria would be among the subjects to be discussed. Other subjects the Secretary planned to discuss in Paris and London, he said, would be:

1. "Plans for expression of our interest in the development of a healthy European economy, and cooperative steps by sovereign nations to achieve that goal;" and

2. "The work of OEEC (the Marshall Plan organization in Europe) with possibilities of further European action looking toward the reduction of barriers to the interchange of goods, services and currency."

Former Republican Senator John Sherman Cooper, newly appointed consultant to the Secretary, was among the high officials who accompanied him to the meeting with the Senators. Senator B. B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), who has often attacked Acheson for not consulting the Republicans, was not present at the meeting.

Russia May Have Set Date for War, Gen. Kenney Says

Wichita, Kans., May 1 (U.P.)—Air Force Gen. George C. Kenney said today he believes war with Russia is coming, with Russia as the attacker.

Kenney, wartime head of Allied Air Forces in the Pacific, declared Russian leaders "probably" have gone so far as to set a year for the attack.

He told the Wichita Rotary Club the situation now is so "explosive" war could be touched off "at any moment" by a diplomatic blunder.

Aggressive nations "usually go to war when they have war power sufficient that they're pretty sure they can win," he told newsmen earlier.

"I don't think they (the Soviet) are in that position now. I think that they're trying to reach that point as fast as they can."

2 Rallies Kept Under Control

D. Taylor, Berlin commandant, and other American and British observation planes circled to spot the least gesture to invade the Western sectors.

It may be different at the Whitsun weekend of May 26-28, when Communist youth organizations may or may not make good their threats that 500,000 will "march on Berlin." Today they were completely engrossed with the pro-Soviet pageantry on the East side.

Western Crowd Orderly

In West Berlin the thousands streamed to the Teirgarten in pairs, dozens and family groups as to a picnic.

They massed in front of the burned-out Reichstag and heard 90 minutes of fiery speeches by Mayor Reuter, Christian Democratic Leader Jakob Kaiser and Irving Brown, European representative of the American Federation of Labor. Then they were told to go home peacefully.

The huge crowd thundered cheers at every mention of "freedom for Berlin from Communist tyranny," calls for a United Germany, and restoration of eastern territories.

Before the demonstration there were a few minor incidents. Seven East Berlin railway police were arrested at a station just inside the American sector after an argument over posting Communist placards.

Three other Eastern policemen voluntarily deserted, saying they could not bear the Communist pressure in their force.

Connally Opposes Filling Dollar Gap With U. S. Money

By The Associated Press

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said last night he is not in favor of filling Europe's dollar gap with American dollars.

Connally's statement was made public after Secretary of State Acheson told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a closed session he will be seeking a united front on Europe's problems at meetings with British and French foreign ministers next week.

According to Connally, these problems include "plans for expression of our interest in the development of a healthy European economy and cooperative steps by sovereign nations to achieve that goal."

Connally, who heads the Foreign Relations group, made it clear in an interview recorded by U. S. News and World Report that he thinks it is too early to begin talking about a successor to the Marshall Plan, scheduled to end in 1952.

"I've had the 'dollar gap' all my life—it can't be filled," Connally observed. "I'm not in favor of filling the 'dollar gap' with American dollars. That's what some of them would like to do."

IT WAS a wonderful day, that's all.

A women's specialty store on F st. displayed models in bathing suits, and a music store had some expensive, turnover record players in the window.

A drugstore on 14th st. featured 10 ounces of orange juice for 15 cents. A penny could still buy a stick of chewing gum. For a nickel you had your choice of newspapers.

A fine day for a walk, and no charge whatsoever for a seat in the sun in Lafayette Park.

The tulips were in full bloom outside the Carlton Hotel. Nobody had time to look at them, though. Bus and auto traffic was heavy in the afternoon. Pedestrains walked right on by.

THE DAILY WORKER'S top story for the day began:

"Millions of men and women will parade for peace today as the struggle against a new war keynotes the traditional May Day celebrations throughout the world. In Moscow, the greatest May Day parade of them all . . ."

In Washington, it was just a perfect day for a walk.

An 11th st. appliance store had a monster of a kitchen range on display. A great porcelain affair, it was, unpriced, with four burners, six drawers and a top-of-the-stove oven with controls like a television set.

ALL OVER TOWN there were sounds of building. A dump truck near the Statler nearly tied up traffic on 16th st. unloading soil for three trees planted near the curb.

They have new window casings in at the White House. They're unpainted and they look strange and raw in the sunlight.

There were no flags flying outside the Soviet Embassy on 16th st. The only touches of color came from two small, bright crimson bushes on either side of the doorway, and a big maroon Cadillac—Diplomatic Tags 313—straddling an areaway at the side of the embassy.

THE DISTRICT Recreation Department said it didn't have a single celebration scheduled for yesterday. There'd be plenty of others throughout the month, said an aide, but none on May 1.

Gordon Junior High School, meantime, invites the public to attend its "Fifth Annual Dogwood Festival" Wednesday at the school playground, 34th st. and Wisconsin ave. nw. Time is 1:30 p. m.

The only May pole in evidence yesterday was one at the Richard Montgomery High School in Rockville. Patricia O'Brien, 18, was queen, and Bob Dulle, 19, was king.

"NEW YORK workers will be streaming into Union Square for hours today," the Daily Worker said, "in the great annual May Day demonstration for peace and freedom. Tens of thousands of trade unionists are expected to be in line . . ."

On Page 1, the "weather box" reads: "Marching Weather from 2 p. m. on."

Two striking United Press telegraphers, picketing outside the National Press Building, talked as they walked with a third man.

He said, "What we wanted was $1.70. We settled for $1.60."

One of the picketers replied: "Well, what we want . . ."

AND AS FOR the weather, the hottest it got in Washington yesterday was an unpolitical 72 degrees at 4:20 p. m. The lowest was 46 at 12:45 p. m

A Government agency, the Weather Bureau, expected it would go down to 46 again overnight and rise to 73 today. The agency reported that today will turn out pretty much as yesterday—partly cloudy and mild.

Sort of day when a bunch of teenagers play baseball in a field behind the White House as they did yesterday.

In short, a swell day to take a walk and squint into the sun.

Stalin Sees Red Air Show

Demonstrations carried placards demanding "bread and peace."

It was estimated more than 300,000 marched in a six-hour military and workers' parade in Prague, Czechoslovakia. President Gottwald declared the camp of "peace" is now much stronger than the camp of warmongers.

Red China staged "the greatest May Day parade China has even seen" in Pieping, a Communist broadcast said. It said the Communist leader, Mao Tse-tung, received the salute of 200,000 marchers.

Truman Discusses Legislative Plans With Hill Leaders

President Truman went over legislature plans with his congressional leaders yesterday preparatory to taking off Monday in a 6,400-mile stumping tour.

He conferred at the White House with Speaker Rayburn (Tex.), Senate Majority Leader Lucas (Ill.), and House Majority Leader McCormack (Mass.).

Rayburn said the progress of the appropriation bill was discussed. He predicted House passage by next week. He said the appropriations bill will be followed by consideration of some of the reorganization proposals.

"And we've got to get out a road authorization bill before June 30 as well as a tax bill," Rayburn commented.

He said he expects action on taxes "pretty soon" after the Ways and Means Committee finishes its hearings.

Police Chief 'Shot' During Coup by 'Reds'

Mosinee, Wis., May 1 (U.P.).—The Red Star of Russia fluttered over this bustling Wisconsin village today as strongarm "guerilla" bands ground 2000 residents under the heel of a mock Communist boot.

The mayor was hauled from bed in his polka-dot pajamas and forced with a gun in his back to "surrender" the town.

The police chief was "shot" summarily when he refused to surrender his two-man police force.

"Red agents" invaded every strata of Mosinee's social and business life in a one-day demonstration of what life would be like under Communist rule.

But while citizens plunged enthusiastically into the first phases of the mock revolution, some democratic ways later reasserted themselves.

Restaurants which had forced all patrons on a diet of black bread and potato soup loosened up their menus under the pressure of competition.

Grocery stores, however, adhered strictly to the rationing program and housewives lined up for several hours in front of the permit bureau to obtain special authorization for food they needed.

The invaders were forced to suppress a "black market" in sugar that sprang up.

The demonstration was sponsored and carried out by American Legionnaires, aided by the technical advice of two high former members of the United States Communist Party, Joseph Zack Kornfeder and Benjamin Gitlow.

"Commissar" Gitlow, once chief of the party in this country, negotiated the surrender of the town from Mayor Ralph Kronewetter while the Red flag was hoisted. But in the confusion the invaders forgot to haul down the Stars and Stripes from atop the City Hall.

Gitlow, speaking in a muddy football field designated "Red Square," hailed the conquest of Mosinee as the first step in the eventual Red seizure of the United States, Canada and Mexico.

The guerilla bands—of Legionnaires—dragged Kronewetter and Police Chief Carl Gewiss from their homes to the City Hall, and Gewiss was "shot" with an unloaded pistol when he shouted, "Never!" to demands that he surrender the police force.

The guerillas seized the library, closed the schools and padlocked the churches.

They stopped the streamlined train Hiawatha, held the engineer at gunpoint and roamed the train demanding travel permits.

$278,619 General Budget Given Falls Church Council

A general fund budget of $278,619 for the fiscal year beginning July 1 was submitted to the Falls Church city council last night by City Manager Roy F. Dunn.

The budget lists identical revenue and proposed expenditures.

The estimated revenue is up only $315 over the revenue for the fiscal year of 1948-49, but the estimated expenditures will top expenditures of 1948-49 by $47,297.

Dunn also presented the proposed budget of the Falls Church school board for the fiscal year 1950-51, calling for an estimated expenditure of $226,494 and anticipating receipts of $296,456.

This represents an estimated increase of $82,870 in receipts over the fiscal year ending June 30, and an estimated increase of $62,907 in expenditures over the current fiscal year.

It was agreed tentatively that the city council will meet with the school board Thursday to discuss the school budget.

In connection with the general fund budget, Miss Jewel Drickamer, Falls Church librarian, appeared before the council to explain why the library is asking a budget of $23,040 for the new fiscal year as compared to the current $9825 budget.

The library, she said, is ill-equipped in general and needs new books, rebinding of others and a trained assistant for child guidance.

The city would pay only $21,215 of the proposed $23,040 budget. The remainder comes from State aid and from overdue assessments.

Wife Charged With Murder Of Veteran

A 33-year-old World War II veteran was stabbed to death at 7:15 a. m. yesterday, an hour after he had posted $5 collateral on a disorderly conduct charge.

Police said the man's estranged wife, Mrs. Carrie Thomas, 29, of 2014 Maryland av. ne., admitted the slaying. She was charged with murder.

Andrew E. Thomas, 33, had returned to the Maryland avenue address, after posting the bond, and resumed a quarrel that had led to his arrest, Mrs. Thomas said.

She said he started slapping her 14-year-old daughter by a previous marriage and threatened the girl with a butcher knife, police reported.

Police said Mrs. Thomas admitted grabbing the knife and stabbing Thomas once. He was pronounced dead at the scene by a Casualty Hospital physician.

Mrs. Thomas said the knife was the same one he had used to slash her face six months ago, according to police.

A coroner's inquest was set for 11:30 a. m. today.

House Votes Tighter Curb on Codes Data

The House yesterday passed and sent to the White House a Senate-approved bill tightening the laws against revealing American secret codes.

The bill makes it a crime to reveal either a secret U. S. code or the methods used by this country to break other codes in cases where there was no intent to injure the nation.

Under present law, intent to injure the United States must be shown.

Roy Davis Urges State Roads Probe

Maryland State Senator Roy Tasco Davis last night called for an investigation of the state roads program.

Davis, mentioned as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination at the September 11 primaries, made the demand in a talk at a meeting sponsored by the Montgomery County Young Republican Club. About 25 persons attended the meeting in the Bethesda County Building.

The speaker said the State Roads Commission announced recently it could finish only half the construction program embarked upon in 1947, because of increased costs. He asserted that costs had not increased and declared an investigation to be in order.

Other actions urged by Davis:

1. Building of State-operated junior colleges.
2. Building of vocational schools for Negroes and whites.
3. More control by the Legislature over special funds.
4. Simplification of budgetary procedure.

Virginia Man Killed

Staunton, Va., May 1 (AP).—William Ambrose Smith, about 70, of Brands Va., was killed instantly here today when he was struck by the westbound Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad passenger train.

Last of British Jinx Jets Kills Pilot in Crash

Blackbushe Airport, England, May 1 (AP).—The last of the ill-fated De Havilland jets known as the DH-108—first British plane to fly faster than sound—crashed today. The pilot bailed out too late and was killed.

Much of the research which resulted in the building of the world's first jet airliner, the De Havilland Comet, was done in the 108s.

The first of the three experimental craft, tailless and with swept-back wings, blew up over the Thames Estuary four years ago, killing Capt. Geoffrey De Havilland, son of the firm's founder.

A second came apart in the air near Farnborough, England, in February, killing a test pilot.

A witness said he saw the one today dive to the ground on the outskirts of Blackbushe Airport.

"The pilot jumped for it and his parachute opened all right," the witness said, "but he was too low."

The pilot was identified as Squadron Leader G. E. C. Genders, 30, a wartime Royal Air Force fighter ace.

On May 21, 1949, Test Pilot John Derry set a world record of 605.23 miles per hour for 100 kilometers (62.5 miles) over a closed course in one of the DH-108s.

Electric Sleep Aids Mental Cases, Psychiatrists Told

Detroit, May 1 (AP).—Electric sleep that is helping many troubled minds was described to the American Psychiatric Association today.

A piece of metal, usually copper, with an electric wire attached, is placed on each side of a person's head. A barely perceptible electric current is switched on. It is not painful, and the doctors said people don't object.

They fall quickly into a deep, dreamless sleep. Some results were reported by Doctors Marion M. Estes and Harvey M. Cleckley of the Medical College of Georgia at Athens.

They treated 110 persons when electric shock and other forms of shock treatment had not done well. Anxieties which had troubled some patients for 18 months disappeared. Depressed feelings improved. Split personality was helped.

Other troubles that got better were involutional psychoses, the depressions of later life, like imagining food does not digest, or that your heart is bad, when it has nothing wrong. Also helped were numerous vague mental troubles, such as lying for no reason, and being unable to profit by your own mistakes.

Dr. Marcus P. Rosenblum tried this sleep on 60 GIs at the Veterans' Hospital, Lyons, N. J. He said memories improved.

In Toronto, Canada, electric sleep is preventing the mental attacks known as manic-depressive states. Dr. George H. Stevenson of the University of Western Ontario said the sleep is given at first once a month. Finally two to four times a year is enough.

A new drug, C-10, for electric shock treatment, was reported by Doctors William L. Holt, jr., Max Rinkel, M. Nicholson and Harry C. Solomon, Boston. A handicap of electric shock is convulsions which are dangerous to persons with bad hearts, broken bones, sprains and spinal deformities. The new drug relaxes muscles so convulsions do no harm.

You know Skylark is fresh-because it's

DATED FRESH EVERY DAY!

HERE'S WHY WE DATE SKYLARK:

It's your proof, your guarantee that your loaf of Skylark was freshly baked for today. Most other brands do not carry this proof. Always buy Skylark, in the red and white, candy-striped wrapper. You always know that Skylark is first-day fresh!

Each day's sale of Skylark is carefully estimated in advance. Then, Skylark's expert bakers mix all the fine ingredients, then pop the baking pans into the oven. Finally, as each toasty-brown loaf comes out, it is wax wrapped and sealed with a special end seal.

This end seal carries the day, Monday, or Tuesday, and so on. Then the loaves are rushed to your Safeway Store, just in time for sale. If there should be any unsold dated bread at the end of the day, it is removed—never again sold as fresh bread. No guesswork with Skylark—you know it's first-day fresh!

Skylark BREAD

DATED FRESH EVERY DAY!

Guaranteed

YOUR MONEY BACK IF SKYLARK ISN'T THE FINEST BREAD YOU'VE EVER EATEN

Not only do we guarantee that SKYLARK is fresh every day, but we guarantee you can't buy a better bread. If, for any reason, you are not satisfied with SKYLARK bread, we ask you to drop into any Safeway store and your money will be refunded immediately and without question.

Md. Phone Workers Accept Minor Gains

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Maryland union operators last night signed a new contract with the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., after obtaining minor concessions and no wage increases.

The agreement was the second between a Bell Telephone system subsidiary and an affiliate of the CIO Communications Workers of America, and indicated that the 23 other disputes soon would be resolved with new work contracts.

The lone wage improvement won for the 4100 Maryland telephone traffic employes is an increase in the rate of pay given regular operators in taking over a supervisory task.

Another company concession gives union officers more liberal time off from work. Three other technical changes were included in the contract.

Both company and union agreed to withdraw suits against each other filed in the Federal Courts, and before the NLRB.

The agreement was reached at an 11 p. m. meeting last night after Federal Mediator Richard Goodrick, of Washington, kept the negotiators in continuous session for more than 20 hours on Sunday, and nine hours yesterday.

Locally, negotiations between the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and Divisions 36 and 50 of CWA were on dead center. There have been no talks between union and management here since April 25.

Last demand of Division 36, representing the operators, was for a settlement along the lines of the $2.50 a week awarded to New Jersey Bell employes by an arbitration board. Division 50 has given up its wage demands, and instead asked for reduction of progression schedules and changes in job reclassifications.

Strike Halts Construction In Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., May 1 (AP).—Construction work in the Buffalo area came to a virtual standstill today as an estimated 20,000 union members affiliated with the AFL Building Trades Council struck for more money.

The council seeks an hourly wage hike averaging 25 cents for members of 20 out of its 22 unions. Only the painters and electricians came to terms with employers' groups prior to the expiration of the old contracts last midnight.

Pickets were on duty at al lmajor projects, effectively halting work which probably tops 100 million dollars in value. Painters and electricians worked only on jobs which did not involve the other unions.

In Syracuse, meanwhile, about 400 AFL steamfitters and plumbers also struck in support of demands for a 25-cent hourly wage boost over the current scale of $2.40 an hour.

Wages under the old contracts in Buffalo ranged from about $1.65 an hour for laborers to about $2.50 for bricklayers.

Chrysler Negotiators In Marathon Endeavor

Detroit, May 1 (AP).—Negotiators failed to agree late today on how close they were to a settlement of the 97-day Chrysler strike.

Bargaining teams for Chrysler Corp. and the CIO United Auto Workers pushed their marathon, nonstop negotiations past the 51-hour mark without final agreement.

Herman L. Weckler, Chrysler vice president and general manager, indicated only technical wording of a new contract was holding up strike settlement and a back-to-work parade.

Utica Transportation Paralyzed by Strike

Utica, N. Y., May 1 (U.P.).—Drivers and mechanics of the Utica Transit Corporation went on strike today, paralizing public transportation facilities in an area of 150,000 residents.

The drivers pulled their buses off the streets at 2 a. m. in efforts to enforce demands for a 17-cent-an-hour wage increase. They turned down an arbitrator's award of five cents an hour.

Telegraphers Picket United Press Offices

AFL telegraphers and maintenance men, striking for higher pay, yesterday established round-the-clock picket lines at 35 domestic bureaus of the United Press.

Locally, 21 members of the Commercial Telegraphers Union set up a two-man picket line at the 14th and F st. entrances of the National Press Building, where the UP has its Washington news bureau.

The 265 United Press wire men walked out Sunday night, just before midnight, after turning down a last-minute offer of $2.20 a week increase in pay. The union, which originally asked for $15, dropped in demand from $7.50 to $6.50 before negotiations broke down. The telegraphers' present pay scale is $90 a week.

In New York, the United Press reported that 30 minutes after the walkout it had manned its teletype machines with supervisory help. Both in New York and here, UP service was reported by company to be "almost normal."

Finley Heads New Historic Shrine Group

David E. Finley, director of the National Gallery of Art, was elected chairman of the newly organized National Trust for Historic Preservation in the United States yesterday.

The group, authorized by an Act of Congress last October, met in the historic Octagon House, now owned by the American Institute of Architects, to elect officers and adopt by-laws.

Its purpose is to facilitate public participation in preservation of sites, buildings and objects of national significance. A charitable, educational and nonprofit organization, it may receive donations of sites and buildings and administer them for the public benefit.

Such a group has been in existence in England for the past 54 years.

Finley helped dedicate Hampton, 167-year-old mansion near Towson, Md., on Sunday as a national historic site. He was largely responsible for restoration of the residence, which has been described as an outstanding example of eighteenth century American-Palladian architecture.

Other officers elected yesterday were Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, USA (ret.), vice president of George Washington University, and George A. McAneny, former mayor of New York, as vice chairmen, and Ronald F. Lee, chief historian, National Park Service, as secretary.

Other members of the Trust's board present at the all-day meeting were Horace M. Albright, president, United States Potash Co.; Robert Woods Bliss, former president, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.; Harry A. Bullis, chairman of the board, Gen. Mills; Mrs. Frances B. Crowninshield, noted preservationist; C. Girard Davidson, Assistant Secretary of Interior and H. Alexander Smith, jr., Baltimore attorney.

Board members not present were Herbert C. Hoover, former President of the United States; George C. Marshall, president, American Red Cross; John Nicholas, former Under Secretary of the Navy for Air, and Eugene Black, president, World Bank.

The Trust was proposed in November 1948 by the National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings during an annual meeting here.

Alexandria Rescue Unit To Mark 20th Year

Appointment of Melvin R. Gray as chairman of a committee to arrange for celebration for the twentieth anniversary of Alexandria's Fire Rescue Squad No. 1 was announced yesterday by Harry A. Dugan, squad president.

The two-day celebration will include memorial ceremonies at the grave of the squad's founder, Thomas W. McHugh, on Friday, May 12, and a parade and grand ball the following day.

Baby Boy Left in Car of Bachelor

John L. Singleton, 45, of 1106 57th ave. Chapel Oaks, Md., got a shock yesterday when he returned to his car parked outside Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

On the front seat of the car was a baby boy, less than a month old, wrapped in a blue wool blanket and wearing a white gown and blue booties.

Singleton, a bachelor, who is an outpatient at the hospital and had gone there for a checkup, declared later:

"I didn't know whether the baby was dead or not. The windows were all rolled up and he was awfully still. A nurse came out, picked up the baby, clucked him under the chin and he started to cry. I felt better."

Taken into the hospital's pediatric division, the infant was found to be in excellent condition and was transferred to the municipal hospital.

Baltimore police checked on all babies and mothers who had been released in the last 24 hours from maternity wards at Johns Hopkins and at Sinai Hospital, across the street, but developed no clew as to the identity of the abandoned infant.

Court Orders Man's Return To Face Trial

Lewis A. Johnson, 42, yesterday lost his United States Court of Appeals fight to prevent his return to Georgia where he escaped after 10 months while awaiting trial for burglary.

The court split 2 to 1. Judges E. Barrett Prettyman and Bennett C. Clark contended the courts here lack the power to determine whether a fugitive's constitutional rights have been breached by penal action in the demanding State. Judge David L. Bazelon dissented.

Judge Prettyman wrote that Johnson's rights could be just as well protected by the Georgia state and Federal courts and that the Supreme Court of the United States remains a "watchman" over the result.

Johnson, alias Lewis A. Kalap, contended that during his incarceration certain elected officials tried to get money from his wife and that he was moved to three jails. He said he was the victim of cruel and inhuman treatment, in that he was beaten, starved and denied clothing or bedding.

Prettyman wrote:

"The case before us concerns Georgia. The next might concern Alabama. The question there might be whether casually attended, uninformed laborers with chains attached to their legs, at work in the open air on country roads, are undergoing cruel and unusual punishment. The next case might concern New York or Illinois, and the question might be whether serried, shaved, and numbered robots in the monotony of gray walls, in occasional solitary confinement in darkened cells on bread and water, are suffering cruel and unusual punishment."

Prettyman said it would be "unwarranted arrogance for us to ascribe to ourselves virtue superior to that of other courts . . . We have not the slightest semblance of authority over such courts."

Teachers Split on 2 Sick Leave Bills

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

District school teachers differed sharply yesterday on two proposals that would give them additional sick-leave benefits.

The split in the solid wall teachers have put up in favor of liberalized leave was evident as representatives of more than a dozen teacher organizations testified at a hearing held by the education and fiscal subcommittees of the Senate District Committee.

Teacher groups affiliated with the American Federation of Teachers (AFL) supported a bill introduced by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), while member organizations of the Joint Legislative Council favored proposals presented by School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning and the Board of Education.

Tangles With Corning

Senator Johnston closely questioned teachers who favored the Corning proposal and at one point tangled with Dr. Corning.

"You wouldn't mind teachers having the same privileges you have, would you?" Johnston asked after Corning testified against the Johnston measure. Teachers who crowded the small Capitol hearing room applauded vigorously.

"I wouldn't object to teachers having anything providing it is in the public interest," Dr. Corning said.

The superintendent said the Johnston bill would make it possible for teachers to be absent as much as 130 days in a school year. Johnston pointed out that school officials, including Dr. Corning, have up to 150 days.

Would Extend Present Leave

Provisions of the Johnston bill would extend present leave regulations and in addition give teachers the right to 50 additional days, provided they pay the salary of substitutes.

Corning's proposal would permit teachers leave for religious observances and allow three days a year for pressing personal business.

It would amend the present law to allow teachers to accumulate their 10 days of leave each year until they have 75. The present limit is 60. It also would credit teachers with one day of leave for each year of service to the schools. Now a teacher receives one day for each year with a mixmum of 20.

Another provision of the Corning plan would give teachers the right to borrow ahead 25 days, 5 more than the present limit.

Representatives of the American Federation of Teachers charged that the Corning plan failed to give the protection against long illnesses that the Johnston plan did.

The committees also heard speakers on two other teacher bills. The first, aproved by the Board of Education, would correct inequalities in the present teacher salary act by giving master of art degree salary credit to teachers who lost this credit when the present salary scale was adopted.

The second bill, oposed by the school board, would give placement on the salary scale to all teachers according to their years of service. In opposing the measure, Dr. Corning said it would cost the District two million dollars.

Aid to 'Critical' School Areas Considered

The House Labor and Education Committee in executive session yesterday considered H.R. 7940, a bill that would provide Federal aid for "critical" school areas. Action on the bill was postponed until Wednesday. The bill, introduced by Representative Cleveland M. Bailey (D., W. Va.), would establish Federal responsibility for areas in which activities of Federal agencies have created school problems.

The committee also approved a bill to change the congressional charter of the Presbyterian Congregation of Georgetown to let the trustees fix the annual meeting date, and increase from $3000 to $25,000 the charter limitation on annual income from property owned by the congregation.

McMillan said the committee deferred action on a bill to let District public school teachers take part in the foreign teacher exchange program. He said a school board report is to be obtained on the bill. McMillan said the committee also deferred action pending a Bureau of Internal Revenue report on a bill to exempt from Federal income taxes the retirement pay of certain police and firemen here.

The bill applies to men who had duty-connected disabilities, but who were retired without an opportunity to appear before the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, and missed the tax-exempt benefit of a disability retirement.

Wire Companies Hit At Gambling Inquiry

the 5800 non-Bell phone companies with some 7½ million phones. A. T. & T. has about 41 million phones.

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), sitting in with the committee, commented that Bell "isn't as innocent" as "you would have it appear." He and two Western Union officials differed over the extent of the telegraph company's cooperation, or lack of it, with State authorities, especially in Florida.

The two Western Union officials were Walter W. Semingsen, assistant vice president, and John W. Waters, general attorney.

The Senators were particularly irked when Semingsen repeatedly said he wouldn't have "the slightest idea" as to whether horserace information going over Western Union leased wires to local "drops" or outlets was being used for gambling.

Semingsen presented a list of various leased wires, including those to Continental Press Service of Cleveland, the big race wire firm. One drop, that in Chicago, showed 290 customers. Semingsen said he didn't know what they used the information for.

The only Washington account in the Western Union listing was the Armstrong Daily Sports, receiving from the same firm in New York.

The phone and telegraph officials argued that transmission of gambling information across State lines is not illegal and that whenever local authorities come up with the facts and ask for action they get it from the companies. All pointed out that under public utility laws they are bound to give service to one and all without discrimination but that they can cut off any illegal use of service.

Landon argued that to put the burden of enforcing an antigambling law on the utility firms would "not be in the public interest." He said it would require a "censorship over millions of telephone conversations" thus violating the traditional confidential use of the phones.

The Bell executive said his company considers it "a dangerous and unsound thing both from the public's point of view and our own for a telephone company to assume the function of law enforcement itself."

Bailey agreed, declaring the proposal would turn phone companies "into police agencies" which would have to "monitor all calls, regardless of their intimacy and privacy."

Senators Tobey and Kefauver said, however, that the phone companies could keep tab on the use of their lines through checks on the number of calls, billings for long distance calls and other internal bookkeeping.

Semingsen said Western Union would not be justified in refusing to lease wires "merely because the subscriber might furnish the transmitted information to others, who may use the information for an illegal purpose." He said the firm must have "specific notification from Federal or local authorities" of illegal use or intended use before cutting off or denying service to a customer.

The phone officials reported that bookies or other gamblers often have skilled technicians who move phones from one place to another illegally and that the company sometimes doesn't discover this for a long time. Landon said the company had never put a phone in a tree, as a witness had testified was done outside a race track to "steal" results.

No Larceny Prosecutions

Kefauver wanted to know if any Bell company has ever prosecuted anyone for larceny in moving its phones. Landon said he didn't know of any case.

As to charges by Andrew J. Kavenaugh, Superintendent of Public Safety at Wilmington, Del., that the phone company had knowingly allowed gamblers to use its lines, Landon had a long report ready. He said that since Kavenaugh's testimony two weeks ago phone officials had talked to him and he had said he now has the company and that there are no locations from which he has "no complaint whatsoever" against asked that phones be removed.

The Senatotrs will hear today from representatives of Continental Press, Trans-Radio Press, Daily Racing Form, Armstrong Daily Sports and the Thoroughbred Racing Association. They hope to wind up the hearings this week.

Scheve Plotted Murder Of 'Snags,' Says Rigsbee

wasn't interested in working for him because he was satisfied with the job he had.

On the witness stand the major part of the day, the defendant told a packed courtroom of months of harassment by Scheve, a convicted gambler, who "threatened to kill me 13 or maybe 15 times."

Just two weeks before the "incident," as Rigsbee referred to the fatal shooting of Scheve, "Big Joe" stuck a gun in his stomach, Rigsbee said.

Says He Was Slapped

"I liked to have passed out. I asked him why he did those things to me and I told him to go ahead and kill me. He slapped me. I wanted to hit him back, but I was scared," Rigsbee told the jury of 11 men and 1 woman.

Two nights before the shooting, Scheve again threatened to kill him, according to the defendant.

Then, on the night of December 9, the two men met in a downtown restaurant, Riggsbee said.

"Scheve told me he was going to kill me before the night was over," Rigsbee said. When they met up with each other a few hours later in the poolroom at 913 9th st. nw., Rigsbee said Scheve pulled a knife and bragged: "I'm going to kill some tough, tough so-and-so and his name is Rigsbee."

Visited Bus Terminal

"I left the poolroom and went up to the bus terminal to meet a friend, but I missed him. So I returned to the poolroom, because I wanted to collect $90 somebody owed me," Rigsbee said.

"When I walked in Scheve pushed a guy named Duncan aside, said he was going to kill me and reached for his pocket. I reached in my pocket, pulled out my gun, and it exploded. Then I went to pieces. I thought at first I was the one who had been shot," he continued.

He described how he walked into the street, handed the gun to a policeman and stated: "I just killed a man in there."

His story differed from the statement he made to police after his arrest.

Denies Buying Gun

At that time he said that when he left the poolroom he went to the bus terminal and bought the gun from an unidentified Negro. Yesterday he insisted he had carried the gun two weeks because he was afraid of Scheve.

He said police "put words in my mouth" about getting the gun at the bus terminal.

Rigsbee admitted he has a police record. He served two years of probation at one time after pleading guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit robbery, and paid a $25 fine another time on a simple assault charge, he said.

Attorney's Efforts Denied

Efforts of Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin to introduce "Big Joe" Scheve's police record were stopped by Judge Alexander Holtzoff, who ruled the record was inadmissible after it was brought into court by Inspector Robert S. Bryant, Chief of the Detective Bureau.

Closing arguments are scheduled today, when the trial resumes at 1:45 p. m. The case is expected to go to the jury in the late afternoon.

House Passes D. C. Daylight Time Bill

McMillan Backs It

House District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) gave the DST bill a lukewarm sendoff into House debate, but wound up voting for it.

He said personally he had always opposed DST as "useless legislation," but that since a majority of large cities had shifted to DST the day before. "I expect to vote for this bill against my best judgment."

He said Congress, as result of the delay in starting DST here, was being criticized for confusing time throughout the country.

"I agree there has been some confusion, but I don't think it was caused by Congress," he said.

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) leading the attack against the bill, said DST "is a complete delusion and a myth."

O'Hara Against It

O'Hara converted the Commissioner's poll on DST into a declaration of majority opposition to DST. The Commissioners poll showed about 90,000, favoring DST, about 30,000 against it, and some 17,000 saying "don't care."

But, said O'Hara, there were 200,000 ballots. Counting in the balance of people who did not vote, O'Hara argued, the poll showed an "obvious majority" against daylight saving.

O'Hara said newspapers and radio stations had carried on propaganda for DST here. He said a "vociferous few" who feel that Washington is not the Nation's Capital but belongs to the people of the District are insisting they be given what they want, even if "it makes confusion all over the United States."

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) said the House debate was an instance of "here we go again." He said he wanted to call up the Senate bill in the House, but was barred by the rules of the day.

The House passed the bill by suspending the rules and giving the measure better than a two-thirds vote. Klein pointed out that a feature of the rules suspension proceeding was that there could be no amendment to the bill.

The House bill was introduced by Klein—as a second choice to letting the District have DST every summer.

Between enactment of the DST bill and the changing of the District clocks, the legislation requires the District Commissioners to issue an order putting DST into effect.

Lattimore's Actions Called 'Like Red's'

her, she had broken, she said, with the Communist Party seven years before. How was it that she seemed to be repeating the "masquerade" that she had asserted the Communists were trying to put across?

Mrs. Utley, 52, insisted that what she said was a simple mistake, but not a mouthing of the Communist line. She had thought, wrongly, she admitted, that there was a "real united-front policy." But later, when there was abundant evidence that this was not true, she changed her mind, whereas Lattimore kept on writing the same theme, she charged.

"Expert at Double Talk"

As for the fact that the Far Eastern expert who is McCarthy's "key case" never himself actually said the Chinese Communists were "agrarian reformers" or the like, Mrs. Utley had a ready explanation.

It was that he was an "expert at double talk" and "subtly" insinuated the idea. Furthermore, she said, the omissions in Lattimore's writings were revealing—he never pointed out that the Communists were subject to Moscow control. While he himself did not say that Russia was good, true and beautiful, he was forever quoting others who said so, or else saying that Russia had a great appeal to the people of China.

Her conclusion was that "Owen Lattimore can be said to have done more than anyone else in poisoning the wells of opinion" in America in the wrong view of China. The proper term for him was the "Judas cow," who knowingly or unknowingly leads others to the slaughter—in this case the turning over of 400 million Chinese to Communist slavery.

Citations Confuse Hearers

By quoting from Lattimore's articles and those published in magazines that he edited Mrs. Utley contended that he followed the Russian line toward Chiang, changing with the Nazi-Soviet pact of 1939, and again "when Russia attacked Germany" in June, 1941.

The citations she quoted to sustain her point appeared to be as difficult for the subcommittee to follow as they were for her other listeners. Irked by her testimony, subcommittee chairman Tydings (D., Md.), repeatedly called her back to task and angrily told her to forego giving her opinion and to supply, instead, "facts — F-A-C-T-S."

Mrs. Utley described how she had joined the British Communist Party in the late 'twenties and in 1930 had gone to Russia with her husband, a Russian, but not a Communist.

She worked for a while for the Cominform, but never joined the Russian Communist Party and after a few months, having seen "the truth," ceased being a Communist.

She stayed on in Russia because her husband could not get out. Her husband was later arrested and she left Russia in 1936. She kept quiet for a while, knowing any attack would cost her husbands life. In 1939, however, she resolved to write what she knew, regardless of the consequences. She said she presumes her husband is dead

Lattimores Kind to Her

She met Lattimore first, she said, in 1936 and felt that at that time he was not a Communist. But he began following the party line shortly afterward. He and Mrs. Lattimore were "very kind" to her when she came to Baltimore in 1938 or 1939, but early in 1940, "Lattimore appeared to have become an out-and-out defender of the Soviet Union" and she ended her friendship with him.

Mrs. Utley said she thought Lattimore concluded the Communists would be victorious and he wanted to be on the winning side.

Mrs. Utley described her present occupation as that of free-lance writer, lecturer and researcher. She lives at 1717 20th st. nw.

Lattimore himself will appear before the subcommittee at 10:30 a. m. today to answer the accusations made against him since he first testified on April 6 in reply to McCarthy's charges.

Editor Backs Lattimore

Associate Editor Demaree Bess of the Saturday Evening Post testified after Mrs. Utley concluded. He was called by Lattimore as a character witness, and testified he never saw the "slightest evidence that Lattimore was becoming even the mildest form of 'fellow traveler.'"

Bess said Lattimore was his "house guest" in Moscow in 1936 and that there was "nothing mysterious" about the trip. Commenting on McCarthy's statement that a Soviet intelligence agent had bragged of receiving valuable information through Lattimore and the Institute of Pacific Relations, the editor said:

"All that proves—in my opinion—was that the Soviet intelligence officers were as smart as I myself was at the time, because I too was getting valuable background material for my articles from the institute's specialized reports and from conversations with Lattimore and other Americans working for the institute."

Virginian Held For Slashing Girl

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MISS FLORENCE HOWARD of Detroit was recovering yesterday in Newton, Kans., after her throat was slashed as she dozed in her seat aboard a train in the railroad station there. Police arrested 20-year-old Joseph Moore of Richmond, Va., who, they said, fled from the train after attacking the girl, also 20. Moore was shot in the back several hours later as he fled from a house in town where baby-sitter Edith Hershberger, 16, was beaten as she slept on a divan

Never Had Any Links to Reds, Adler Testifies

Hartford, Conn., May 1 (AP).—Harmonica Artist Larry Adler denied today that he ever held membership "or anything approaching membership" in an allegedly pro-Communist organization called the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee.

Adler testified in a $200,000 libel suit, brought by himself and Dancer Paul Draper, that he made several appearances for the benefit of the committee, both before and after it was declared subversive by the United States Attorney General.

"I could have played for the American Legion without being a Legionnaire," Adler said. "I have appeared for this organization without being a member of it."

Trial in Second Week

The suit, being tried for the second week in Federal Court, is against Mrs. Esther R. McCullough of Greenwich, Conn. Adler and Draper charge she injured their reputations and caused them to lose engagements by accusing them of pro-Communist activities.

The Joint Anti-Fascist Committee is one of a number of organizations, called Communist fronts by the Attorney General or other Government officials, which Mrs. McCullough has said Draper and Adler "openly supported."

Judge J. Joseph Smith told the jury today, however, that these Justice Department and other citations have no weight in proving that the organizations actually are subversive. The jurors themselves, he said, must decide "whether any group is in fact Communist."

Says He Did Not Know of Aid

Adler said the Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee is the only organization he has aided since its description by the Attorney General as subversive.

Cross-examined by Defense Attorney C. Driscoll Grimes, Adler said he did not know that the committee gave direct aid to Communists or that Gerhart Eisler once drew a salary from it. Eisler is the former Communist underground leader who fled this country as a stowaway to his native Germany.

Adler said he also did not recall a telegram signed by himself and other show world figures and sent to a November 16, 1944, rally of the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship.

Sen. McCarthy's 81 'Red' Cases 2½ Years Old, House Is Told

partment and allegedly pro-Communist or at a minimum poor security risks, were outlined to the Senate in a speech by McCarthy on February 20.

Taken From List of 108

The majority, if not all of them, Karsten said yesterday in a statement and a House speech, are taken from a list of 108 cases considered during the making of fiscal year 1949 appropriations for the State Department by a House Subcommittee on Appropriations. Then, on March 10 and 12, 1948, the same 108 cases were studied by a House Subcommittee on Expenditures in Executive Departments.

Karsten presented a parallel column analysis on nine of the cases to show similarity and often identity in language between McCarthy's statement of the cases and their summary in the 108 list given to the two House Subcommittees.

Karsten's analysis also provided the first suggestion of how McCarthy arrived at a figure—used in various of his Lincoln Day speeches that precipitated the present investigation of Communist infiltration—of "57 card-carrying Communists in the State Department."

Hearings Showed 57 Employed

Of the 108 cases considered by the second House Subcommittee, Karsten said, "hearings developed that 57 of the individuals were employed in March, 1948, and 51 were not employed. Of the 51 not employed, 23 had never worked for the State Department but were applicants for positions." The remaining 28 had resigned or were discharged.

Thus, it appears that in discussing 81 cases in February of this year, McCarthy was actually talking about employes or applicants for State Department jobs as of a date 2½ years ago.

And when he said that there were "now" 57 Communists in the department, he was referring to the fact that two years ago there were 57 people in the State Department who, in preliminary investigation by the department's security division, were thought to be poor security risks.

Investigated and Approved

Many of these, however, were subsequently given a full field investigation by the FBI and were approved by the State Department. As of March, 1948, Karsten said, this was true with respect to more than half of the 57.

As of today, The Washington Post learned yesterday, 40 of the original 108 (and by the same token, of the 57 and of the 81) are still employed by the State Department. All have received full security clearance through the State Department's loyalty procedure, and the postaudit of President's Loyalty Review Board.

Said Karsten:

"The allegation has either been made or the impression conveyed to the American people that these cases Senator McCarthy has in mind are of recent origin. . . . There is nothing new about the majority, if not all, of the cases mentioned by Senator McCarthy.

"Any impression that the American people might have that this is a matter of recent origin is completely erroneous. My analysis of these cases shows that many, if not all of them, were included among the 108 cases investigated.

Would Probe for Hoax

"If so, inquiry should be made as to whether or not a hoax, a deceit or a fraud has been practiced somewhere, by someone, upon the American people."

Karsten said he detested communism "as the most sinister, Godless concept ever conceived to enslave mankind," and that he hated "the deceit, the fraud, the intellectual dishonesty that are the inveterate handmaideps of communism."

But, he said, for the same reasons, "I would have complete contempt for anyone who, through deceit or fraud would seek to inflame and hoodwink the American people with the assertion that the State Department of their Government has harbored or is saturated with Communists.

"I cannot, in good conscience, sit idly by and see the American people confused with distrust of their own Government at a time when our Nation needs the greatest unity of purpose in its history to meet the world menace of Soviet Russia and the slavery and degredation which it would impose upon all mankind."

Woman Accused At Bridges Trial Screams in Court

San Francisco, May 1 (U.P.).—Mrs. Jean Murray, 33-year-old former Communist accused of trying to blackmail a prosecution witness in the Harry Bridges trial, staged a May Day riot of her own in Federal Court here today.

The glib-tongued blonde went berserk during a preliminary court appearance and was carried kicking and fighting from the courtroom screaming, "Workers arise . . . prepare yourselves for the revolution."

Mrs. Murray and her codefendant, Mrs. Betty Teixeria, 29, were in court to have a date set for their trial on charges of attempting to silence Bridges' witness, Mervyn Rathborne, by threatening to tell his wife he had been intimate with them.

The Wreckers

From a news report from our contemporary, the Evening Star, on the ticket line for the Toscanini concert May 25:

> First arrival was . . . He is a student at American University and a Government employe.
> Asked where his Government job was, he said, "State Department," with obvious embarrassment.
> "This is going to be investigated," said someone in the line and everybody laughed.

To us, and we may be very simple, this is equivalent to a soldier being made ashamed of his calling in time of a shooting war.

Tito Looks To Athens

To judge from some comment, Moscow is having it all its own way in the cold war. In the Balkans, however, Russian reverses are piling up, for, with Greece secured, Tito is hinting that he hopes soon to "normalize" relations with Greece, as well as with Italy and Austria. This is a tribute to the newfound strength that has been imparted to Greece. It is also a sign that the naming of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras as Prime Minister was as wise in terms of foreign policy as in those of domestic reconstruction. It is doubtful whether the same suggestion would have come out of Belgrade if the Populist-Liberal regime had stayed in the saddle.

The fact is that not only has Greece been secured from communism, but the Greek army has been restored as a factor in Balkan affairs. Tito knows that. It helps to explain his new respect for Greece. Turkey also knows it, and it would be a good sign if there were a move in Athens to extend close relations to Ankara, as there is to respond to the gesture from Tito. There is plenty of spirit among the Greeks, but some of it is nourished by chauvinism and irredentism. If Plastiras can now develop in their place a foreign policy based upon close and neighborly relations with the nonsatellite countries in the Near East, he will have justified the confidence that his King and country have reposed in him.

Mid-Term Primaries

The primaries in four States today plunge the country deep into the midterm election contest. The voting in Ohio and Indiana as well as in Alabama and Florida may well indicate how the political tides are running. While all the contests seem to be primarily local, there are interesting overtones of national significance, especially in Florida, where Representative Smathers is vigorously challenging Senator Pepper on the "Red" issue. With a demagogic technique said to have been learned from Mr. Pepper himself, the challenger, who was, ironically, once a Pepper protege, is taking full advantage of the domestic repercussions from the cold war. Most of his campaign appears to have been centered in his accusations that Mr. Pepper is an associate of Communists and fellow travelers, a believer in racial equality and a stooge of labor. The Senator has retaliated by saying that Mr. Smathers represents "the forces of economic piracy and special privilege" and that he is a Republican dominated by the DuPont interests. A new record in epithet throwing appears to have been set. If the people are not too disgusted to go to the polls, their verdict is certain to have an effect on the type of campaigning that will be heard between now and November.

In Alabama the question is whether the dominant political machine will reenter the Democratic Party. The Dixiecrat faction which bolted in 1948 and gave the State's electoral vote to Governor Thurmond instead of President Truman is now in control of the State Democratic executive committee. Senator Lister Hill, who appears to be certain of renomination, and Senator Sparkman are trying to get Alabama Democrats back into the national party. Strangely enough, their most powerful argument seems to be that only by staying in the Democratic Party can they hope to defeat President Truman's civil rights legislation. "We know what our most important weapon (against the civil rights bills) is," Mr. Sparkman declared in a recent State-wide broadcast. "It is the ability to work as Democrats." Thus the outcome, whatever it is, is certain to prove embarrassing in Washington.

In Ohio the chief question is who will be nominated to run against Senator Taft, and State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson is generally regarded as having the inside track. In Indiana the chief interest centers in the congressional nominations. The unfortunate thing about all the midterm contests is that they are likely to be waged on the basis of personalities and local issues with little regard for the great national problems confronting the country. If any significant awareness of the underlying national issues emerges it will come as a pleasant surprise.

The McCarthy Record

Dr. Owen Lattimore's clearly deserved rebuttal appearance before the Tydings Subcommittee today should bring to an end the public, or circus, phase of the inquiry into Senator McCarthy's charges. Thereafter, we hope, the subcommittee will retire into the closed sessions with which it should have undertaken its task from the beginning. Perhaps, then, this is a suitable juncture to recall the original McCarthy charges, although the Senator seems anxious to have them forgotten.

The initial charge came in a speech at Wheeling, W. Va. on February 9. "I have here in my hand," Mr. McCarthy was quoted as saying, "a list of 205 that were known to the Secretary of State as being members of the Communist Party and who nevertheless are still working and shaping the policy of the State Department." This was followed by a telegram to President Truman asserting, "I have in my possession the names of 57 Communists who are in the State Department at present." Then, in a four-hour speech to the Senate, February 20, Senator McCarthy declared: "I have approximately 81 cases . . . the names are here." On that occasion, he outlined the cases without disclosing the names, insisting that he had all the data necessary to support his charges. "I shall be willing, happy, and eager," he said, "to go before any committee and give the names and all the information available. I shall refuse to give the source of the information, however."

It can scarcely be recalled too frequently, moreover, that in the same Senate speech, Mr. McCarthy made the following categorical statement: "I will not say anything on the Senate floor which I will not say off the floor. On the day when I take advantage of the security we have on the Senate floor, on that day I will resign from the Senate. Anything I say on the floor of the Senate at any time will be repeated off the floor." Since then, he has named individuals and accused them of atrocious crimes, taking advantage of the security of the Senate. But he has conspicuously failed to repeat the accusations outside the Senate's immunity. And he has not yet resigned.

In his appearances before the Tydings Subcommittee, Senator McCarthy did not provide the information to support his indictment of the 205 or the 57 or the 81. He pleaded that he could not prove his charges unless the FBI would prove them for him by surrendering the confidential investigative records which the President had previously forbidden the agency to surrender. And at last he said he would let his whole case stand or fall on the validity of his accusations concerning Dr. Lattimore whom he called at first the "top espionage agent" in this country and ended by describing as a "bad policy risk."

Dr. Lattimore, it should be remembered, is not and never has been an employe of the State Department. He is a private citizen, recognized throughout the academic profession as one of the foremost authorities on the Far East, who has occasionally submitted memoranda, in response to State Department requests, concerning policy in the area of his experience. Senator McCarthy's case against him rests primarily on the opinions Dr. Lattimore expressed—opinions with which the Senator happens to disagree, although many of them have been abundantly vindicated by events.

Two facts appear to be plain concerning the Lattimore case. One is that it can prove nothing whatever about the validity of Senator McCarthy's charges that there are 205 or 57 or 81 Communists in the State Department. The other is that the Senate of the United States has no business conducting a trial and passing judgment on the "loyalty" of a private citizen. Of course, if this involves the crime of espionage, then such a case should be referred to a grand jury. However, Senator McCarthy has apparently abandoned this charge.

In view of the misrepresentation of Dr. Lattimore as a State Department employe and extravagance of the charges made against him under the Senate's immunity, the Tydings Subcommittee was under an obvious obligation to allow him the opportunity to reply in public. It is now under obligation, as a matter of elementary justice, we think, to give Dr. Lattimore a speedy and unequivocal vindication, and in view of the wide mischief and alarm that have been caused, to make a ringing declaration in behalf of the freedom of inquiry which has been gravely threatened by the Lattimore case.

Story Of China

That China is still equal to chaos, with banditry rife and a new warlordism in an incipient stage, is the inference from reports coming from Hongkong. Christopher Rand, reporting from there in the New York Herald Tribune, estimates that about half of conquered China has lapsed out of Communist control. What has happened is that the Chinese farmer, who was promised a new and greener earth than he had ever known before, is tasting the bitter tea of a failure by Mao Tze-tung to deliver, and, indeed, of more extortion than ever by his new overlords. This is the usual pattern of revolutions in a Malthusian land where intermittent civil war joins with flood and famine as a check on overpopulation.

Actually what goes by the name of communism in China is familiar in Chinese history. It was tried as long ago as 1069, three years after the Normans had captured England. The Emperor, Shen Tsung, a charming person, with a heart-warming desire to help the people, pondered the age-old issue of how to improve their livelihood. But he had neither statecraft nor economic learning. He simply had an instinct for social service—a do-gooder, he would now be called. Accordingly he called in Wang An-shih, one of the scholars who had been crying out for reform and who had acquired a great following among both the literati and the common people. Given carte blanche to do away with the conditions which had reduced the countryside to grinding poverty, Wang tried to make over the nation with a new deal.

To start with, Wang An-shih would have nothing to do with collectivization in spite of a socialist approach. He knew familistic China better than that, though he had all the failings of a theoretician. Wang let the owners stay on their own soil, but gave them price supports, an ever-normal granary, orderly marketing, and seed loans—all to be supported out of confiscatory taxation of the rich. This farm program of the eleventh century went up in smoke after about five chaotic years. The farmers either ate their commodity loans or failed to repay them; the rich were taxed out of existence; there was an orgy of bureaucratic corruption. The Tartars finished it all off by taking possession of the northern part of China, though China, in her own age-old way, got most of it back again. History has a habit of repeating itself in China.

President And Press

President Truman's decision to hold his press conferences hereafter in one of the large rococo rooms of the old State, War and Navy Building, and to introduce something like parliamentary decorum into the proceedings, seems so eminently sensible that we wonder that some such change was not undertaken years ago.

The informal procedure at the conferences in the oval room of the Executive Offices, with the reporters swarming around the presidential desk, had of course certain advantages. It enabled the President to become personally acquainted with the correspondents who were covering the White House beat, it made for a certain liveliness in the character of the questions and answers, and it often elicited unexpected bits of news. But these advantages gradually vanished as the number of newspapermen, American and foreign, regularly attending the conferences began to mount into the hundreds. The oval room on conference day began to resemble a Times Square subway platform at the rush hours. Packed elbow-to-elbow in one dense mass, the correspondents nudged each other awkwardly and painfully as they attempted with cramped wrists to scribble their notes.

Mr. Truman when he succeeded to the Presidency attempted to give forthright answers to every question. Often his disposition to candor got the better of his judgment. He failed sometimes to recognize that a question was "loaded," and thus was trapped into saying what a hostile correspondent wanted him to say, rather than what might have been wise to say. In some cases, as, for example, in the Wallace-Byrnes controversy the consequences of his candor was extremely awkward. But, as Mr. Truman gained in experience and confidence, he grew more wary, and the curt reply, "No comment," occurred more and more frequently.

But Mr. Truman has wisely chosen not to revert to the practice of Messrs. Coolidge and Hoover of requiring all questions to be written out in advance, and ignoring those he might wish to ignore without placing himself on record as having done so. The new ritual prescribes that the correspondents remain seated unless they have questions to put, and that when they rise to put them they begin by identifying themselves and the papers they represent. This, it seems to us, is entirely reasonable; for certainly a correspondent who, either of his own initiative or on instructions from his editor, puts a question to the President of the United States he should accept responsibility for it.

The presidential press conference, although it has of course no constitutional sanction, has nevertheless become an important instrument of democratic government under our system. It is the nearest thing we possess to the British system of parliamentary interrogation, whereby the ministers of government are obliged to explain and defend their policies.

Japanese Milestone

A significant straw in the social winds of Japan was a recent contest in Kagoshima Prefecture on Kyushu Island on the two most "democratic men"—one as a husband, one as a fellow worker. This took place during Japanese Women's Week, April 10-16, which celebrated the third anniversary of women's voting, a right provided by the new constitution. Although only 47 Kagoshima men, in a population of two million people, could be induced to compete for the awards of cash and clothing, yet the fact that such a contest was held in an area long regarded as the most feudal in Japan shows the enthusiasm with which Japanese women are using their new freedom. Speeches, mass meetings, other observances of Women's Week, likewise revealed the vigor with which Japanese women leaders are trying to spread the practice of feminine equality.

The field in which equality has lagged most has been the home. Japanese men have a standing joke that their women folk go to the "rights for women meetings," then return home and do everything their husbands tell them plus the old customs. To be sure, century-old social codes and traditions hold on tenaciously among the masses, yet women seem to have used the vote intelligently, have run for office, and are increasingly engaged in business and professional life. The status and influence of Japan's women—51 percent of the population—seems likely to grow steadily.

"Sick Children"

We were tremendously pleased with your very fine editorial of April 25, on our "Sick Children" report.

As you may know, the association takes some of the credit for instigating General Young's program for the amelioration of slums. It is so good a program and so obviously necessary that we fail to undertand why Commissioner John Russell Young has not yet approved it.

But we are only too well aware that the amelioration of slum conditions, while essential, is by no means the solution to the basic problem. Slum clearance and redevelopment are long overdue in Washington.

The fact remains that Washington today is not only back where it started from five years ago, it is worse off than ever. Mainly as a result of the stupendous amount of heat generated during our efforts to begin a redevelopment program, the very word "redevelopment" has come to have painful associations in the minds of many people.

And yet it is the association's unaltered conviction that the destruction of slums and the rebuilding of these areas with decent homes in desirable neighborhoods is the only way we can hope to eliminate housing as a factor in bad health conditions. The knowledge we now have of the economic and human waste caused by slums can lead to only one conclusion: we must get rid of them!

This means so much to Washington, in terms of dollars as well as people, and our present situation with regard to this program has reached so bad a state, that it would appear only the pressure which a great newspaper can exert could bring about a change. I can think of few more significant issues around which a vigorous newspaper campaign could be built. We should be delighted to see The Washington Post take up the cudgels.

Czech Independence

The letter of Paul de Hevesy in your April 24 issue is a eulogy of Austria-Hungary and a condemnation of all those who participated in its dismemberment and the reestablishment of independent states in Central Europe after World War I. It is a repudiation of the principle of self-determination of nations.

To the enumeration of the bounties the Hapsburg monarchy is reported to have dispensed to its subjects, I could oppose the cruelties wrought on the souls and bodies of the Slovaks and the deprivation of ancient political rights and the police persecution suffered by the Czechs. They are a matter of recorded, undisputed history.

Mindful of the imperative laid down by Thomas Jefferson in the opening words of the American Declaration of Independence, Thomas Masaryk proclaimed openly in the Washington Declaration of Czechoslovak Independence the causes which impelled the Czechs and Slovaks to "dissolve the political bands" which connected them against their will to the Hapsburg Empire. It behooves ill of the apologist of the artificial creation that was in all time the dynastic, family domain of the Hapsburgs, to call pure inventions the Czechoslovak state and people. United in a common state as far back as the ninth century, the Czechs and Slovaks were kept severed until 1918 just by the forces which alimented the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

And while reading of the Hapsburg monarchy as a safeguard of Europe, the straits and Constantinople against the ambitions of the Russians, I could not help imagining the very Cossacks, which Mr. de Hevesy, rightly alas, sees today on the shores of the Danube, surging into the realm of Hapsburgs just about 100 years ago. They came in response to an Austrian Emperor's pleading to quell that spirit of liberty and revolt, which finally spelled Austria's doom in 1918. And also, I remembered from my lessons of history the conspicuous absence of the same Austria-Hungary when the soldiers of other European powers—the Allies of the Great War—checked that Russian march to Constantinople at the walls of Sevastopol during the Crimean War. If this protection was lost to Europe in the feeble satellite of Kaiser Wilhelm, I can shed no tears and feel no tragic nature of the loss. There was no "fatal error of judgment" in what Masaryk, Wilson and others did in 1918. The glorious reality of democratic Czechoslovakia between 1918-38 is a palpable refutation of any such claim.

"Pan American Day"

Permit me to tell you that the Organization of American States was very much gratified to see the editorial comment regarding Pan American Day which appeared in your issue of April 14.

The presentation was excellent and revealed that good grasp of the subject which we feel does so much to further the ends for which this institution is working.

Radio Weather Reports

If broadcasters of Weather Bureau reports realized how few listeners understood accurately the significance of barometer dial movements, they would omit all barometer talk for the same reason that the bureau omits it.

"The barometer is falling," we are told. "So what," responds the listener. Bureau nontechnical, simple worded reports, are frequent. They omit reference to the celestial and terrestrial signs and portents being studied. Nothing is said about the captive balloons sent high aloft to record wind currents or the many other animate and inanimate sources being tapped for weather information. Our newspaper and radio simply give the end product, which "speaks to us with most miraculous order."

Thousands of Washington area early rising workers, keen for the early radio weather reports, live high up in apartment buildings. For at least the half of each year a look out of their windows discloses "darkness there and nothing more." Even during summer they lack means for noting roadway and walking conditions.

Each day's clothing and accessories decisions must be made quickly. So, if the radio voice will skip the barometer surplusage and the amusing solicitude for farmers in Maryland and Virginia and use a firm voice in telling what to wear and carry along, it will help no end. W. A. WILLIAMSON.

"Greek Outlook"

I share your views in your April 27 editorial, "Greek Outlook." I wish you stress more again and again that "There is nothing Communist in the makeup of the religious-minded and independent-minded people of gallant Greece." That exactly can be said of General Plastiras, who believes in justice for all!

"Mr. Browder's Contempt"

It is my hope that your April 28 editorial, "Mr. Browder's Contempt," will receive the careful and serious reading it so richly deserves.

The ingenuity of your writer should be noted. Obviously he was motivated by a zeal for one of America's finest traditions—self respect. But he refuses to be confused by popular assumptions which are patently fallacious. He shatters the delusion that it is wrong to shield an evil doer. He gives editorial dignity to the code of another world which demands absolute loyalty to a friend regardless of the injury to the public good. Introducing a novel moral principle, he justifies the crime of contempt for lawful authority.

Senators Tydings and McMahon must feel honored to receive the editorial nod which elevates them to the stature of Mr. Browder. Senator Hickenlooper must be sad to find himself in the camp of the "degraded" Mr. Budenz. To some this line of reasoning may be interesting, but I find it extremely unpalatable.

HAROLD T. STARKE.
Washington.

The attitude of The Washington Post in the Lattimore case, as expressed in its editorials, has puzzled me very much. The same was true of The Post's attitude in the Alger Hiss proceedings prior to the trial. Your editorial, "Mr. Browder's Contempt," I find most puzzling of all.

This editorial seems to suggest that there is something reprehensible in Mr. Louis Budenz's renunciation of communism and his adherence to what are commonly called the principles of Americanism. Which adherence, by the way, his life subsequent to this renunciation has given both implicit and explicit expression.

The editorial also seems to me to suggest (and I use the word "suggest" advisedly), that Mr. Browder is something of a hero, as a result of the way he has conducted himself. The editorial says, "Mr. Browder was as responsive as anyone could have wished to those questions . . ." Does The Post really wish its readers to believe that it is naive enough to believe that Mr. Browder's testimony is given in good faith? Is, or is not, Mr. Browder a Communist? When did he renounce communism? And has he, like Mr. Budenz, proved by his subsequent actions that such renunciation was genuine?

MAURICE MURPHY.
Washington.

Editor's Note: The purpose of the editorial which we regret did not seem to come through was to show what a sorry pass we have come to when a Communist can be put in the public position of upholding political freedom and opposing the doctrine of guilt by association. We entirely share Mr. Murphy's views that Browder is lacking in good faith, and, as we said yesterday, we believe he was in contempt of the Senate. The real question is the value of the testimony of Communists, former Communists, and temporarily-exiled Communists, when that testimony, of dubious credibility, may do permanent injury to persons of good character.

Truman And The Drouth

By Marquis Childs

Political Capital

OUT IN the Plains States the sky is once again gray with dust on windy days. The headlines tell of dust storms that are like a page of history turned up again.

For seven or eight years, when it was essential to produce as much food as possible for a hungry world, there were sufficient amounts of rainfall. This in turn encouraged farmers to go into areas that were more and more doubtful as to the equation of soil and water.

Business and professional men from the towns became "suitcase farmers." To take advantage of high prices they rented land, hired big combines to operate the land and in many instances they made quick killings.

Now many of these suitcase farmers are taking note of price declines. They are guessing that a cycle of dry years is on the way. They are counting their profits and abandoning the land. Since there is no crop cover, the wind picks up the dry soil and carries it off forever in powdery dust.

What points this situation up is that President Truman on his Western trip next week will head directly into the drouth area. The President's first major speaking stop is at Lincoln, Nebr., and it is in Nebraska that drouth damage has hit the greatest number of farmers.

THE DRAFT of a speech is now being prepared for Lincoln that will discuss in concrete terms the role of Government in relation to a new threat of prolonged drouth and the farm families that must try to weather that drouth. The President in his Lincoln speech will talk about soil conservation and what the Government has done, in the years since the terrible dust storms of the early 'thirties, to check it.

He will be able to cite some significant figures to show what the encouragement of soil conservation techniques has meant. A number of reports have come to the Department of Agriculture showing the effect of contour and subsoil plowing, the planting of grass crops and so on.

As a politician on tour, the head of the party in power, Truman will take credit for these measures. He may not be quite so crude about it. But definitely he will identify the Democratic Party with the steps that have in the past helped the farmer to survive bad times and prosper in good times.

Anyone who looks realistically at the political picture must acknowledge that this will be powerful political medicine. It is calculated to appeal directly to thousands upon thousands of farm families beginning to feel nervous about drouth and blowing dust. That other era, when "Okies" were forced off the land to trek out West in an often vain search for work, has not been forgotten.

THE DROUTH may in fact offset the effect of declining farm prices which were generally believed to be working in favor of the Republicans. The direct influence of prices is not expected to be large, although the fact that the winter wheat crop is down about 10 percent should halt any further decline in the price of that commodity. The forthcoming crop, plus the big carryover, is expected to be large enough to take care of both foreign and domestic needs.

In certain States, drouth and measures to combat its effects on soil and people will be an important factor. Reports from Colorado and New Mexico indicate that as much as half of the winter wheat crop may be lost.

In Colorado there is a key Senate contest. The ultra-conservative Republican Senator Eugene Millikin is likely to have as his opponent Representative John Carroll of Denver. Carroll has been an able and effective champion of much of the Truman program.

The farmer who has lost most of his crop is certain to be interested in which party is likely to give him help. And from past experience, he will probably decide it is the Democrats.

The whole strategy of the Western trip is to identify the President and the party in power with the benefits that have come out of Washington during the past 17 years. This raises a pretty fundamental question about the future of our political system. It seems to me the question can be phrased as follows: With the intervention of Government as extensive as it is in the economy of the Nation and benefiting as many different groups, can the party in power even be voted out of office?

The Republicans, by taking a negative stand on almost everything, unhappily seem to confirm the role of the Democrats as end-all and be-all of national salvation. Merely to say no, in the kind of age in which we live, is not enough. It is one of the chief reasons for the kind of political drouth from which the Republicans have suffered so long.

Postal Service Cuts

Because the Postmaster General was refused $28,000,000 he is breaking up one of the most used and respected services of the public. He is aiding the unemployment situation by putting tens of thousands of men out of work.

If he wishes to cut expenses why doesn't he start in his own bureau in Washington? If Mr. Donaldson wants to cut the department's expenses to balance the budget he could have made other cuts instead of curtailing mail deliveries.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Acheson And McCarthy

THE McCARTHY campaign has revealed, more sharply perhaps than ever before, a grave weakness in the American Government.

Lippmann

The Secretary of State is going abroad this week to meet the foreign ministers of our principal allies. The Department of State is under relentless and unremitting attack as incompetent and as subject to the guiding influence of subversives and the corruption of sexual perverts. I think it is fair to say that no American official who has represented this Government abroad in great affairs, not even Wilson in 1918, has ever been so gravely injured at home. The horror of the American predicament is that there is no accepted and established way, as there is in Britain, France and Canada, by which this campaign can be brought to a showdown.

In other free countries the foreign minister would not dream of going abroad to represent his country, as Mr. Acheson is now going, unless the McCarthy charges had first been brought to a vote of confidence. No other foreign minister would enter momentous negotiations while a campaign like McCarthy's was going on. Mr. Bevin and Mr. Schuman would not write letters to subcommittees merely denying this and denying that. They would deal with the substantive charges and would at once demand the support and the vindication of the Parliament. If they did not get it, they would resign, the government would resign with them, the Parliament would be dissolved, and everyone—accusers and accused—would have to go to the voters and get a new mandate.

Thus the foreign minister, whoever he was—Mr. Bevin if he got a vote of confidence, his successor if he did not get a vote of confidence—would go abroad with credentials which permitted him to speak for the nation.

THERE is no way by which this campaign can be disposed of in this conclusive fashion. It is the very essence of the weakness of this aspect of the American Government that—because there is no means of bringing about a showdown—none of the accusations has to be proved and all of them cannot be disproved. There is no clean way of ending the business conclusively. There is no tribunal, no court of justice, no formal proceeding of Congress, no clear way of referring it all to a decision by the voters. There ought to be some clean way of ending this business. Mr. Acheson's responsibilities are such that he ought to be able, indeed he needs to be able, as he would be able abroad, to stake his political life on whether he can obtain a vote of confidence.

I know that this sort of thing is not done over here and that it will not happen. Mr. Acheson will go abroad and the McCarthy campaign will go on, with almost nothing that is proved, and yet with no end of things not altogether disproved. It is in truth a fearful thing that at so critical a time in history, that as the United States is assailed by a most formidable opponent abroad, the Government of the United States is virtually paralyzed by corrosive suspicion at home.

THE EFEECT is as if Senator McCarthy went into a community and began to tell all the husbands that there were many more, many more, unfaithful wives than they realized. Let the husbands remember Mamie who went so regularly to church and yet was caught and proved to have committed adultery. If there is one Mamie, then surely there must be more than one Mamie. The husbands did not suspect Mamie so what about the other wives the husbands do not yet suspect, and who would be caught, or who might be caught like Mamie if the husbands weren't so foolish, and perhaps a little bit involved themselves in adultery and a lot of other things that can only be hinted at.

That kind of treatment would not make family life purer in the community Mr. McCarthy went out to save. It would—if he succeeded in planting suspicion and distrust widely and deep enough—disrupt all family life and indeed the community as well. For families, and communities, and indeed free nations rest finally not on law and not on force but on a certain indispensable faith and confidence, mixed with some affection and much charity, each person for his fellow men.

Without that a free society will disintegrate into a mere horde of frightened, angry, suspicious and suspected separate egos, and the last defenses will have fallen against the rise and the invasion of the barbarians and of the tyrannies they bring with them.

A Communication

Clayton Urges ITO Charter Approval

By W. L. Clayton

Former Undersecretary of State

I AM sorry to see from your editorial of April 21 on the International Trade Organization that you favor deferring a decision on the Havana Charter.

You say that the charter contains too many escape clauses and qualifications; that it does not remove all trade discriminations; that it will have little effect on international trade so long as ECA continues to provide aid for western Europe. You add that there is divided opinion in business groups, trade and civic organizations about the charter.

May I remind you that the charter was completed two years ago; that it took more than three years and several international conferences to reach agreement on it.

After all this labor and waiting, if now we postpone decision on adoption of the charter, the other 50-odd countries who joined us in writing it will probably conclude that we are no longer interested in creating this mechanism of the United Nations for promoting multilateral trade throughout the world. Further delay now probably means there will be no International Trade Organization.

IT IS TRUE that the charter grants certain exemptions and escapes but far from giving any nation any rights it does not already have, it has secured agreement on many vital principles of multilateral trade. Some of the stated objectives of the charter are:

"To increase the production, consumption and exchange of goods, and thus to contribute to a balanced and expanding world economy; to further the enjoyment by all countries on equal terms of access to markets, products and productive facilities needed for their economic prosperity and development; to promote on a reciprocal and mutually advantageous basis the reduction of tariffs and other barriers to trade and the elimination of discriminatory treatment in international commerce."

To aid in the accomplishment of these purposes, the charter would establish the International Trade Organization as an agency of the United Nations. This organization would at once become a forum where representatives of member governments could meet and discuss their trade problems just as they meet in the Assembly and Security Council of the United Nations to discuss their political and security problems.

MR. PAUL HOFFMAN'S recent speeches have emphasized the urgent need of economic integration and the lowering of trade barriers. He has repeatedly called attention to the urgent need for the United States to greatly increase its imports from Europe.

The ITO would provide a forum where such matters could be discussed and dealt with day by day instead of by occasional speeches. Let me mention only one or two of the other numerous benefits which would promptly flow from adoption of this charter:

Take the question of customs red tape, arbitrary rulings, absence of any impartial tribunal to which to appeal, lack of information about what regulations actually are—all these things make it so difficult for people in various countries to do business with each other that some informed people have said they are a greater barrier to imports than tariffs themselves. The charter provides for a widespread adjustment, simplification and publication of customs procedures all over the world. Would you say that this would have little effect upon the character of international trade?

WE READ much about private cartels—how they hold up prices and otherwise interfere with recovery abroad. The prompt establishment of international machinery for dealing with the harmful effects of cartels, which the charter provides, should prove of great benefit to international trade.

I believe that the rules of the charter are basically good rules. I believe that it is most important that they be made effective at once in order to establish the direction of policy which the member governments will pursue. The fact that governments have agreed to follow the principles embodied in the charter will affect trade policy decisions which member governments make every day. In that way the charter should have a very real and immediate effect upon international trade. In fact, anticipation of the establishment of the ITO has already had its influence in a number of cases; for example, one of the reasons advanced to the British Parliament by the government in support of the monopoly law recently passed was that it would enable the United Kingdom to carry out its commitments under the ITO charter.

FINALLY, may I say that I am surprised at the suggestion that one reason for postponing action on the charter is the fact that there are conflicting views about the ITO. Have there not always been conflicting views in the United States on international trade? Do you think all our people will agree with Mr. Hoffman that the United States should greatly step up its purchases of European goods? Don't you know that we have powerful interests in our country who would rather see us give away three billion dollars worth of goods annually than to accept goods in payment which might in some small measure interfere with their own business?

One of the most important and beneficial steps taken by the United States in the field of international trade policy was the enactment of the Trade Agreements Act in 1934. This act never would have been passed, or renewed, as it has been on several occasions, if its consideration by the Congress had been deferred until opinion about it had ceased to be divided. Indeed, opinion on it has been so divided that on one occasion, the act was seriously weakened, by amendment, in renewal.

Claims Court Raps U. S. Aides In Veterans' Preference Case

The U. S. Court of Claims rapped Government officials yesterday for failure to follow the "simple requirements of Congress" and for "slicing the ham too thin" in carrying out the veterans' employment preference act.

The crackdown was issued in a decision upholding the veterans' preferential rights of Rhea W. Stringer, an Army Engineers employe in Dallas, Tex. A veteran of the First World War, he was demoted from Civil Service grade 13 to grade 12 in 1944.

Court Unanimous

In a unanimous opinion written by Chief Judge Marvin Jones, the court ruled the Government must pay Stringer the difference between his top salary, $5600 annually, and the $4600 pay he received from 1944 until yesterday.

The judgment will mean repayment of about $4500, his attorney, Edmund E. Pendleton jr., estimated.

The court did not contest the Army Engineers' right to demote Stringer. Rather it was denial of the employe's full procedural rights under the act of 1944.

Specifically, the court ruled the plaintiff "did not receive at least 30 days' notice of proposed adverse action; he did not receive separate notices of proposed adverse action and of adverse decision, and he was denied his right to appear personally on appeal of the Civil Service Commission."

Officials Rapped

"It seems rather strange that department officials are sometimes reluctant to follow the simple requirements of an act of Congress," Judge Jones wrote. "Perhaps it is pride in a decision already rendered, or a desire not to acknowledge a mistake."

Noting the Army Engineers had granted Stringer 29 instead of the specified 30 days' notice, the judge opined:

"We have no doubt the official thought he was allowing exactly 30 days, but in his efforts to give not an ounce more than was necessary, he sliced the ham too thin."

The Pearl and the Price

Most people know the parable about the "pearl of great price," and the man who sold all that he had to buy it (Matthew 13:46).

Have you ever asked yourself what it meant?

The "price" is our surrender of the afflictive human thinking causing our troubles. But how to give up these human fears, how to grasp and follow and find freedom — that has been the difficulty. To find the way would indeed be "the pearl" of which the Bible parable speaks.

There is a great body of people who will testify today in heartfelt thankfulness — and for that reason they are subscribing these advertisements for the benefit of others — that Christian Science is this "pearl," this promised Comforter.

This liberating understanding is explained fully in the Christian Science textbook

SCIENCE and HEALTH with Key to the Scriptures
by Mary Baker Eddy

Whoever will put its statements to the test of proof in his daily life will find this great Science of Christianity to be demonstrable. It is adequate and available to all for rescue and release from every sort of human difficulty, and thousands are thankfully saying "I have found the way!"

U. S. Steel Reelects Board; Avery Rapped

Hoboken, N. J., May 1 (AP).—Five management nominees for the United States Steel Corp. board of directors were reelected today at an annual stockholders meeting marked at times by acrid exchanges between Chairman Irving S. Olds and minority shareowners.

Although no opposing nominees were presented, management's backing of Sewell L. Avery, chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., and a "Big Steel" director for 19 years, for another three-year term on the board drew the fire of some critics among the 350 stockholders present.

There are 245,000 holders of U. S. Steel shares.

Avery was renamed by an overwhelming majority, as were the others, but his total vote of 27,523,009 was some 15,000 less than the highest total, that cast for retired President William A. Irvin.

Ranking behind Irvin were Enders M. Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee; President Benjamin F. Fairless and Philip R. Clarke, president of City National Bank & Trust Co., Chicago.

Avery and Clarke were not among the 10 members of the 15-man board who were present at the meeting. Objections to Avery were based on his handling of affairs of Montgomery Ward, several top officials of which have resigned in the past two years.

Benjamin A. Javits, stockholder representing a group called "Independent Investors, Inc., declared that "the public does not like, by and large, what Avery stands for." He said J. P. Morgan & Co. declined to support Avery in the Montgomery Ward situation and asked how proxies held by the Morgan firm were voted today.

Olds said that would be impossible to determine immediately. He described Avery as a most efficient director. A Morgan official, Arthur M. Anderson, is on the U. S. Steel board, but Olds said the board "is not controlled by any one."

Many of the meeting's sharpest exchanges occurred in connection with resolutions to shift the annual meeting to New York City

How John Adams bought ten shares of du Pont

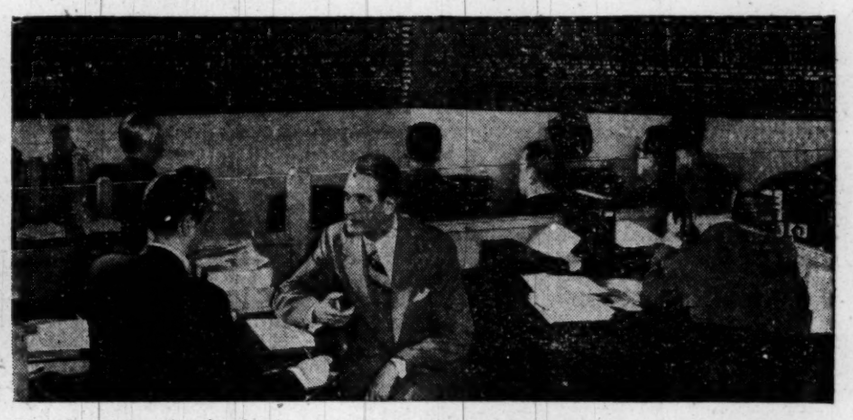
Total Price $736.25... Dividend Yield 4.8%... Commission Cost $6.00

We'd never bought any stock before. But my wife agreed with me that there wasn't much sense in letting our extra cash lie idle—even if it was only $700 or $800—when we could make about 5% on it by investing in common stocks.

I'll admit I did feel a bit uneasy about going to a broker's office the first time. Sort of like going to the dentist's. And that's why I decided to go to Merrill Lynch. I'd always understood that they were glad to handle little accounts like mine.

Once inside, I forgot my worries. A young lady there saw I was a stranger and came to help me. I told her I wanted to buy a few shares of stock, but that first I needed to know how it was done. She took me right in to see the manager.

I'd always been curious about the way the business worked—how you placed an order, how it was executed, what commission rates were. The manager must have been used to those questions, for he certainly explained things clearly. Naturally, he had to know a few things about me too, before he could open my account. Not too much—just about the same questions that are asked when you open a bank account or a charge account.



Then the manager introduced me to the man who would handle my account. I told him just how much we had to invest after setting aside enough to meet emergencies, and I explained that we couldn't afford big risks. So he showed me a list of over 250 top-flight stocks that have paid dividends for at least 20 years, and he offered to get me a Research Department report on any one of them.

Well, he didn't have to, because I spotted du Pont on the list. Now du Pont may be no better than many others on that list paying around 5%, but my brother has worked there 10 years, and I know a good bit about the company. So I bought 10 shares at 73½ or $735.00. Actually, I paid $1.25 more because stocks are sold in 100-share lots, and when you buy a smaller unit like 10 shares, the price is 12½¢ higher per share. And do you know what Merrill Lynch's commission was? Only $6—less than 1%!

So I am a stockholder now—and a Merrill Lynch customer. Anytime I want to sell my du Pont or buy more stock, all I've got to do is phone Merrill Lynch. But first I'm going to learn a lot more about this investment business. That's why I asked for a copy of "How to Invest." You can get one too. There's no charge. Just send your request to Department DM-23.

Seven Groups Bid on Pepco Bond Issue

By S. Oliver Goodman

Seven underwriting groups have submitted bids for a proposed 30-million-dollar bond issue of Potomac Electric Power Co., it was learned last night.

Details of the new financing, which includes an offering of 710,700 additional shares of common stock, were formally placed before the Public Utilities Commission yesterday. No opposition was voiced, in contrast with a bitter battle at a similar Pepco hearing last year.

Bids on the bond issue will be opened next Monday morning and the offering prices for bonds and stock will be submitted later in the day to the PUC for final approval. There will be no competitive bidding on the stock issue and a local group of underwriters will buy and resell any stock not taken up by present shareholders.

Pepco expects to use $20,555,000 of the new financing to redeem first mortgage bonds which are due in 1966 and bear 3¼ percent interest. R. Roy Dunn, Pepco vice president and treasurer, explained at yesterday's PUC hearing, that the new bonds should save about one-half percent interest or about $74,000 a year. Unless this saving can be accomplished, he indicated, the new bond issue would be scaled down to only 10 million dollars.

About 11 million dollars of the new financing would be used to pay off bank loans. Balance of the proceeds plus company funds would be used for construction needs this year.

Pepco's construction program was estimated at 17 million dollars for this year, 14.7 million in 1951 and 10.9 million in 1952.

SHARP CLIMB: Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported March consolidated net income of $691,576, a gain of $355,825 over the same 1949 period. This brought consolidated net for the first three months to $1,719,015, a gain of $569,602 over the comparable period last year. For the 12 months ended March 31 the gas company reported net income equal to $2.62 a share, as compared with $1.39 a share in the previous 12 months. The substantial improvement was laid to heavier sales of gas due to cold weather in February and March, the increase in the number of meters and the higher gas rates in effect in the District of Columbia since November.

NEW MANAGER: Clarence E. Johnson has been named head of the Washington mortgage loan office of Prudential Insurance Co. He succeeds Theodore A. Sedam, who now manages the company's Southeastern regional office at Richmond, Va. Prudential stated yesterday that it currently has more than 20 million dollars in loans to home owners and businessmen in the area under Johnson's jurisdiction. Johnson, identified with the real estate field for nearly 30 years, comes here from Richmond, where he has been a supervising appraiser.

One on the Aisle—

'Concrete' Author Sticks to His Hod

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE: Bricklayer and author, 39-year-old Pietro di Donato is in town for the opening of the new Plaza, which is to show "Salt to the Devil," inspired by his best-seller of 12 years ago, "Christ in Concrete."

Its a fabulous life this warm-blooded American has lived. Eldest son of an Italian-born father and mother, he was the country's youngest bricklayer at the age of 12; his father was killed in a construction job and those adolescent years of his were spent in hard labor to support his family. He finished formal schooling at 12, started reading on his own at 24 and, at 28, came up with his thinly-disguised life story in "Christ in Concrete."

The success of this was immediate, a "Book of the Month" choice and, in a few years, $100,000 in royalties. He's got precious little of that left now, but he had a good time spending it—a house with a swimming pool, girls, high life and, as he now says, "all the things you'd expect of a fellow who'd had no boyhood, no adolescence."

When he came to the last five thousand Pete went back into the construction business and he's still at it. Though he's written some short stories since the publication of "Concrete," he's spent most of his writing efforts on another novel, for which Bennett Cerf holds the rights.

That new novel continues what happens to an American of Italian blood and the difficulties he faces in marriage with a girl of Anglo-Saxon blood. Pete married a show-girl—"she's such fun we don't need television"—of similar background to that heroine and conclusions will inevitably be drawn. The di Donatos have two boys and live on Long Island.

The construction business? It's good and a family concern. Now they're finishing up a laundry and next week they get to work on a new house for Ilka Chase.

Writing? "I wonder why people do it," he muses. "A writer can get too far from the people he's trying to write about and that's why I'm glad circumstances have forced me to keep my hand in at bricklaying while I'm still trying to write.

"By the way," he winds up, "enjoy the movie."

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON'S recent weekend success at the Shirlington Theater has prompted the film house to bring him back for a full week in another play . . . This will be Frederick Lonsdale's "On Aproval," which Clive Brook and Beatrice Lillie made into quite an insane little movie . . . The comedy will open at the Shirlington Monday, May 15, and play through Sunday night, May 21, with Saturday and Sunday matinees . . . There'll be no Thursday night performance, as that's Eddie's television night in New York. Price scale: $1.20 and $2.40 evenings, $1.20 and $1.50 matinees . . . Manager Valentine Smith is now working on a tie-up for a downtown box office . . . Don't think from this that the Shirlington is going completely over to live theater; it's not likely.

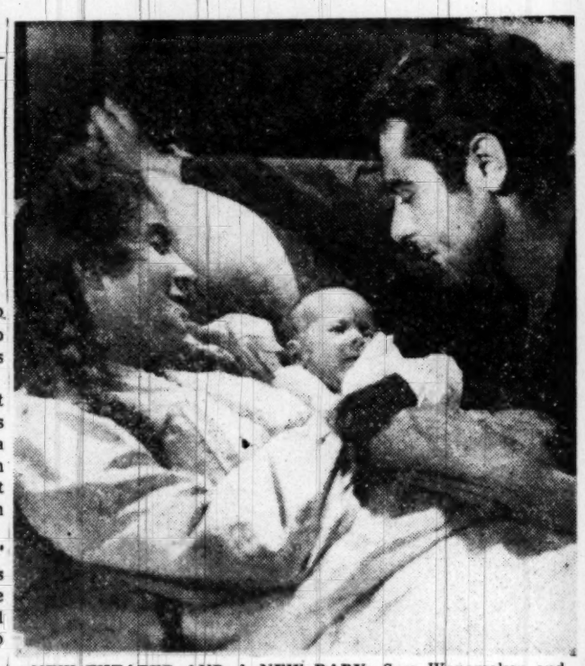
RAYMOND BRAMLEY of the Gayety's "Two Blind Mice," quite a few people have called to remind us, was a member of the National Theater summer stock company in the '30s . . . So much water has flowed through so many air-conditioning units since then, it's hard to remember that the National did used to be open in the summers, sans cooling system, for the stock company Steve Cochran ran before he built that theater at Olney . . . Freddie Sherman, Walter Gilbert and Stanley Ridges were other members of the company and so were Edward Arnold, Minor Watson, Forrest Orr, now butlering in countless movies, and Kathryn Givney, now a movie mom . . . And those were when Nancy Sheridan, the company leading lady, did the Lynn Fontanne part in "Strange Interlude," a part so long most companies had to import their L. L. for . . . "We did lay Nancy off the week before for that one," muses Steve.

MABEL PAIGE, delighting everyone in the Gayety's comedy about life in the Federal Government, doesn't walk away with her lines by accident . . . She was the June Allyson of her day and she introduced a song you hear yet: "And when I walk, I always walk with Billy." . . . Before she leaves town, let's get Mable to sing it again when she takes her bow at the Gayety . . . Mabel also worked for Cochran when he opened the Olney and 30-odd years ago she had her own stock company in Florida . . . Who says there's no future in show business?

ALDEN H. RYAN, by day a physicist of the Naval Research Laboratory, by night turns playwright and he'll see the fruits of his evenings next Monday and Tuesday when the Alexandria Little Theater, with which he's been connected since 1945, produces his three-act mystery comedy, "The Tangled Webb." . . . "I offer no message at all, but for the opening of Act III I've posed an accidental problem. There's no time lapse between acts, but at the end of the second I've ordered a gun fired. After the intermission, it must still be smoking at the start of the third." . . . Come, come, Ryan, a physicist ought to be able to solve that.

EVELYN FREYMAN and Richard Skinner, the Olney coproducers, having set a high mark with openers the past two seasons (Helen Hayes one year, Tallulah the next), decided that since they couldn't lure Miss Barrymore back from the coast for Memorial Day weekend, they'd postpone their opening rather than offer anything less than sensational . . . And sensational would seem the word for Paulette Goddard as Cleopatra in Bernard Shaw's comedy . . . "Caesar and Cleopatra" open at Olney June 16, Miss Goddard's first appearance in the part anywhere and there's a notion in this corner that Paulette could probably get away with no Caesar and no supporting cast whatever . . . Speaking, to be sure, not as a demanding reviewer, but just as a plain joe.

WALTER HUSTON, whose death last month the same week as that of Kurt Weill, who wrote his "September Song" for "Knickerbocker Holiday" saddened numberless theatergoers, is the star of "Summer Holiday," the musical version of "Ah, Wilderness," being revived today only at the Apex.



NEW THEATER AND A NEW BABY: Sam Wanamaker and Lea Padovani admire their first-born son in "Salt to the Devil," which opens the Plaza Theater tonight as a benefit for the Kiwanis children's foundation. Wanamaker and Pietro di Donato, author of "Christ in Concrete," the book which inspired the picture, will be among tonight's guests in the theater on New York ave., off the southeast corner of 14th st.

Songs and Dances Score

Catholic U. Presents Its Annual Musical, 'Lucky Day'

Catholic University's lively likable drama students are playing their annual musical in the campus theater, a book show, "Lucky Day," as opposed to last season's plotless revue.

There are virtues aplenty on the C. U. stage, but Leo Brady's book is not one of them. This worn, lifeless plot and the lines that push it along are just plain dull and all the charm and will of the players can't disguise the fact.

Edward Cashman's score, though derivative (sorry, reviewers have a habit of calling vaguely familiar music derivative) is much better and he and Brady come up with one real jackpot number, "It Takes a Lot of Trouble to Be Bad."

Further, the chorus numbers and the dancing are good. Usually C. U. isn't able to do much about its dancing numbers, not being equipped with such a departmental facility, but "Everything's Like a Picnic" is a honey. Again, it recalls the circles and patterns of Agnes de Mille's "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel" work, but it's knowingly staged and has the advantage of a lovely lead dancer, Barbara Cole.

Virginia Bradley Showstopper

The reason for this isn't far to seek. Miss Cole grew up as a pupil of Lisa Gardiner here, danced in "Song of Norway" and those De Mille hits and spent two seasons with Ballet Theater. She staged the dances and brings to them her own precious experience. You'll find her utterly adorable in that picnic number.

Virginia Bradley, an experienced C. U. lass, does neatly with her role as the rather sinister lady who partners any successful gambler. To Miss Bradley falls that song about how much harder it is to be bad than it used to be and she does it smartly. While her costumes don't always do her justice, Virginia Bradley ranks with C. U.'s best and that's very good. And she stops the show.

Meredith Schoonover has an exhausting assignment as herb, singer and dancer. The character is something of a gawk, but Schoonover does all possible to make him likable and his songs are efficiently projected. It's a mistake to ask him to tap, too. Ricki Rudel does pertly as his leading lady, though, once again, the part is flat and floolish.

The fault with "Lucky Day," then, boils down to Brady's yarn about a chap whose lucky pieces put him in the bigtime gambling racket. The character, as written, is alternately boyishly foolish or unpleasant. "Pal Joey" was never a foolish boy. Both he and his oh-so-dumb gal friend are so patently contrived characters and their adventures so limited by musical comedy rote that never once are they fun to have around.

But though Brady's script isn't worth it, the cast and production treat it as though it's "Kiss Me, Kate," which speaks well for the training of Dr. Josephine McGarry Callan, Father Hartke, and Music Director Cashman. Jimmy Smiley, at the organ, and Sidney Seidenman, jr., at the piano, take the place of an orchestra and do it mighty well.

23 Performing on 12 Pianos Yield Mostly Discordancies

By Paul Hume

Even if this were not a family newspaper—which it is—I could not adequately describe the Philadelphia Piano Orchestra.

This unmusical agglomeration of 12 pianos played last night in Lisner Auditorium. Twenty-three ladies held sway at the unpleasant sounding instruments.

It was a shambles, musically, acoustically, stylistically. Beethoven was misquoted as approving such an ensemble for the performance of his sonatas. Taking his wish that a pianist might make one of his sonatas sound like a symphony for piano, Carle Knisley, the orchestra's founder and conductor, willfully distorted rhythms, added notes Beethoven never intended, as he led his ladies through a reading of the C Sharp Minor Sonata, known as the "Moonlight."

The pianos were not in tune with each other, and some were out of tune in themselves. Nor did the pianists play together frequently, either in attacks or releases. The program was a hodgepodge of great and trivial music. Since the literature for a dozen pianos is limited, the repertoire was drawn from works for organ, orchestra, concertos for piano and orchestra, and piano solos.

We have heard examples of bad taste but nothing in our experience ever approached the Philadelphia Piano Orchestra for misleading advertising, bad playing, and unsound musical ideas. Tickets for the concert sold for as much as $3.60 each. The public has a right to know how bad things can be when the tariff reaches that point.

Earlier in the evening we heard young Michael Ponti, 12-year-old pianist, playing the second half of Book One of Bach's Well-Tempered Clavier. This music was intended for the harpsichord, according to most competent authorities. The piano renders it difficult in various ways. Its rhythms, cross-writing, and proper accentuation become obscure unless the piano is in the hands of a master.

Young Ponti is being exploited in the manner of the eighteenth century prodigy; the program read, "Featuring by Memory." He has a nice touch, good memory, and there it ends, for the time being. He rushes tempos where they should remain steady; he does not control dynamics sufficiently for this intellectual music. He should be allowed to develop more slowly if he is to become a fine artist.

At the beginning of the evening we heard Margaret Barnwell singing three classic arias at the Phillips Gallery. Her manner was good, her voice well handled, if a bit brittle. Time did not permit us to remain for music by a Washington composer who once invited us to remain away from any concerts where he was being played.

New Tax Cut Arouses Fear

mittee has already cut deeper than it should.

"I think we are acting rather irresponsibly in cutting excises a billion dollars in the face of a 1951 deficit estimated by our staff at 7 billion dollars," Kean told newsmen.

"I don't think it is possible without undue disturbance to business to replace the lost revenue."

Commenting on the Administration's proposal to raise a billion dollars by increasing corporation taxes, Kean said:

"The only advantage I can see to that is a political one in taking off taxes people know they are paying and replacing them with taxes the people don't know they are paying."

Several Democratic members have voiced similar views privately.

Across the Capitol yesterday a highly placed Senate Democrat, who asked not to be identified, said recent cold war developments have raised doubts in his mind as to the wisdom of a deep cut in excises.

This Senate source, who formerly favored much sharper reductions that the 655-million-dollar excise cut proposed by the President, pointed to the Administration's request for additional defense appropriations as a "go slow" signal.

Supporters of the reduction on the other hand contended there should be either a sizable cutback in excises or none at all. These argued that there were so many "hardship cases" it was impossible for the committee to pare excises on a few selected items and services and leave others untouched. They predicted increased sales in many lines would result from the cut, leading to an offsetting pick-up in income tax collections.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

On the day that Bucky Harris is convinced a deal for Ray Scarborough will help the Nats, the trade will be made. Clark Griffith's indorsement will be routine. Harris, the guy who was in the minors last year, has bounced back with more authority and a bigger blank check than any other major league manager.

Thus it was that Harris was in an expansive mood the other day in New York, when Casey Stengel again broached the topic of a deal for Scarborough. He questioned Stengel's authority to make the deal, and alluded to the okays needed from George Wiss, Dan Topping and Del Webb, Stengel's superiors.

POVICH

Bucky's riding high with the Washington club, and that's all right with Griffith, who always did say, even when he fired Harris twice in previous years, "He is my favorite manager. He can get more out of a ball team than any other man." The rub, Griffith used to say, was a need for "a change of faces."

These days, with the Nats not doing half badly, and beating the Red Sox and Yankees three times in five starts, Griffith is draping the paternal arm around Harris' shoulder and beaming "he's my boy."

ACTUALLY, Griffith turned to Harris in an attempt to bail himself out last winter when there was a groundswell of fan-resentment at the eighth place club that represented Washington. Press relations were at a low ebb, too, and the old gentleman was panicked for the first time in his 38 years in the Capital.

Harris wasn't exactly begging for a job. Out in San Diego, in the Coast League last season, he was making more money than Joe Kuhel was getting for managing the Nats, and Bill Veeck had plans for him to move into Cleveland. So when Griffith beckoned by long-distance telephone last October, with a plea in his voice, Harris had his old friend over a barrel.

It's significant that Griffith didn't offer Harris a one-year contract, as every other Washington manager since Walter Johnson had been given. Griff went out on a limb to give Harris a three-year pact, at the most money any Washington manager has received since Harris himself signed a $90,000 contract for three years back in 1926.

RIGHT NOW, Harris can make just about any deal he wants, as long as there is money in the bank, and the Nats happen to be a wonderfully-solvent team, debt-free and with assets. No Washington manager before him, and no other contemporary manager anywhere swings as much weight with the club president as Harris, particularly at this time.

Griffith is basking happily in what looks like the wisdom of his choice of managers, and he likes to recall the time in 1924 when he picked Harris out of the hat, the youngest regular on his club, and made him the playing-manager. "Griffith's Folly," they called it then, Griff reminds his listeners, but two quick pennants followed.

When he hired Harris last October, Griffith wasn't aware of how hot a spot he would be on a couple of months later. That was when John Jachym bought 40 percent of the club, and a stockholders battle loomed. Now it was more necessary than ever for Harris to come up with the kind of a club that would take the pressure off Griff, and he was grateful when Harris starting taking hold of the team's problems.

SMALL WONDER that Griffith is liking Harris these days. He's seen a pitcher, Steve Nagy, that Harris insisted on buying from the Coast League at a mere $10,000, beat the Yankees twice in two starts. And he's doubtless weighing the $65,000 his scouts spent for Lloyd Hittle last year against the Harris expenditure of $70,000 for Irv Noren, who appears worth every bit of it and more.

If Nagy and Noren are no flashes in the pan, Harris has already earned his managerial salary as a scout for Griffith. At least he's making all of the other scouts in Griffith's farm system look pretty inept. The next player Harris wants to buy will be bought quickly, with Bucky now holding the complete confidence of his boss.

Griffith has been reluctant to trade Scarborough, even when it appeared to be the wise move. He's a bit wary of fan-reaction. But Harris hasn't lost interest in any Scarborough deal that will buttress a couple of other spots in his lineup. When and if it is made, he'll front for Griffith and take the rap, if any. That's another way he is serving the old gentleman.

Middleground Heads 11-Horse Field in Derby Trial Today

Louisville, Ky., May 1 (AP).—Middleground, one of the real big horses in the Kentucky Derby, heads a field of 11 candidates in tomorrow's $10,000 Derby Trial at Churchill Downs.

The mile test, run since 1938, is supposed to give a final line on the top horses in Saturday's $100,000 3-year-old classic, but it seldom does. Only one winner has gone on to capture the big race, and that was Citation, two years ago.

Of the 11 which will start tomorrow, barring scratches, only three besides Middleground are being given serious consideration in the Derby. They are Calumet Farm's Theory and the Brookmeade Stable entry of Greek Ship and Sun Glow. The four are topweighted at 118 pounds.

The other Derby hotshots—Your Host, Hill Prince and Oil Capitol—are passing it up, their trainers figuring that the mile test does nothing to show what a horse might do in the mile-and-one-quarter Derby and that to enter it is only running an unnecessary risk.

Theory and his stablemate, All Blue, figure to be the second choice in the Trial, with the Brookemeade entry third. Olympia ran away with it last year, but folded five days later when they tacked on another quarter-mile.

Instead of running Hill Prince in the trial, Casey Hayes, his trainer, received permission to work him a mile between tomorrow's second and third races at the Downs.

Complete Field For Derby Trial

Louisville, Ky., May 1 (AP).—Owners of 11 Kentucky Derby eligibles nominated their 3-year-olds today for tomorrow's running of the one-mile Derby Trial.

The entries, with jockeys and assigned weights:

Trumpet King (Woodhouse), 112.
Black George (Nelson), 112.
Second Avenue (Fico), 110.
Theory (Brooks), 118.

Browns Face Sid Hudson Here Tonight

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The St. Louis Browns, plus Dr. David F. Tracy, move into Griffith Stadium tonight to have a try at transmitting a defeatist complex to the Nats. Psychologically, the Browns are supposed to be leading the league this season. Otherwise, they're in sixth place.

Dr. Tracy, the psychologist-hypnotist who has vowed to administer to the Browns' mental reflexes until he has rid them of their defeatism, is now traveling with the team on the road after practicing his mental magic for eight weeks in spring training.

The Browns were responding slowly, blowing five of their first seven games, until they reared up and bumped off Bob Lemon and the Indians, 5-1, the other day. Pitcher Joe Ostrowski shared the honors with Professor Tracy by holding the Indians to six hits.

Browns Well-Rested

Manager Zach Taylor will put his chief reliance tonight, however, in Ned Garver, the Browns' leading pitcher of last season when he won 12 games, lost 15.

Sid Hudson, with five days rest since beating the Athletics, will pitch for the Nats, who will be meeting a well-rested team in the Browns. They've played only one game since last Wednesday, having been weathered out almost continually since that date.

The Browns are spotted with new faces in this year's campaign, since selling off the two stalwarts of their infield, Second Baseman Gerry Priddy and Third Baseman Bob Dillinger. In fact, only nine men on their 30-player roster were with the club last season.

Manager Taylor is operating this year with Hank Arft at first base. He's back with the Browns for the second time, after hitting a meager .224 at Baltimore. His second baseman is Owen Friend, late of Elmira, where he hit .264.

The prize member of the Browns' infield is supposed to be Billy Demars, the slick-fielding shortstop obtained from Philadelphia in the Dillinger deal.

Gustine Playing Third

Frankie Gustine, a 10-year man in the National League before he joined the Browns this season, is at third base and represents most of their infield power.

The brightest item about the Browns, however, is their smart young outfield of Roy Sievers, Dick Kokos and Ken Wood, the latter up from the Browns' Baltimore farm. Wood is blossoming as a power hitter, but neither Sievers nor Kokos have hit their batting stride as yet.

The Nats will be a changed ball club in one respect tonight. Gil Coan is no longer leading off. He was lifted from that spot in deference to his consistent socking since the season started, and dropped into second place, where Bucky Harris has deduced his hits may be more valuable.

Eddie Yost, currently in a batting slump, has been moved up from sixth place to the lead-off post where he, for some reason, has always done his best hitting.

Fogerty Hurls 1-Hitter, Fans 20 As W-L Wins, 5-3

Jack Fogerty threw a one-hitter against Falls Church High last night as Washington-Lee of Arlington won its twelfth straight game, 5-3, at W.-L.

In snapping Fall Church's six-game winning string, Fogerty had a no-hitter until Art Giambatisa singled with two men out in the ninth. Fogerty struck out 20 men.

With a slugging attack that included 4 triples and a double, George Washington High of Alexandria needed a three-run error in the sixth inning to insure a 6-2 victory over Mt. Vernon last night at G. W.

Mt. Vernon Outfielder Jackie Miller muffed George Nolan's long fly in the sixth to allow the Presidents three runs and their first Northern Virginia Group I victory. Losing Pitcher, Will Jacobs, fanned 16 men.

You Can't Hit Ump With a Ball

Phils' Meyer Pays for This Doghouse Trip—Frick Fines Him $200, Suspends Him 7 Days

Philadelphia, May 1 (AP).—Temperamental Russ Meyer is in the doghouse again and this time it cost him a defeat, $200 and a seven-day suspension.

President Ford Frick of the National League today imposed the fine and suspension for throwing a baseball which struck Umpire Al Barlick in a game against the Boston Braves yesterday.

The rumpus occurred in the first game of a doubleheader when Meyer covered first base on a squeeze bunt by Earl Torgeson which scored Sam Jethroe from third. Meyer heatedly claimed that Torgeson was out to retire the side. He threw the ball backwards and it struck Barlick in the leg.

After that he "chested" Barlick and Manager Eddie Sawyer had to lead him to the bench when Barlick ejected him from the game.

The Phillies were trailing 1 to 0 when Meyer made his exit and subsequently dropped a 4 to 1 decision. Meyer was charged with the loss, his third of the season against no victories.

In Peru, Ill., Meyer described the whole thing as "a lousy deal."

Meyer, who flew to his home here after the game, asserted that his hitting of Barlick with the ball was accidental.

"Barlick called Torgeson safe. I charged Barlick and called him a blind so-and-so. He thumbed me out and I popped off some more and walked away. I threw the ball over my shoulder and if it hit him, I didn't intend it to."

NBA Forms 2 Divisions

New York, May 1 (AP).—The 12-team National Basketball Association will have two divisions, Eastern and Western, next season.

NBA President Maurice Podoloff said today the Eastern half will be made up of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Syracuse. The Western Division will include Rochester, Fort Wayne, Minneapolis, Tri-Cities, Chicago and Indianapolis.

Each team will play a 66-game schedule with 33 at home and as many away. Some of the clubs will "farm out" some of their home contests to be played as part of league doubleheaders in other cities.

Eddie Anderson All-Star Coach

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—Dr. Eddie Anderson, back at Holy Cross after a University of Iowa stay, will be head coach of the College All-Star football team for its August 11 date with the Philadelphia Eagles at Soldier Field.

Anderson's second assignment to the all-star helm today was announced by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the grid classic.

May Give Myself Heave-Ho, Hints Giants Lyrical Leo

New York, May 1 (AP).—Was Leo Durocher kidding? Or is the slump of the New York Giants getting him down?

A remark made by the New York Giants manager on a television quiz program had some of the fans wondering today.

"'There'll be some changes made'."

Then he added in the next breath:

Brown Goes to Town to See Dentist

Brooklyn, May 1 (AP).—Brooklyn Outfielder Tommy Brown, suspended because he didn't have his teeth checked, visited a dentist today.

Brown had his teeth X-rayed and planned to join the Dodgers in St. Louis tonight.

Manager Burt Shotton "indefinitely suspended" Brown yesterday for failing to carry out the club's order to see a dentist. All of the other Dodgers had their teeth examined and X-rayed.

Bosox Lose Goodman for Week

Boston, May 1 (AP).—Billy Goodman, Red Sox first baseman who suffered an ankle injury yesterday, will be out of action for a week or more, club doctors said today.

X-rays show a chipped fracture on the left ankle. The Sox have called up big Walter Dropo from Louisville to fill in.

Phils Send Trinkle to Toronto

Philadelphia, May 1 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies today assigned the contract of veteran relief hurler Ken Trinkle to their International League farm club at Toronto.

Yankees Say Wakefield Is Chicago's Baby

New York, May 1 (AP).—The New York Yankees said today they traded Outfielder Dick Wakefield to the Chicago White Sox in "good faith" and consided him the property of the Chicago club.

Frankl Lane, general manager of the White Sox, said yesterday he is canceling the deal because Wakefield refuses to report unless he gets a $5500 raise in salary.

The 29-year-old one-time bonus baby of the Detroit Tigers was traded to the White Sox last weekend for Infielder-Outfielder John Ostroski and cash.

Wakefield, in Ann Arbor, Mich., said he would quit baseball before he'd report to the Chicago club for less than $22,500, the pay he drew at Detroit or return to the Yankees.

George Weiss, genral manager of the Yankees, issued the following statement in New York after an exchange of messages with Chicago officials.

"In the judgment of the New York club we have in good faith made an outright deal with the Chicago club, selling to them the contract of Richard Wakefield.

"There were no conditions in the deal when it was made. We have lived up to all our obligations in making the deal.

"We are therefore taking the stand the player is the property of the Chicago ball club."

The Yankees declined to say what their next step would be to end the impasse. The issue probably will be taken to Commissioner A. B. Chandler if both sides persist in their stand.

GW Wins, 15-6: Pietras Stars

Soph Joe Kennelly made his first pitching start for George Washington U. yesterday and his teammates made it easy for him, coasting to a 15-6 Southern Conference victory over William and Mary.

Ed Spencer struck out five Colonials in a brief 2 1/3-inning stint but meanwhile walked five and was touched for five hits. Big one was the bases-loaded triple by Chet Pietras, who led GW's 10-hit attack by knocking in four runs and scoring four.

The victory was the sixth for the Colonials in eight conference starts.

Joe Hatten Chased After Two Are Out

St. Louis, May 1 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals came from behind with two out in the ninth inning tonight and beat the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers 3—2 in the bitter rivals' first encounter of the season. A wild pitch by Pitcher Willard Ramsdell spelled doom for the Brooks.

Brooklyn held a 2-0 lead when the Cards wen to bat in the ninth. Starting Pitcher Joe Hatten had held the Redbirds to three hits up to that point.

Hatten began the last frame by walking Chuck Diering. Enos Slaughter singled, sending Diering to second. Marty Marion, making his first appearance of the season, pinched for Steve Bilko and struck out.

Eddie Kazak lined out for Johnny Blatnik. Then Shoendienst singled, scoring Diering and that was all for Hatten.

Pinchhitter Bill Howerton, the first man to face Ramsdell, singled to left, scoring the tying run and sending Shoendienst to third.

A wild pitch by Ramsdell scored Schoendienst and the cold, damp fans filed out of the park with a roar.

It had been a pitcher's battle between Hatten and Max Lanier before that fateful ninth. Lanier left the game in the eighth for Pinchhitter Stan Musial, who had been out of the lineup with a sprained knee. Musial grounded out and showed he still has a limp.

Lanier gave up seven scattered hits.

The Dodgers scored their first run in the seventh, which Jackie Robinson opened with a double. Carl Furillo singled and Robinson scooted home.

The Second Dodger score came in the eighth. Hatten opened the frame with a single and advanced on Peewee Reese's sacrifice. Bobby Morgan walked and then Jim Russell scored Hatten with a single.

Mud-Loving Wiley Fox Wins Pimlico's Lerner Purse by 2 Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., May 1.—Wiley Fox, a daughter of Gallant Fox of triple crown fame, found a soggy track to her liking and ran off with the Bud Lerner Purse named for a horse noted for his mud-running ability.

Performing for Mrs. H. A. Campbell, Wiley Fox answered to urging of Jockey Ronnie Nash to win by two lengths. In a photo, second money went to V. Posner's Annie Oakley over M. Sollenberger's Mere Bones.

A field of seven competed with Wiley Fox installed a light favorite. She paid $5.80 and was clocked in 1.13 2/5, good time under the conditions, for the 6 furlong course.

Mere Bones Sets Pace

Mere Bones set the early pace but Wiley Fox was being steadied close up. On the swing to the stretch, Wiley Fox assumed command. Mere Bones rallied as did Annie Oakley, but Nash, aware of danger, did not let up on the Gallant Fox miss and she had daylight in her margin at the end.

Like the feature, the fourth race, the next best offering was for fillies. In this event, Mrs. J. B. Bonds' Tink proved a worthy favorite. Apprentice Joe Culmone kept the daughter of Blue Flyer going long enough to stave off a closing bid by E. L. Morsberger's Minaddie. Third was L. T. Franklin's Wily.

Tink returned $5 mutuel and went through the mucky going in time of 1:15 for the six furlongs.

Double Pays $396

The Charles Town influence was felt in the healthy $396.40 pay-off in the daily double combination of 1 and 12. The jockeys involved were West Virginia flavor. Buddy Root, making his first Maryland appearance of the year, booted home Swamp Rat, owned by Mrs. C. V. Pugh, at a $39.20 mutuel.

Willie Downs, who acquired his polish at the mountain oval, won the second race with M. Sollenberger's Little Bones. The daughter of Mr. Bones had a luke-warm backing at a $9.60 mutuel.

McCloy Teams Up With Gussie to Win Doubles Match

Frankfurt, May 1 (AP).—California tennis star Gertrude (Gussie)) Moran arrived in Germany today—and was immediately challenged to a game by High Commissioner John J. McCloy.

McCloy, 55, sent his challenge to the young star through his deputy, Benjamin Buttenwieser, a long-time friend of the Santa Monica, Calif., player.

Buttenwieser met the tennis star as she arrived at Frankfurt's Rhine-Main airfield from Rome. She will enter an international tennis tournament in Wiesbaden May 3.

Miss Moran and McCloy taemed to win a doubles match, 6—3, 6—3, from Lady Elisabeth Macready and Larry Phillips, a young State Department official from Bethesda, Md.

Then Gussie and Phillips combined to defeat McCloy and Lady Macready, 6—1.

Bates President Hits 'Pro' Trend

Bates College President Charles F. Phillips decried last night the trend of "buy" college athletes. Dr. Phillips spoke to a group of alumni at the home of Fred Awalt, 3921 49th st. nw.

The head of the Lewiston, Me., school said, "Many colleges again are offering substantial financial aid to attract athletes This practice, long followed by a relatively small number of the larger schools, now is increasing among smaller colleges."

Dear Folks: At Pimlico.

Maryland has a strong candidate for the worst named horse, a 2-year-old called Swamp Rat. Ridden by Jockey Root, who is not known as Swamp Root, the juvenile won impressively. In fact, Trainer W. B. Pugh, jr., was offered $10,000 for the son of Lochinvar before the gelding, a first-time starter, came back to the winner's circle. Incidentally, the national champ is an ill-named horse—Big Juice. Fans are minded that Tuesday is an off day at Pimlico so don't make a useless trip unless you're in need of fresh air. Betting here last Saturday was $8000 ahead of the first weekend card last year. The horses Swing Shift and Econette were scratched from the eighth race under the new rule to bar non-winners who have been competing in cheap races. See you on the rail on Wednesday.—BILL.

Early Birds Catch Too Many Trout

By Ralph Murdock

THE COMMISSION of Game and Inland Fisheries of Virginia has a problem. (Page Mr. Anthony.) It pertains to trout fishing.

Murdock

As usual, innumerable fishermen flocked to the trout streams on opening day and met with varying success. There were evidences that abolishment by the General Assembly of the two-day-for-$1 nonresident trip license and substitution of the $10 nonresident season license had the effect of keeping down pressure on the Virginia streams from out-of-State anglers.

The commission is much concerned over the established custom of the people of making a field day of the opening of the trout season each year and catching a large percentage of the recently stocked hatchery trout before these fish have a chance to become acclimated.

The open winter, which made it possible to get the trout into the streams early, helped somewhat. The hatchery output was the largest in history and the fish were widely distributed along the streams. Even this did not prevent a large percentage of the hatchery trout being taken by the early-season anglers. The serious problem is how to provide trout fishing throughout a long season when the early rush is so great. (Mr. Anthony, you take over.)

THE FAIRFAX Wildlife Club of Fairfax, Va., will hold a meeting tonight in the Circuit Courtroom of the Fairfax Courthouse. Eight o'clock is the bewitching hour and the speaker will be Hon. William C. Gloth, jr., of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries. It is rumored that the subject to be discussed will cover more fish, more game, and more conservation.

Just in case you are hardheadminded two croakers were caught off Uncle Billy's Pier at North Beach, Md., on Saturday night.

Browns Lose, Can't Evict Cards From Ball Park

St. Louis, May 1 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns lost out today in their court fight to throw the Cardinals out of Sportsman's Park.

The Browns own the park, but have let the Cardinals share it under a lease for many years.

After the late Sam Breadon sold the Cardinals to Fred Saigh and the late Robert E. Hannegan in 1947, the Browns contended there was a violation of the lease. The case hinged on a technical point—whether the corporation that originally made the lease was within its rights in passing it on to another corporation.

Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson made the decision.

Ward Takes Javelin Title

Bob Ward, Maryland's All-Southern Conference football guard, climaxed his first season on the Terrapin track team by winning the javelin throw in the D. C. AAU championships yesterday at College Park.

Ward, 181-pound New Jersey athlete, threw the javelin 183 feet to beat out a field of nine in the first day of the annual championships. The rest of the field events and all the track events will be run off at Catholic University this afternoon.

After a toss of 178 feet to finish third in the trials, Ward came up with his winning toss on his first trial in the finals. He beat out Ike Eichhorn, Maryland's varsity javelin man, who was second with a throw of 175.9.

Nick Kozay and Tom Tyrrell, both of Maryland, were third and fourth, respectively, with 175.3 and 173.8, while Georgetown's Billy Rose was fifth with 173.2.

And a Lot of Hay

As a Farmer, Sam Snead Makes a Terrific Golfer

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of anecdotes about the colorful golf career of Gene Sarazen, who will appear in The Washington Post's National Celebrities Tournament June 3-4 at Army-Navy Country Club.)

By Gene Sarazen

I HAD A CHAT with Sam Snead last summer. He has a farm, too, and the Slammer wanted to know how my farm in Germantown, N. Y., was coming along. "Not too bad, the drought and everything else considered," I told Sam, "but I wish I had a little more hay in my fields for my cows."

SARAZEN.

"You need hay?" Sam said, starting up abruptly. "Ah ain't got nothin' but hay on mah farm. Hay all over the place, up to your armpits. It's jes' a mess of hay."

"Why haven't you taken your hay in?" I asked Sam. "You should have cut it weeks ago."

"You won't catch me makin' a mistake like that," Sam said, eyeing me as if he suspected I was pulling his leg. "Ah ain't made a nickel from that farm of mine. You ain't gonna catch me throwin' away good money on scythes an' hayin' machines and those other contraptions till that farm begins to pay off jes' as it is."

"But Sam," I pointed out, "how do you ever expect to make money from your farm unless you get your hay in and sell it? You mean to tell me that you just let that hay grow wild and never do anything about it?"

"Thas exactly what Ah mean to say, Gene," Sam said. He nodded his head up and down definitely. "Ah'm gonna totally disregard that hay and the farmhouse and Ah ain't gonna buy no equipment or hire no help till that farm proves to me it's a money maker. Ah refuse to pamper it."

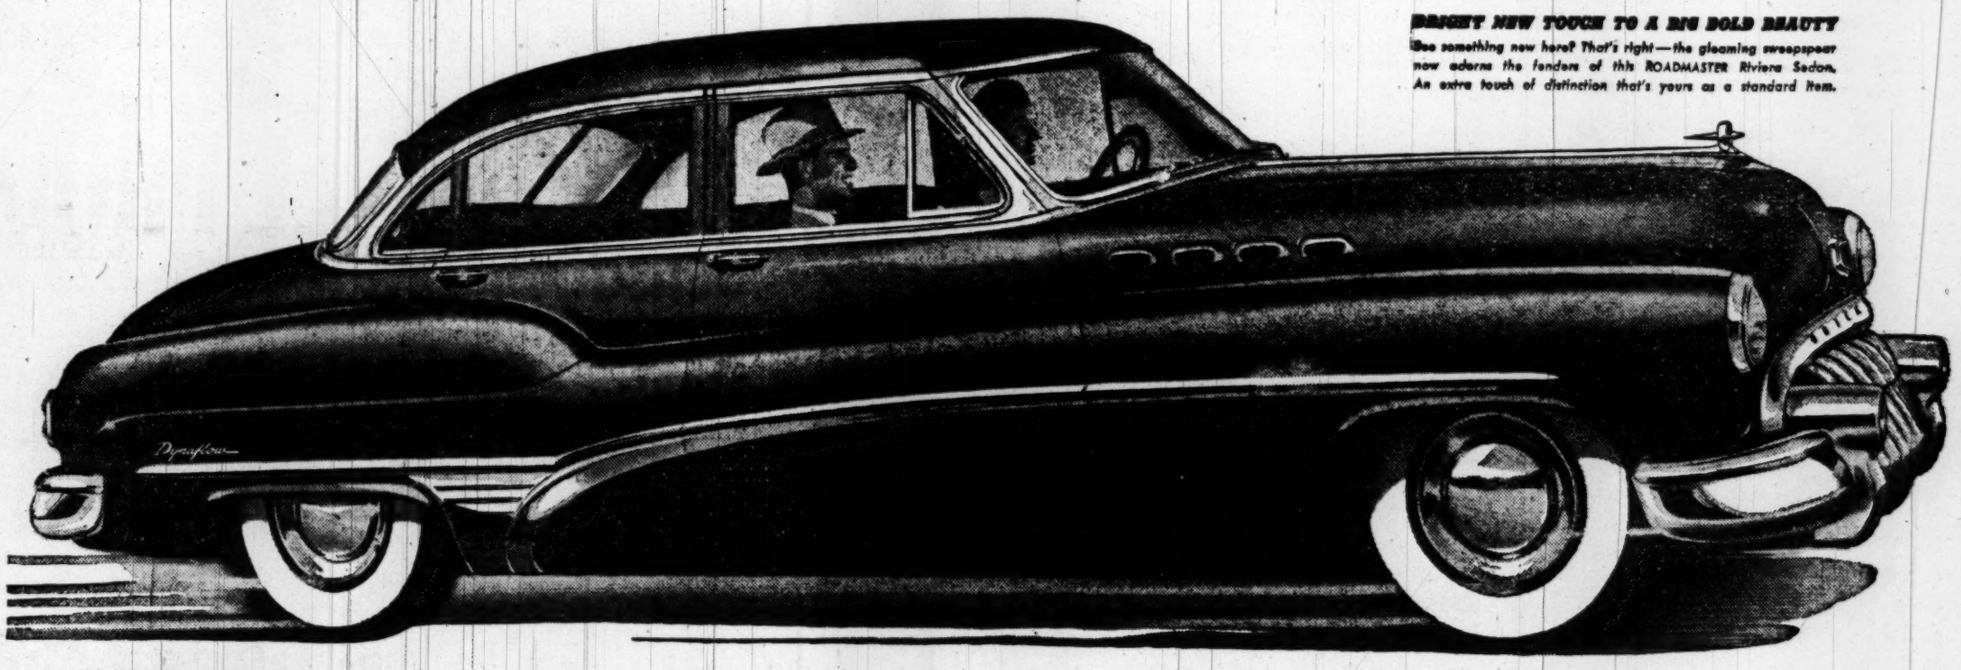
BRIGHT NEW TOUCH TO A BIG BOLD BEAUTY
See something new here? That's right—the gleaming sweepspear now adorns the fenders of this ROADMASTER Riviera Sedan. An extra touch of distinction that's yours as a standard item.



What's the secret of the "UNRUFFLED" RIDE?

SOME car makers say springs make the ride—and so we give every Buick four of the soft, gentle coil springs practically all cars use on front wheels only.

Some say the drive is important—how power is transmitted to the rear wheels.

We agree—and use a torque-tube drive, that takes up all the thrust, freeing rear springs of driving pulsation.

Some stress tires—so you'll find low-pressure casings on every Buick, mounted on our own kind of Safety-Ride rims. Some play up shock absorbers—we make ours fast, soft and sure in action, to wash out all "after-bounce."

Then there are frames—and car weight—and engine mountings, which on Buick are a very special kind used nowhere else.

They're all important—yet the plain truth is no one of these things—or two or three—gives a ride you can truly call "unruffled."

We feel it takes all of them—springs, tires, shock absorbers, drive, engine mountings—carefully and precisely brought into balance with each other.

You can see why we think so in any Buick—SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER.

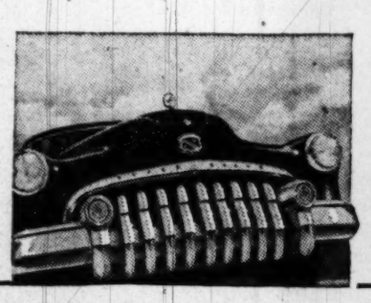
You can feel it on cobblestones and car tracks, washboardy gravel and weather-pocked macadam, country lane and city street. You even feel it on boulevards, which grow still smoother when you travel them in a Buick—especially when it has Dynaflow Drive.*

So we would like you to try a ride that is truly "unruffled." Free of harshness—undisturbed by jounce and jitter—level—steady-going—smooth.

Just ask any Buick dealer for a chance to try out any Buick. You'll find it "the ride of a lifetime"—and the buy of a lifetime too!

*Dynaflow Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

FOUR-WAY FOREFRONT
This rugged front end (1) sets the style note, (2) saves on repair costs—vertical bars are individually replaceable, (3) avoids "locking horns," (4) makes parking and garaging easier.



Only Buick has Dynaflow and with it goes:
HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.)
NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD forefront, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights
WIDE-ANGLE VISIBILITY, close-up road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles
SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube

Steel Union Wins Aluminum

The National Labor Relations Board issued a ruling yesterday which in effect makes the CIO Steelworkers bargaining agent for the organized workers of the aluminum processing industry.

Reversing an earlier decision, the board unanimously took the position, in the interest of industrial peace, that "as a general policy" collective bargaining by separate craft unions will not be permitted in the almunium field.

The decision adversely affects affiliates of the American Federation of Labor and such independent unions as the International Association of Machinists, organized principally along craft lines. The ruling is a big boost to the million-member United Steelworkers of America, which is organized on an industry-wide basis. Within the CIO, the aluminum workers are affiliated with the Steelworkers.

This is only the third time that the NLRB has decided to prohibit craft unions from an entire industry. The basic steel-producing industry and the lumber industry have been similarly committed to collective bargaining on an industry-wide scale.

The steel decision gave the CIO Steelworkers nearly exclusive jurisdiction in that field. In the lumber industry, however, there is still keen competition over employe representation between AFL and CIO affiliates, such as the AFL Carpenters and CIO Woodworking.

Last year, in a representation dispute at the Reynolds aluminum plant at Bellwood, Va., the board ordered a craft-unit election among 45 machinists. In overruling the earlier decision, the board said yesterday:

"We have been presented with more cogent evidence of the integrated and interdependent character of the more basic operations in the aluminum industry and its similarity in major respect to the basic steel industry."

Employers Told to Educate Workers Against Leftist 'Blandishments'

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

American businessmen were urged yesterday to educate their employes against the "blandishments of left-wing propaganda" that "seeks to poison the minds of the workers."

Chief among a half dozen speakers who warned the United States Chamber of Commerce at the Statler Hotel against Government socialism were two Republican hopefuls, Senator Robert A. Taft (Ohio) and former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota. Each drew outbursts of applause whenever he scored a particularly sharp blow at New Deal or Fair Deal policies.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer last night invited the Chamber to join him in a campaign to teach Americans that their prosperity depends on a "profitable and a constantly growing business community."

Sawyer w,ho talked to two dinner sessions of chamber delegates in the same evening, closed each address with the same appeal—that "the many diverse business groups" make a concerted effort to explain and emphasize the contributions of business to the national life.

Businessmen have "a sale to make and the sale has not been closed," Sawyer declared.

Stassen was applauded repeatedly, and the spirit of his luncheon audience was such that he continuously wandered from his text in ripping into present economic and political trends. Only once or twice did he refer to the Truman administration; the rest of the time he directed his thrusts towards administration programs generally.

His hearers shouted approval when he called "inflation a cowardly Government method of financing," and again when he warned that there "never was a loafers' paradise that didn't wind up in a political hellhole."

In a preceding address, Claude Robinson, president of the Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, N. J., reported that "people do not understand business." Robinson said that the greater the ignorance about business, profits and the profit system, and about labor relations, the greater was the antipathy of workers towards business. He told of polls his organization made to point up the problem.

Stassen then explained from the standpoint of an educator, how the ignorance Robinson outlined could be overcome.

"In so far as the workers of the world are concerned," Stassen said, "American capitalism is the most undersold economic system in all history. Socialism and Communism are the most oversold economic systems in all history."

Stassen said he came to Washington for his talk, "because I don't like some of the things I've been seeing and hearing about the social and economical problems in Washington."

He then drew applause when he added that he understood that President Truman is leaving soon on a long "unpolitical" trip, "because he doesn't like some of the things he is hearing from the country."

Stassen said that the "most important informational job that needs to be done in America is to develop a better understanding by the American workman of the modern capitalistic system.

"If they get to understand it, they will never change it," he asserted. "If they get to thoroughly understand it, they will force both major political parties to stop the drift toward socialism in this country.

"If they get to thoroughly understand it, this country will retain such freedom and such economic power that it will definitely win the cold war, and roll back the tide of communism and oppression."

Stassen said that the "American workman today is grossly misinformed about the operation of his own economic system. It is not surprising. He has been subjected to a steady bombardment of misinformation by left-wingers, by many labor leaders, and by many politicians, and by a few educators. He has received precious little accurate information from businessmen or politicians in understandable form."

Fitting into the program were two pamphlets that made their appearance as Stassen finished. Both dealt with the sort of educational program he urged. One was called "Let's Take the Offensive." The other was "Investment for Jobs."

Taft urged the Chamber to "meet the direct attack of the socialists" that are pushing this country "into the complete totalitarian state." One after another he took up policies of the Truman administration and denounced them.

"Big business wants protection for its profits," he said. "Little business wants protection from big business. Farmers want the Government to guarantee parity prices. Labor wants every man guaranteed a job."

Businessmen, he said, should oppose proposals which he said would "regulate every buiness operation in detail; regulate each farm; regulate every boy as in universal military training.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Annuity Plan Approved For Laid-Off Workers With Long U. S. Service

RETIREMENT: A Senate subcommittee yesterday tentatively approved a plan to allow laid off employes who have 20 or more years of service to retire on reduced annuities.

In each case, the annuity would be discounted 3 percent for every year the laid-off employe is under 60.

Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) agreed to introduce a bill to cover the plan following a meeting with his Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Subcommittee.

STORY: Representative James Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) recalled to the House the other day that his father was chairman of the House Agriculture Committee in 1905. At that time, he said, his father was really worried because the department was to get a 15-million-dollar appropriation, compared with 769 million dollars today. His father asked him:

"Son, do you know what an expert in the Department of Agriculture is? I told him I was not sure. He said: 'I will tell you. An expert in the Department of Agriculture is a man who can make two dollars grow in an appropriation bill where one grew before.'"

BUDGET SHIFT: Charles B. Stauffacher yesterday was appointed to the $14,000 job of executive assistant director of the Budget Bureau. He's one of the youngest men to hold a top-flight Federal post. He succeeds Elmer B. Staats who was recently promoted to assistant director of the Budget Bureau. William F. Finan will succeed Stauffacher as assistant director in charge of administrative management. He was chief fo the bureau's international branch.

LEAVE: A congresional committee, after a long study, came to this conclusion:

"The committee feels that the time has come for a restoration of annual leave to the employes of the Government, and feels that this is justified because most of the employes in Washington, and many of those in the field, come from places away from where they work, and wish to use their vacations for visits home.

"Any absence from the office even for a few minutes is charged to annual leave granted to the employes. If they want to have a check cashed at the bank, it is charged to annual leave; if they must go to a dentist, or should they wish to attend a funeral, the time occupied in such activities is charged to annual leave. The result is that with only 15 days annual, when vacation time comes, the average employe has only a few days left.

"It is fair to point out that in private employment such absences as above referred to do not interfere with the usual two-week vacation."

The report was made by the House Civil Service Committee in 1935. The arguments made then are substantially true today

The full leave story, however, goes back to March 3, 1893, when a law was passed to give most Federal workers 30 days annual and 30 days sick leave annually. The law was in effect for many years, until the economy act of June 30, 1932, when annual was cut to 15 days and sick leave was left up to the President.

The full leave cut lasted less than four years. The act of March 14, 1936, increased leave for classified and per diem employes to 26 days and sick leave to 15 days annually. it has been in effect since but it's now seriously threatened for the first time by the various moves on Capitol Hill to either cut to restrict annual and sick leave GAO: The General Accounting Office is supporting a bill in Congress to take away a bit of its authority.

Under the present law, the family of an employe who dies must get his final paycheck cleared through GAO. This process takes weeks and sometimes months as GAO makes certain the Government has no claim against the dead employe before final settlement is allowed

Meantime, the widow and children are denied money when they need it the most; GAO, has a heart. It's now proposing that the agencies be given the authority to make the final salary payments to the distressed families. Congress probably will approve the bill.

$15 Million FDIC Building Backed By Senate Group

O'Conor Discloses Plan to Retain Social Security Unit in Baltimore

Three major proposed building projects for the Washington area figured yesterday in these Congressional developments:

1. A proposed 15-million-dollar building for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was approved by a Senate Public Works subcommittee.

2. A scaled-down plan for a new Senate office building was referred by the Senate legislative appropriations subcommittee, headed by Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) to Capitol Architect David Lynn for preparation of detailed cost estimates.

3. Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) told his colleagues Baltimore businessmen have worked out a proposal to keep some 5000 employes of the Social Security Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance in their city. He introduced a bill to authorize the plan, as a substitute to moving the bureau to a new office building in the Washington area, probably at Suitland, Md.

Blair Block Sale Approved

In another action, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to authorize Federal Government purchase of property now privately owned in the block that includes Blair House and Blair Lee House. The measure cleared the House by unanimous consent and now goes to the Senate. An identical measure was indorsed yesterday by a Senate public works subcommittee.

Senator Ellender said his subcommittee's instructions to Capitol Architect Lynn did not constitute any signal to proceed with construction of a new Senate office building.

Plan Revision Asked

Ellender said Lynn was asked to revise plans and estimate their cost for the 1st st. ne., only wing of the Senate office building, to contain about 200 office rooms and 6 committee rooms. He said Lynn had presented an earlier cost estimate of about 12 million for a similar design, but with 6 more committee rooms and a score fewer offices.

Senator O'Conor told the Senate the plan to keep the Bureau of Old Age and Survivors Insurance in Baltimore calls for Baltimore business and banking interests to build the bureau an office building to Government specifications, then lease it to the Government and apply the rent to retiring the cost of the building.

Boy Critical After Striking Tension Wire

Ten-year-old Harold McDonald was taken to Casualty Hospital in critical condition about 6 p. m. yesterday after he hit an 11,000-volt railroad electric line while playing with friends near the Benning freight station.

The boy, son of Mrs. Cleo McDonald, 3732 Foote st. ne., was frolicking on the tops of Pennsylvania Railroad freight cars strung along the rails under the Benning rd. ne. viaduct.

After Harold struck the line, his playmates scattered. Passersby summoned Rescue Squad No. 1 and he was rushed to Casualty Hospital.

His condition was critical as plasma was administered. The burns were first, second and third degree, over his chest, arms and head.

Her husband, William D. Mansberry, 39, was at work, the detective said. The Mansberrys were living in the trailer while building a house on the land.

24th D. C. Death

Three Dead In Traffic Accidents

A Bolling Air Base sergeant was killed and two other soldiers were injured last night in an accident on the Baltimore-Washington blvd., and a 23-year-old University of Maryland engineering student died of traffic injuries suffered Sunday.

The man killed was identified as Sergt. Lenwood J. Tackle, 24, of Bremerton, Wash., attached to the headquarters company at Bolling. The car in which he was riding overturned at 8:50 p. m. He was dead on arrival at the Fort Meade station hospital, of head and internal injuries.

Slightly injured were Sergt. Silous H. Eastwood, attached to the 1100th Maintenance Supply Co., at Bolling, identified as driver of the car; and Pfc. Donald T. Buckley, 19, of the same organization.

Both were treated for cuts and bruises.

Maryland State Trooper Kenneth H. Tichnell charged Eastwood with manslaughter and reckless driving. He was held in $1100 bond for trial May 9 at Savage, Md.

Police said the auto headed toward Baltimore, failed to negotiate a curve on the highway about 500 yards from the State Police barracks at Waterloo, Md.

They said it skidded across the highway to the left and hurtled over on its side. Tackle was hurled from the auto.

The District's twenty-fourth traffic fatality of the year was Robert Halstead, 23, a University of Maryland student, who died at 10:30 p. m. in Casualty Hospital.

Halstead, who also worked at the Glenn Dale, Md., Sanitorium, was struck Sunday afternoon as he was getting into a car in the 3400 block of Eastern ave. ne. A companion escaped with slight injuries. Halstead was admitted to Casualty with a fractured leg and a possible skull fracture.

Army Pvt. Stanley V. Jablonowski, 29, died at Walter Reed Hospital at 8 a. m. yesterday of injuries suffered in an auto crash last Thursday at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Fort Belvoir authorities said Jablanowski was a passenger in a car being chased by military police on the post. The car went out of control, skidded about 200 feet and crashed into a tree, they said.

Jablonowski, whose home is in Cohoes, N. Y., was thrown from the car and suffered a fractured skull. He had been in the Army for more than nine years, four of them overseas during World War II with the 523d Engineers.

Fort Belvoir authorities said the car was driven by Corpl. Philip Berbon, 24. He was unhurt.

Arthur C. Mullen, 58-year-old Alexandria Water Co. employe, died early yesterday of injuries suffered in a Fairfax County traffic accident Sunday afternoon.

$27,000 Policy In Blast Death To Be Collected

The parents of a 21-year-old war veteran killed in a 1946 explosion that wrecked his home will collect on a $27,000 insurance policy as a result of a Supreme Court action yesterday.

The court refused to consider an appeal by the Charter Oak Fire Insurance Co. and the U. S. Fire Insurance Co. from a decision of the lower courts that they must pay. The argument was over the coverage in the policy and whether it applied.

The blast wrecked the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Gerrity at 6109 Nevada ave. nw. and killed their son, Edward. The coroner said he died from carbon monoxide and was either dead or unconscious when gas exploded in the basement.

Officer Backed In Bigamy Court-Martial

Colonel Tilley Said To Have Brought Girl From Italy as Wife

By The Associated Press

Counsel in the court-martial of Col. Ralph C. Tilley, accused of bigamously marrying a young Italian woman, agreed yesterday that the police chief of La Spezia, Italy, would testify—if present—that the woman had had love affairs with several German soldiers.

George J. Banigan of New York, defense attorney, offered a stipulation as to what the Italian police chief would testify if he were here.

Maj. John W. Wiseheart, the prosecutor, agreed to the stipulation.

Colonel Tilley is attached to the Adjutant General's Office at the Pentagon. He is accused of conduct unbecoming a gentleman, specifically of bigamy and harboring an alien.

The prosecution contends that Tilley brought Jonhilde Bruno, a young Italian woman, to this country in 1948 on a passport representing her as his wife. The colonel is now living in Falls Church, Va., with his wife, Elizabeth. The young Italian woman and her 18-month-old son live in nearby Maryland.

Tilley's court-martial began some time ago with prosecution evidence. Yesterday's session was devoted to the defense.

Maj. Gen. L. C. Jaynes, a special assistant to the Chief of Staff of the Army regarding civilian employment activities, testified that the colonel's reputation as an officer and a gentleman is outstanding.

Neither Mrs. Elizabeth Tilley nor Jonhilde Brupo was present at the court-martial yesterday. The trial will be resumed at Fort Myer today.

Bidder Trouble

D. C. Tackles Problem on Lot Lease

While District government officials were figuring out what to do about bids on the city-owned lot at 6th st. and Indiana ave. nw., one bidder moved in yesterday and started operating.

The B. & J. Parking Service, which now appears to be the high bidder with an offer of $80,313 for the 19 months remaining on the lot's lease, started "on the strength" of the bid.

Julius Sirkus, who said he and his wife were partners in the firm, explained, "Someone had to take care of the cars that had been parking here."

City officials were less certain about what to do.

It all started when Benjamin Wollberg, who held the lease, told the Commissioners he was losing money and would give up the lot last Sunday.

District Auditor A. R. Filkerton then called for bids for the 19 months and found the highest was that of of Gerald Carroll, who offered $83,733, on the assumption the lease was for 24 months. When h leearned otherwise, he asked permission to withdraw the bid.

This left B. & J. as top bidder, but the city heads have not yet approved the bid withdrawal or acceptance of the B. & J. offer, Pilkerton reported.

Animal Antics Prove Spring Has Arrived

• Spring made its revitalizing presence felt in the animal kingdom yesterday with the following results:

1. Two goats invaded gardens in the rear of the 2800 block McKinley pl. nw.

2. A snake, believed a copperhead, was cut in two in the 3100 block of M pl. se., by an embattled housewife armed with a shovel.

3. A parakeet, which may have been the pet lost five days ago by Mrs. Edwerta Gough, 5502 Grove st., Chevy Chase, was reported perched outside a third-floor window at 2131 Bancroft pl. nw.

The goats, irate neighbors said, were part of a herd owned by Paul E. Holmes, an insurance man of 5700 Oregon ave. nw., whose "goat ranch" adjoins the McKinley pl. homes.

Investigation showed the reptile was brought to bay on the pavement by Mrs. Theresa Martin, 3158 M pl. se., following an alarm sounded by Mrs. Hugh V. Lewis of 3150 M pl. se.

The 18-inch snake had been neatly halved by the time police arrived.

Meantime, Mrs. Gough reported sadly that she had examined some seven parakeets found in the last few days but none of them was her missing pet Butchie.

Third Warring Suspect Seized On N. Y. Charges

In Quinn Trial

'Back Stage' Gaming Scene Is Promised

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The prosecution yesterday promised to show a District Court jury how a "typical horse-betting room" operated behind a newsstand front last January at 427 10th st. nw.

On trial for illegal wagering and keeping a gaming table for horse betting are John L. Quinn; his brother, William W. Quinn, and Thomas B. White. All three were arrested after a United States marshal's raid at the newsstand, known as "Barber's," in March, 1949.

Assistant United States Attorney John C. Conliff, jr., told the jury his main witness will be Wilfred D. Barrett, a Columbus University law student assigned to the United States Attorney's office, who acted as the undercover man.

Made 15 Visits

Barrett, Conliff said, went to the premises on 15 occasions before he finally was admitted to the "horse shop" on January 6, 1949.

There Barrett saw 10 to 15 men present, scratch sheets tacked to the wall, other racing data, a radio blaring out results and bets being taken by the Quinns, the jury was told. White, according to Conliff, shouted out race results and otherwise assisted in bookmaking operations.

Barrett is to testify he placed several bets with the Quinns and once won a wager there on a horse.

After Conliff's opening statement, Judge Jennings Bailey adjourned the trial until Wednesday. With Conliff for the Government is Assistant United States Attorney William Arnold.

Complaint Made by Woman

The newsstand was the object of police surveillance in March, 1949, after a woman wrote a letter to a newspaper complaining of activities there. Police reported they could find no illegal activity.

In one of several raids at the instigation of the United States Attorney's office, marshals broke into the place on March 25, 1949, to find the alleged betting room out of operation.

Representing the defendants are Attorneys Edward B. Williams and Nicholas J. Chase.

Manslaughter Charges Hold Two Men

One indictment charged James Tyson, 31, of 605 56th st. ne., drove an automobile with "wanton recklessness," which resulted in the death of Irving Wright, 35, of 1127 2d st. se., a passenger in Tyson's car. Wright was killed last October 16, when Tyson's car struck a streetcar.

Willie Littlejohn, 25, of 40 I st. ne., was indicted for manslaughter in the death of George E. Thomas, 26, of 920 st. ne., who was fatally shot after stabbing Littlejohn March 21.

Among 35 indictments returned were six that charged seven persons with gambling violations.

Robert L. Shepherd, 52, of 4029 Columbia Pike, Arlington, Va., was indicted for setting up a gaming table, operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips. Police said he was arrested March 28, in an apartment at 3241 N st. nw.

James H. Johnson, 26, of 226 55th st. ne., a Post Office clerk, was indicted on charges of taking three checks, totaling $252, from the mail; forging and cashing them. He was also indicted for forging and cashing a fourth check for $83.

Kenneth E. Shipe, 28, whose address was given as 1820 N st. nw., was indicted on a false pretenses charge. Police said he purchased an automobile for $1402 February 25 and paid for it with a check, drawn on a bank where he had no account.

Andrew H. Turner, 27, of 419 Temple ct. sw., was indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon (an auto) on Police Pvt. Rudyard Hesse, whom he nearly ran down at 14th and F sts. nw. April 22.

Oysterman Drowns In Fall From Boat

Harland Harris, 38, an oysterman of Deals Island, Talbot County, Md., was drowned yesterday when he fell from a fishing boat at the mouth of Broad Creek near Deals Island.

Arthur Pelkisson, 40, Accused of Series Of Bronx Holdups; $50,000 Bond Set

The third member of a gun-toting trio that, according to police, pulled off a $33,000 holdup here last January 9, in the home of Gambler Emmitt Warring was under arrest yesterday in New York City.

Pelkisson

The man, Arthur Pelkisson, 40, was held in $50,000 bond on an indictment charghim with a series of Bronx apartment holdups.

Previously implicated in the Warring holdup were bulky Sidney Stromberg, 32, now held on a murder charge in Pennsylvania, and Malcolm Epstein, 40, held in Pittsburgh on 18 charges of armed robbery, holdup and larceny.

All three were identified by Warring's brother-in-law, William Cady, and Louise Enos, a maid, who were present during the holdup in the Warring home at 3900 Macomb st. nw. They identified Pelkisson before his arrest through photographs.

Capt. Robert V. Murray, assistant chief of detectives, said Detective Sergts. Nunzio Bonaccorsy and James Roche will take Cady and the maid to New York sometime this week to see if they can pick Pelkisson in a line-up.

As in the cases of Stromberg and Epstein, it appears doubtful Pelkisson will be brought here in the near future to face local charges.

He has a record of 10 arrests and two felony convictions in New York and faces a stiff sentence if convicted on the new charges.

Bronx Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Breslin described Pelkisson as a "vicious criminal" who "brutally and unnecessarily assaults his victims."

He was arrested in New York Sunday night after detectives trailed him through a new car he had bought.

The indictment charges that last January 14, Palkisson took $800 cash and $200 in jewelry from Abraham Berg at his apartment in the Bronx, and that last December 13, he was one of a trio that held up Irving and Sonia Goodman in their Bronx apartment.

Two men already have been sent to prison for the Goodman holdup.

Lone Holdupman Robs Radio Shop At Point of Gun

A lone bandit stole between $75 and $100 and a table model radio in an armed holdup last night at the Northeast Radio Repair Service, 727½ 12th st. ne.

Lawrence P. Glenn, coowner, told police he was alone in the shop about 5:30 p. m. when a man in his early thirties walked in, pulled out a snubnosed revolver and demanded his money.

Glenn said he handed over his wallet, and the thief picked up a table model radio as he fled.

The report presumably deals with rported erasures in Third Precinct records and perhaps other differences between Capt. Anthony Richitt—recently transferred from the Third to Eighth Precints—and his chief, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett.

What in the world could take its place?

Of all the necessities in your home, we believe you'll agree the telephone is one of the most useful.

'A willing helper, it's always ready and able to save you steps and time. To run an errand. Make an appointment. Help with the shopping. Put you in touch with a friend or loved one—in or out of town. Around the clock, throughout the year, it's near at hand when you need it most. To call a doctor. To summon help in any emergency.

Just add up the convenience, happiness and protection your telephone affords—you'll see that it's one of the biggest bargains in your family budget.

Few things give you so MUCH for so little

Batter (or Ballerina) Up!

Ballet the Sport Of Supple Queens

By Sonia Stein

THE STAGE at Lisner Auditorium may not look much like Griffith Stadium to you, but there's a close relationship between them, according to Zina Ouzarova, Washington ballerina whose pupils will be twirling their starched skirts on the stage at Lisner May 7, even as the Nats are dirtying up their uniforms on the stadium diamond.

The baseball player—or, for that matter, almost any athlete—goes through most of the motions of the old classical art of ballet every time he plays a game, the Russian-born ballerina claims.

The baseball pitcher indulges in a "croisee devant" and an "arabesque" as he works. The football player's drop kick exists in ballet as a "battement."

The big difference is that the athletes propel something through the air or catch something or otherwise provide a goal for their gyrations.

Ballet, like beauty, is its own excuse for being. Yet the dancers give an exquisite display of form, muscular coordination, timing and sheer physical endurance that parallels that of the greatest athletes.

Good Exercise For the Girls

FOR this reason, Ouzarova thinks ballet is an ideal exercise as well as an art. While junior is getting his muscle tone playing sandlot baseball, Mary Jane can be getting hers in ballet classes. In fact, Ouzarova makes bold to suggest that little girls will someday gang up and take over one end of the lot to enjoy a "grand jete en tournant" while the boys belt the cover off a baseball at the other end.

Ballet is perhaps a shade lighter exercise than football, and somewhat more ladylike, but Ouzarova doesn't pretend that it is all as delicate as it looks under the gossamer cloak of tulle and dim lighting.

"Ballet girls specialize for bumps and bruises," she says in her slightly jumbled English. "But they are so healthy just the same. When the virus had so many girls sick, it didn't touch the ones in my ballet class near so much."

"That was noticed even by the principals of the schools," she adds, referring to the half dozen public and private schools in the Washington area where she teaches.

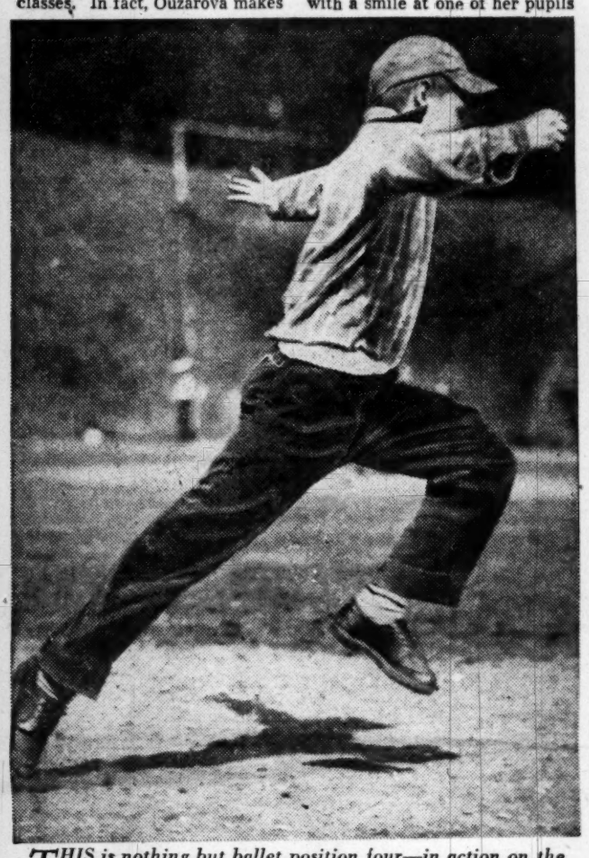
Ballet Offers Minor Hazards

"OF COURSE, we are not made of metal," she said with a smile at one of her pupils whose mercurochromed knee was proof indeed of that sad truth.

The ballerina herself, who started taking lessons to improve her health, hasn't missed a dancing lesson in seven years. A professional ballet dancer who danced in Monte Carlo, where she was raised, in Paris and all over Europe and in South America, Ouzarova learned that the fine art of "training" as a ballerina doesn't differ from an athlete's regime very much. Much beef, few sweets, no liquor and no cigarettes are a ballet dancer's diet. Ouzarova eats a hearty breakfast—mainly beefsteak, says her husband, I. A. Kazine, who is an engineer here—and eats very lightly the rest of the day.

The girls of the ballet learn to eat sensibly, Ouzarova says. And they learn teamwork and discipline just as the boys do in sports, she insists. And then, explaining for the 130th time to the 130 members of her corps de ballet, that a correct ballet tutu consists of either 12 or 14 inches of ruffled net, and not a skimpy 11 inches, the rugged little ballerina sat down to catch her breath. And obedient to the Umpire of the Tutu, the little girls will appear in 12-inch tutus this Sunday, every costume "uniform," every movement disciplined and every muscle in trim.

THIS is nothing but ballet position four—in action at dancing school. But it has all the qualities of an athlete's gyrations and serves the same good purpose, says ballerina Ouzarova whose students these are. At left, Miss Margaret E. Cheney, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Cheney, and at right, Miss Caroline Maria Spiegel, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Spiegel.



THIS is nothing but ballet position four—in action on the sandlot—according to Zina Ouzarova, Washington ballerina. Sports use all of the ballet positions and are to boys what ballet is to girls: good exercise that builds strong healthy bodies, the ballerina says. Donald McMurray, II, (above) hadn't thought about it that way. He just thought he was having a good time

Science Keeps You Young

Accent on Youth Means Health

CLAUDETTE COLBERT demonstrates that a healthy, pretty smile is a sign of youth, no matter how many birthdays have accumulated.

By Ida Jean Kain

BIRTHDAYS to the contrary, we do not all age at the same rate. Physiologically we can be years older or younger than our legal age. The promise that today a person of 60 can be as young, vigorous and vital as the average person of 40 is as exciting as finding the fountain of youth in middle age.

Age tests in many ways parallel health tests. "She who stays healthy stays young," is an old proverb. Way back there, staying young and healthy was largely left to chance. Now we have geriatrics, that branch of medical science which deals with age.

But instead of regarding geriatics only as medical care for older people, think of it as anti-aging medical service. By taking advantage of this science of geriatrics, our forties can take care of our fifties, the fifties of the sixties, and we can advance vigorously into our seventies and eighties. By living on a high level of health through the middle period of life, we can have a healthy, enjoyable old age—not just old age. The geriatrics examination takes in all the factors of aging.

Need Continual Body Repair

NOW to nutrition, for nutrition more than any other one thing influences the rate at which we age. We speak glibly of the normal wear and tear that is part of everyday living, but what does this mean? It means that material is required constantly to take care of the necessary tissue repair, as well as for the continuous upkeep of the vital internal activities.

Machine of Life Repairs Itself

The body is the most wonderful of all machines in that it can repair itself, given the proper materials. It stands to reason that the foods which furnish these materials in abundance are essential to keeping the body vigorously young.

We are what we eat . . . that's for sure. So what materials are used for this vital repair work? Protein is the chief nutrient, for our bodies are made up largely of protein. A protein deficiency affects the whole person. The minerals, calcium and phosphorus, nourish the nerves and protect bones, teeth and tissues. Iron builds red blood, and while small amounts are needed, nothing can take its place. The vitamins play an important role as body regulators and energy spark plugs.

Choice of Right Food Essential

TO BE well-nourished means more than filling up and appeasing hunger. The right choice of foods is essential, for certain foods contribute considerably more protection than others. The essential nutrients are furnished in everyday foods so it is easy to get them with the right choice of food.

Here is the daily pattern of eating to see how young you are staying . . .

MILK: Two to three glasses. Fresh whole milk, buttermilk or skim milk; or evaporated or dried milk can all be used.

FRUIT: One citrus fruit or juice, fresh, canned or frozen, plus one or two other fruits.

VEGETABLES: One dark green or yellow, plus two others.

EGGS: One daily—at least five a week.

MEAT, FISH, POULTRY: A serving a day.

BREAD AND CEREAL: Whole-grain or enriched, amount depending on weight.

BUTTER OR MARGARINE: Three pats.

Conservative But Lonely Married Man Picks Up Woman in Bar, Spends Night Talking, by Dawn Has Lost His Heart to Her; He Asks Guidance

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a business man of middle age, married, father of two children now in their teens. While I do appreciate the charms of the opposite sex, I am not what is known as a wolf or woman chaser. I love my wife, am very fond of my children and wouldn't want to hurt them in any way. We have all the necessities and some of the luxuries of life and apparently I should be very happy.

I see very little of my children, as they have their friends, their dates, and are on the go all the time. My wife keeps herself busy with the house, church and social activities, so that in the evenings I am left to myself and get bored, restless and lonely.

I have got in the habit of taking frequent business trips to New York, where at nights I go to a certain bar near Broadway for feminine companionship. This consists in taking a girl to dinner, a show, a night club, etc., and that's as far as I go, because I have no desire to become involved with that type of woman. When romantic overtures are made, and they often are, I decline with thanks. These dates are stimulating but usually I forget them in a day or so.

Is It a Fancy That Will Fade?

SOME weeks ago I became acquainted in this way with Marie, a woman certainly not young or pretty, but in some way she attracted me very much. After spending the evening with her I broke a precedent by asking to see her home and if I could stop in. There we sat on the sofa side by side and talked through the night until dawn. I liked watching her and listening to her conversation, and she in turn was a very sympathetic listener, as I found in telling her about my problems.

I found myself very reluctant to leave, but at dawn I put on my hat and coat and suddenly we were in each other's arms, she whispering please not to go and clinging to me. I calmed her as best I could and when she regained composure she apologized, asked me not to think too harshly of her and please to get in touch with her next time I'm in town.

I can't seem to get her out of my mind. I want to see her again but keep asking myself, is it wise? What can this lead to? Eventually somebody would get hurt—my wife, family, Marie, even myself. Is this a passing fancy that will be forgotten in time? But she does provide something I lack at home. I was contented and relaxed in her company, no longer bored, restless and lonely. Am I exemplifying the saying, "No fool like an old fool?" Please advise. V. Y.

This Is Symptom, Not the Problem

DEAR V. Y.: You are reporting symptoms, which shouldn't be construed as the essential problem. You are in flight from psychological intimacy with anyone, and that includes wife and children.

You are steeled against a total invasion of love from any quarter, and yet you hunger for this soul satisfying experience, which carries a price you aren't willing to pay. This price includes the brave surrender of all the emotional baggage of false pride and false pretenses, which protect a person from emotional hurts of various kinds.

In obedience to the herd instinct, you've established a family as a base of physical companionship. However, your relationship to wife and children has hardly more depth than rubbing shoulders, due to your chronic aloofness of feeling. That's why you are lonely, why your children tend to lead "their own lives" and why your wife busies herself with many things, to assuage her sense of "something missing" at the core of her married experience.

An Explanation of the Incident

TO ASSUAGE your loneliness, you resort to pick-up dates, which by their very nature afford warrant to beware involvement, yet create an illusion of intimacy for the hour. By that arrangement, your neurotic system of defense kills two birds with one stone, so to speak.

It appears you were drawn to Marie, and she to you, by immediate tacit recognition of being alike, neurotically. You have the affinity of a common problem and overtly kindred temperaments—lonely and locked in. Owing to the negative quality of the affinity, a romance wouldn't solve anything for either of you; and indeed could only conjure pointless anxieties to confuse you further. In my opinion the constructive antidote to the worrisome attraction is to tackle the underlying, longstanding problem, with the help of a first-rate psycho-analyst. M. H.

Wants GOP To Speak Up On Its Views

The Republican Party can do much to affect a bipartisan foreign policy, according to John Sherman Cooper, newly appointed Republican consultant to Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

In an address before the D. C. League of Republican Women yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel, Mr. Cooper stated the minority party should anticipate issues in foreign policy, prepare its own views on these issues and then present them to the Administration.

This way the party could have a real voice in policy making, he asserted.

In calling for a bipartisan policy, Mr. Cooper stated that "some issues transcend party interest and should receive the maximum agreement possible."

The speaker, former Senator from Kentucky and delegate to the United Nations General Assembly, was appointed consultant to Secretary Acheson for the Foreign Ministers' conference in London opening Monday, May 8.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, program chairman of the club, introduced the guest speaker, and Mrs. Carroll Kearns, president, presided.

Easter Bunny Turns Prematurely Gray After a Hard Life; Anne Tells How to Restore His Looks

DEAR ANNE:
I would like to know how to clean a large white and yellow Easter bunny. The cleaners say they do not handle that type of cleaning. J. C., Remington, Va.

I take it this rabbit is the plush-covered toy variety, hence will not refer your question to our livestock editor.

Such stuffed animals can usually be cleaned by shampooing, in much the same way that carpets and upholstery are shampooed. You might make a test on the yellow portion of his coat first to be sure it won't fade. Also be very careful not to let water soak into the stuffing, as it might discolor the cover.

If you find his jacket color-fast, proceed as follows: Prepare a soap jelly by dissolving 1 cup mild soap flakes or chips in 2 cups warm water. Let stand until cool and jellied, then whip with an egg beater until you have a stiff froth.

Next, apply suds only to the plush with a brush, working with a circular motion. When suds become soiled, remove with blunt knife and use fresh suds. When coat is clean, remove suds and wipe with a damp cloth, rinsing and wringing the cloth out of clear water frequently. If you work quickly in this manner the filler should not become wet.

When clean, rub the animal with a dry cloth to hasten drying. Hang by the ears in the sun and breeze to dry thoroughly, brushing occasionally to fluff the nap.

DEAR ANNE:
After having our apartment painted, we have been unable to open one of the windows from the top. We have tried banging the frame and prying at it without success. Any suggestions you may have will be greatly appreciated.
Mrs. Horace Gold, 5311 8th st. nw.

Here are a few more suggestions of the banging-prying variety, plus a scheme to follow if these fail. Try them after a spell of dry weather, when the wood in the window isn't expanded from humidity.

Place a block of wood on the frame of the window and strike it with a hammer. Moving the block along all sides, striking it in each position, will possibly move the window sideways to crack the paint along the edge of the frame and loosen it.

If this doesn't work, then run a thin-bladed knife such as a putty knife along the crack between the screen and the frame to cut the hardened paint.

Last resort in such cases is to remove the strip of molding that forms the front edge of the groove in which the sash fits. With the molding off, the hardened paint between sash and frame can be cut with a thin-bladed knife.

DEAR ANNE:
Have any of your readers cleaned glass fiber lamp shades? It has been suggested that a damp cloth and mild soap would do it, but the shades were so expensive I dislike taking the risk. The stores which sell them are quite vague about how to clean them.
Mrs. J. Lee, Alexandria.

Tips on how best to clean these shades will be gratefully received.

DEAR ANNE:
The Venetian blinds in our living room are quite soiled—not only the slats but the straps. How can I clean them thoroughly. V. F. W., Alexandria.

This is often done by removing the entire blind from the window and washing it in the bathtub. Scrub with brush, soap, and water. When clean, rinse very thoroughly. Shake and wipe off as much water as possible and hang where it will dry quickly.

If tapes are old and break in the washing, it is possible to buy new tapes by the yard and replace them yourself. Use the old tape as a guide.

If you don't want to take the Venetian blinds down for washing, here's an idea: Wash or clean the slats in your usual manner. (Incidentally, there are special brushes and solutions for this purpose.) Then freshen soiled or stained tapes by covering them with a type of tape sold in some stores handling Venetian blinds and accessories. It comes in the same width as the tapes and is applied by sticking it to them.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

TOWN TOPICS:

Tea Honors Mrs. Truman

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

FRILLED bonnets and bright music filled the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel yesterday afternoon, where French doors opened wide to spring sunshine. Mrs. Truman was the guest of honor in a gathering of some 400 ladies, and Mrs. William Boyle, wife of the chairman of the Democratic National Committee was the hostess.

The First Lady's hair curled softly around a face-framing wreath of white lilacs. She wore white gloves with her black frock and two white orchids pinned at the shoulder.

Mrs. Boyle introduced her guests to Mrs. Truman, and Mrs. India Edwards, chairman of the Women's Division of the National Democratic Party, assisted in receiving. Mrs. Boyle and Mrs. Edwards were in black cocktail length frocks and small black hats.

While tea and coffee were served, a stringed orchestra played some enchanting music. A buffet as long as a tennis court offered small sandwiches and cakes and salted nuts. There must have been nearly 2000 sandwiches and as many cakes. There was noticeable lack of interest in their consumption, however, which might account for the slim figures of some of the ladies in the Democratic Party.

Spring Costumes Worn by Guests

MRS. MAX TRUITT, in navy blue and white, attended with Miss Jane Lingo, and Mrs. Dean Acheson was there in navy taffeta and yellow straw bonnet enjoying a chat with sun-tanned Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who was costumed in black satin and a small hat of roses.

A circle of talk was formed by Mrs. Willard Thorp, Mrs. Edward G. Miller, Mrs. George McGhee and Mrs. Walton Butterworth. Mrs. Anthony Drexel Biddle had coffee with Mrs. Fred Vinson, while Mrs. Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg, poured tea for Mrs. William Fulbright.

Mrs. John Steelman wore a navy taffeta dress with white organdy trim, and Miss Frieda B. Hennock looked crisp in taffeta and furs.

Others in the gala gathering included Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, United States Treasurer; Miss Doris Fleeson, Mrs. Thomas Campbell Clark and Mrs. Juliet Ansberry.

Second Garden Party 'Real Thing'

SPRING was at her best yesterday for the second of two garden parties given by former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies. From 5 to 7 p. m., several hundred guests were received, and luckier than Sunday's guests, they were able to stroll through gardens of breathtaking beauty.

Mrs. Davies received in the drawing room in a black taffeta frock, trimmed with gold thread. Her daughter, Mrs. Augustus Riggs 4th, was on hand to receive, as were Mrs. Davies Fitch and Mrs. Millard Tydings, daughters of Mr. Davies.

Ladies who took turns pouring tea included Signora Tarchiani, wife of the Italian Ambassador; Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador; Mrs. John W. Snyder, Mrs. Francis P. Matthews, Lady Welch, Mme. Thor Thors, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim.

Senator's Wife Umpires Conversation

MRS. JOHN R. STEELMAN, wife of the President's Special Assistant, and Mrs. Estes Kefauver, wife of the Senator from Tennessee, umpired the conversations of celebrities yesterday at the weekly luncheon fashion show at the Statler Hotel.

Celebrities on this occasion were members and players of the Congressional baseball team, including Representative C. W. Bishop, second baseman of the Republican team; Representative Tom Pickett of Texas, catcher on the Democratic team; William M. "Fishbait" Miller, doorkeeper of the House of Representatives; and Representative Lowell Stockman, Republican, of Oregon.

Later this month, Senators and Representatives will meet in the annual baseball contest between members of Congress to be held in Griffith Stadium.

The association opposed present proposed construction there.

'Twas Dryest April Since 1942 in D. C.

April showers — where were they?

The Weather Bureau yesterday balanced its figures for last month and found it the dryest April since 1942.

Total precipitation was 1.86 inches, hardly enough for a 2-year-old to get his feet wet in. Normal precipitation for the traditionally wet month is 3.27 inches.

Last year's was a dry one, too, but wetter by 0.08 of an inch than this year's. Up to the 21st of last month, the rainfall was two inches below normal. On the 27th there was .81 of an inch of rainfall —high point of the month.

The Washington Aqueduct said there's no cause for alarm on supply. There's plenty.

Things were normal in the temperature department, though, almost right on the median nose. The mean temperature was 53.4 and the normal for the month is 53.3. The highest high was on April 4 with 80 and the lowest low, 24, on April 14.

The big blow of the month came April 11 when a velocity of 44 miles an hour was measured by the wind-swept weather men.

Lane Appoints Mrs. Baylor to School Board

Mrs. Ben B. Baylor, jr., of 6705 Glenbrook rd., Bethesda, was appointed to the Montgomery County Board of Education yesterday by Gov. William Preston Lane, jr.

Mrs. Baylor will serve until May, 1952, to complete the unexpired term of James W. Gill who has resigned. Governor Lane also reappointed H. Stanley Stine of 617 Bennington la., Silver Spring, to his second six-year term on the board.

Varied Bills Introduced in County Council

Bills to authorize off-street-parking bonds for Bethesda, to regulate firearms and to reduce the signatures of referendum petitions to 5 percent were among nine bills and one resolution introduced yesterday at the first day of the second legislative session of the Montgomery County Council.

The council meets for 30 days to enact new local laws for Montgomery County during the month of May each year. Approximately 30 measures are expected to be introduced and passed on during the session. The council will meet again in legislative session at 2 p. m. today, followed by a meeting in executive session to transact regular business.

The resolution, introduced by Frederic P. Lee, president of the council, provides for a referendum by the voters of the county to amend the county charter so that signatures of only 5 percent of the registered voters, or about 2500, instead of 10 percent, will be required to initiate a referdum on any laws enacted by the council.

Probably the most important bill introduced was one to create a special tax area for Bethesda business district to provide for public parking lots. The law provides for collection of 40 cents on $100 tax on all business property in the district and for 20 cents on unimproved property zoned for business purposes. It also provides that bonds totaling $800,000 may be sold to purchase land for off-street parking to be paid back from proceeds of the tax and from parking meters receipts in the district.

The Street of the Yellow Cat

Let's go back where the yellow cat dreams
In the street that we used to know—
Where the babel and rabble and motley schemes
Were ours—not long ago.
Let's pet The Monarch, and hear him purr
As he welcomes us back with a "mew";
He's a symbol of something we couldn't find
When we traded the Old for the New.
The "grinder's" song . . . the barber's pole
And the clothes-lines hanging high . . .
Are calling me back to the days of old
In the land of Tomato Pie!

So let's go back to our dreams and the truth—
To our Em-rald-Eyed Puss and Carefree Youth!
—Alma Brumbelow.

Arlene Francis took a girl friend to a night spot. The guest ordered double portions of this and triples of that. When she finished dinner she patted her overstuffed front and sighed: "That was grand. Now what'll I drink to wash it down?"

"How about the Atlantic Ocean?" suggested Arlene.

Over at The China Doll last night a New York newsgal offered this vignette. Happened at the Women's Press Club in Washington, where Olivia De Havilland was on the dais.

A Washington Post staffer was pointing out the Capital's VIPS to Olivia. "There's the Secretary of State. There's the Chief Justice and there's Louis Johnson!"

"What can they say about me," he shrugged, "that they haven't?"

Jimmy Walker, the Mayor of Texas Guinan's N. Y., had more sense: "I know better," he said, "than to fight with a newspaperman. He goes to press too often."

Headline: "Berlin, in Morality Wave, Bans Nude Bathing." Legal, however, if you're wearing a swastika.

Gen. Collins, Army Chief of Staff, is quoted: "Americans will be on the receiving end during the early days of an atomic war. Industry will be unable to mobilize for 18 months."

From E. V. Durling's homespun column: "Dolores Gray is in the third year of 'Annie Get Your Gun' in London. She is a Pittsburgh girl. In addition to being very talented she is very beautiful, but though she is 25, has yet to be married. I understand right now she loves the film actor Michael Wilding, but he doesn't love back."

The other day the House applauded a Congressman who spent two days in jail.

Perhaps they'll get around to applauding some who manage to stay out of one.

Typical Embezzler Is Competent, Trusted

This is the second of six articles about the weird and the typical cases of embezzlement, many of which are partly the fault of the employer, according to the bonding companies.

By Kenneth L. Hall

CHAPTER TWO

Your typical embezzler is in the white-collar class. He is in his middle or late 30's. He has a wife and two children.

He lives in a good neighborhood. He owns a medium-priced automobile, last year's model, on which a balance is still due.

He belongs to a lodge or church. He has been employed by his company for more than five years.

He earns about $75 a week although his friends, and very often his wife, believe his salary is higher.

Think carefully. Do you know anyone who might answer to that description? A fellow worker, perhaps? How about yourself? Could that portrait of a typical embezzler look like you?

If there is a resemblance, you shouldn't resent it too much. The composite portrait is flattering in many ways.

The typical embezzler is competent and smart. He is looked upon by his employer with favor, even high regard. And why not? He has risen to a position of trust through honesty and hard work over a period of years. His reputation is usually above average.

Yet he becomes an embezzler!

According to the U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore the embezzler is indistinguishable in outward appearances from any other John Q. Citizen.

This company should know. It made a detailed study of itchy-fingered citizens and came up with an interesting report titled "1001 Embezzlers." From it, in part, was drawn the composite portrait at the beginning of this article.

Oddly enough, the embezzler when caught will deny with high indignation that he is a criminal—or even that he is a thief.

Nearly all say they meant merely to "borrow" from their employers and fully intended to pay back every last cent. But some of them have been known to take that last cent.

It is not unusual for an embezzler to keep elaborate records of his "borrowings" down to the third decimal point.

But when he is caught he can never produce the sum—and it's often a huge one—that he has hollowed out of the company's bank account. One way or another his "needs" grow until he is hopelessly snared in a cabbage-green web of stealing and falsification.

If he is caught and put in jail—and he almost always is—he will not associate with the other prisoners. He has none of the anti-social traits of the criminal. He becomes a model prisoner. When released he is "cured" for life in practically all cases.

Although the average embezzler seldom escapes prison, there was one amazing exception to that rule.

If you saw it in a movie or read it in a book you'd pooh-pooh it as preposterous. But it really did happen to the assistant bursar of an Eastern college soon after he was discovered to have misappropriated $8000.

On the very day he was arrested, a cablegram arrived with the news that he had won the sweepstakes.

He was permitted to drive to Canada where he cashed his winning ticket for $30,000. He returned the $8000 to the college, avoided prosecution, and pocketed a nice little nest-egg.

The higher mathematicians can figure the odds on such a happy and timely combination of circumstances ever happening again.

In spite of this well-known fact, many employers have an indifferent attitude toward the simple and inexpensive precaution of bonding employes. Their line of sales resistance goes like this:

"Why should I bond Jones? He's an old and trusted employe. My accounting system is foolproof. And anyway, there isn't enough cash on hand to amount to much if it is stolen."

As the surety companies point out, that line is weak on all three counts.

In the first place, it's the "old and trusted employee" who usually holds the key to the cash-box.

In the second place, the accounting system that stops employe dishonesty has not yet been devised.

And in the third place, the largest losses have been caused by workers who did not have access to cash or securities at all!

This unrealistic attitude on the part of employers makes it an easy matter for a person so tempted to play tick-tack-toe with the company's books. And many a firm in sound financial condition has overnight found itself in bankruptcy because of a large default.

Perhaps the most famous example is that of the Hormel Packing Company of Austin, Minn.

In July, 1921, a series of defalcations by the comptroller was uncovered. The loss amounted to more than a million dollars. The prospering young packing firm immediately was worth $14,000 less than nothing. The comptroller was not bonded, although a blanket bond could have been bought for about $20,000, a small sum in view of the million-dollar loss.

Fortunately, the firm survived. Thanks to the guidance of founder George Hormel and the patience of his creditors, you probably have a canned Hormel tidbit reposing in your pantry at this moment. But no thanks to the defalcating employe, who, incidentally, was a pleasant fellow with a local reputation as a teacher of Sunday school.

Bonding is by no means the only answer for employe dishonesty.

To this, the surety companies say "Better bond 'em for too much than too little."

That advice is borne out by the results of a study which show that losses sustained are nearly 90 percent greater than the amount of protection considered to be enough.

A more enduring solution to the problem of embezzling lies in a closer examination of the reasons why "honest" men and women steal.

Runyon Fund Benefit

Milton Got 10,000 Phone Calls an Hour

—By Sonia Stein

YOU CAN'T do a million dollars worth of business in less than 24 hours without going along at a pretty good clip. That's why the problem with the Milton Berle all-night telethon wasn't how to fill 19 hours of solid airtime, but how to fit everything into 19 hours.

(For the confused, the 1950 Berle telecast on NBC to get pledges for the Damon Runyon Memorial Cancer Fund, ran from noon Saturday to 10:30 a.m., Sunday, with two and a half hours out at 8 p.m., for the Saturday Night Revue, and another hour ellipted, you might say, by a provincial New York custom called Daylight Saving Time.

Of the calls which swamped the board at the rate of 10,000 an hour, Berle himself could handle only a tiny fraction. Waving madly at kiddies, blowing kisses, telling them to go to bed (something he had to do practically all night long in response to frantic parents' requests) and saying thank you, was about all Mr. TV was able to fit into the show.

Humor had to take a back seat because all 10,000 hourly callers were clamoring to talk to Berle himself. Some of them promised $500 if they could talk to him. (Offer declined; amount pledged had absolutely nothing to do with who got through to Berle.) Tiny tots, contents of piggy banks in hand, asked to speak to Uncle Milty. Most of them settled for the promise that their message would be given to him—even the little one whose dog had died that day and who was contributing the money she would have spent for the license to the Cancer Fund instead.

Not All Made It

NOT ALL of the calls got through to anybody. At one point the operators estimated there were 80,000 calls backed up and waiting. But those who handled those which got through were the backbone of the show. This is not to pluck laurel leaves off Milton's crown, nor off the crown of the many entertainers who showed up and waited an hour or more backstage—standing, thank you—to appear on the screen with Berle for a minute or two. (Only W. Winchell, who is approximately the founding father of the Cancer Fund, was given more than a few minutes.)

But the real beavers were holed up in a scenery storage room in back of Studio 6B, answering—as fast as their hands would fly—the 71 auxiliary telephones which supplemented the nine on stage which were manned by models and showgirls. Sitting elbow to elbow, straining in the bedlam to get names and addresses of contributors, were a battery of volunteers.

Rosalind Berle, Milton's sister, who had interviewed by phone each of the volunteers the day before, stuck out the vigil. She and brother Frank and his wife, supervised the "Snake Pit" all through the night, taking trouble calls—the various John D. Rockefellers calling from bars to contribute a million dollars—and checking them all back carefully,

A man named Abe Applebaum wandered in at noon, found the coffee urn unattended, so he stuck with it until 10:30 Sunday a. m.

Six Changes of Clothes

AL VIGAL, Berle's valet, saw him through six changes of clothes. "He's wearing mostly gray, he feels springlike today," said the valet, and mopped Berle's moist brow every time he stepped into the wings for a breather.

And also sticking with the show virtually all night was Milton's mother. "You must be so proud of your child," somebody said to her as the total of $1,304,835 as of 10:30 a. m. was announced. "Which one?" asked Mama Berle as she waved goodby to Milton and bustled on back to the "Snake Pit" to see if she could help Rosalind, Frank and Frank's wife, who still had a few hours to go, taking late calls.

Uncle Sam Gives Dogs a Temporary Reprieve

A few days ago I ran an item titled "Uncle Sam, Landlord." It was about the decision to enforce the "No Dogs" prohibition in Lily Ponds leases.

John Ihlder, executive director of the National Capital Housing Authority, sighs when anybody mentions dogs.

"Dogs arouse such strong conflicting emotions," he says, "that agreement between the affections of dog owners and the fears of non-dog owners is practically impossible. In fact, dogs present one of our most bothersome problems."

However, Ihlder has set up common sense machinery for handling such situations. The Lily Ponds petition will get the same treatment recently accorded a protest from Knox Hill tenants.

A vote is taken among all residents of any development in which the National Capital Housing Authority has been asked to waive its prohibition against dogs.

One vote is allowed to each household. If a majority of all tenants vote in favor of the dogs, owners must promise to join a "Dog Owners' Association," to assume full responsibility for damage and injury resulting from the presence of the pets. Dues are usually $3 per year.

At Knox Hill, tenants voted to keep the dogs on a 60-day trial basis, and the same procedure is available at Lily Ponds—if the dog owners will bestir themselves, organize, and win a majority of the votes.

Otherwise, either the dogs must go, or the offending tenants.

Horace M. Baxter of 1455 Belmont st. nw. thinks it may be because she's a lip reader. (Paul Strachan of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped doubts that. He says he's tried to learn to read lips without any appreciable success.)

Dorothy Gregory of 1002 N. Quincy st., Arlington, Va., says she's relieved to hear the story—because her own idiosyncrasy is that she can't hear well when she has her glasses on.

And Mrs. Clarence W. Kitchens of 154 Williams st., Arlington, Va., delves into the deeper significance of wearing specs, in the style of Dorothy Parker:

GIVE-AWAYS

"One hundred player piano rolls." (Emerson 6262.)

"Personable black rabbit wants home in country." (North 7210.)

KID STUFF

A local teacher included on a recent test the question: "What is the meaning of the word 'peninsula'?" One of her pupils gave the answer:

"It's a new type of medicine."

PERSONAL NOTES

Peter Levin, 8004 Blair Mill dr., Silver Spring, Md.: Apparently the soldier had become ill and required an ambulance before. He was recognized immediately, making it easier for the doctor to diagnose his trouble.

GHOST TO GHOST HOOKUP

Harry A. Stewart, jr., of 908 Rittenhouse st. nw. has a suggestion for me:

"If you are off the air because your radio program took too much of your time, why not hire somebody to write your scripts? After all, you have your public to think of."

I'll concede that the radio industry is not as prosperous these days as it once was. But I attribute this more to the inroads of television than to my absence from the air.

Seriously, though, I reject Harry's suggestion because I think there are already enough people on the air reading somebody else's scripts.

If a "ghost" is to be hired to write my script, he might as well do the program, as well. What would they need me for? All I could contribute would be the second-raspiest Ohio twang in America. (I yield to Senator Taft.)

CHOWDER BOWL

A disgruntled Government worker complained recently that GSI clam chowder is neither soup nor chowder.

What's more, he expressed serious doubt as to whether the chowder had ever actually been on speaking terms with a clam.

Another patron of GSI volunteers to testify as a witness for the defense. He writes:

"There is, too, a clam at GSI. I am not permitted to divulge the secret place in which it is kept; but, believe me, they have a clam.

"Twice each week it is taken out of hiding and dipped into a kettle of Potomac Puree. Each spring, it is given a new coat of varnish and, for safety purposes, fitted out with a new dunking string.

"It is a very conscientious clam, and has always done its level best. But until it reaches retirement age, I see little hope for better GSI clam chowder."

In the interests of accurate reporting, I have eaten a bowl of this much-maligned chowder. My conclusion is that its deficiencies have been somewhat exaggerated. I suspect that at least two clams were used.

Louise Tharp Speaks May 11 At Book Lunch

Mrs. Louise Hall Tharp, author of "The Peabody Sisters of Salem," a recent Book-of-the-Month Club selection, will speak at The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon in the Hotel Statler, Thursday, May 11.

Mrs. Tharp

Mrs. Tharp, who now makes her home in Darien, Conn., is the mother of two sons, Carey, jr., 22, and Marshall Allen, 19.

For her sons' amusement she began to write books for young people, among them "Champlain, Northwest Voyager," and "Company of Adventurers."

When the lads grew up she turned to biography and the result was "The Peabody Sisters of Salem"—story of Elizabeth, Mary and Sophia, who lived during the "flowering of New England" and the great names of the time, including Horace Mann, Emerson, Channing, Hawthorne and Melville.

In addition to her writing, Mrs. Tharp goes in for "general housework, plain cooking, and no laundry."

Also speaking at the 1 p. m. luncheon in the Statler's Presidential Room will be Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court, author of "Of Men and Mountains," John Foster Dulles, author of "War or Peace," and Dr. Daniel A. Poling, author of "Faith Is Power—For You."

The luncheon is the fourth and final one of the fifth season of The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheons.

President Vows to Press For Rent Law

By Drew Pearson

President Truman promised a group of mayors the other day to heckle Congress until rent controls are extended, but he refused to make it a "last appeal." He said rent controls might even be needed for another year, despite the fact that some of the big-city mayors who came to him for help were willing to compromise.

Pearson

Mayor William Devin of Seattle, Wash., suggested: "Mr. President, we think it would help if you could come out and say this extension will be the last one."

"I can't say this is the end," replied the President. "The end of rent controls depends on economic conditions a year from now."

In greeting the delegation, Truman declared: "I am certainly very happy to see the mayors come here on this very knotty problem. There is no uncertainty in my mind on the need for extension of rent controls. I have told the Congress—and I intend to keep telling them—we need rent controls extended."

Inside Spain

An intent, wavy-haired figure sat in the exclusive Senators' gallery like the master of a puppet show during the debate of economic aid to Franco Spain.

He was Charles Patrick Clark, Franco's American lobbyist, who with elderly and querulous Senator Pat McCarran, has been beating the drums for a loan to Spain.

In the end, Marshall Plan aid to Franco was defeated. And here are some of the arguments, taken from U. S. intelligence files and known to many Senators, which influenced the vote.

1. Dictator Francisco Franco is hanging on by the skin of his teeth, largely through claims that he will get an American loan. Last summer, 15 top Spanish generals had a showdown with Franco. All but two pointedly said they could no longer support him.

Franco begged for time to prove the United States was backing him. In August, American fleet units under Admiral Connolly steamed into Spanish ports and Franco won his reprieve. But the latest inside dope is that unless he can wangle a loan this year, the Spanish military definitely will ditch him for a return of the King.

Franco and Vatican

2. Meanwhile, Jose Aguirre, leader of the militant Basque Catholic Resistance, has been conducting a stirring campaign in the United States and western Europe. He was in Washington, as well as New York, and Latin America, organizing support among Catholic leaders. Aguirre, president of the short-lived Basque republic, told Washington officials he had the complete backing of two great Catholic prime ministers—Georges Bidault of France and Alcide de Gasperi of Italy. This, of course, is a matter of record.

Actually, relations between Franco and the Vatican are reported far from good. There is no concordat between Spaon and the Vatican. Franco has, in fact, offended the Vatican by insisting that he name Spanish bishops.

3. Under the Franco regime, corruption has reached a new high. The story is told of cement manufacturers forced to sell thousands of tons of the scarce product at low cost to the army. The cement was allegedly for fortifications behind the Pyrenees, but it was not used for this purpose. Instead, most was sold on the black market for more than double the manufacturers' price.

Businessmen are required to pay tribute to Franco's Falange party through "social security allowances" for workers. Sixty-four per cent of the funds go for overhead and "political hierarchy of the syndicates."

4. Thanks to widespread poverty increased by a devastating drought and Franco's police crackdown on any democratic movements, Communists are successfully infiltrating into the Falange. A Catalan Communist report last November bragged, "the work within the syndicate is giving good results. We must carry further this advantageous experience of combining the legal possibilities with the clandestine fight."

There were Communist demonstrations and cries of "Down with capitalism!" in Madrid on November 29 and 30.
